GUIDELINES

- Messages are a sacred form of communication from Spirit, which may promote insight and healing. Therefore, message workers should come from a place of love. Information should be obtained from Spirit and not the psychic field. Messages that evoke fear or guilt are inappropriate. If a message's content is negative, ask Spirit for a positive way to deliver the information.
- Always ask a person for permission before giving them a message. Give them an opportunity to decline; not everyone who comes to a service feels comfortable receiving a message.
- Messages of a personal or potentially embarrassing nature should not be given publicly and may be shared privately after the service. Remember to keep all information confidential.
- Be observant of who has received messages. It is preferable to give a message to someone who has not received one than to give multiple messages to someone who has.
- Messages should be kept short, 1-2 minutes in length to reach as many people as possible.
- When there are several message workers available, please limit yourself to 1-3 messages so others may serve.
- Do not fabricate a message. If nothing is coming from Spirit, excuse yourself from serving and return to your seat.
- Messages are only to be given from the front of the church. Do not walk up and down the aisles. Many can learn from others' messages and should be able to hear them.
- Messages are to be delivered in a respectful, nonjudgmental, and objective manner. We honor the fact there may be many reasons why someone does not initially connect with the information given. Allow the receivers to process the messages as they are ready.
- If you wish to serve Spirit, please plan to attend the full service. Coming late or leaving early is discouraged and sets a poor example.
- Maintain a neat and clean appearance. Avoid clothing or strong scents that may distract from Spirit's messages.
