

Caution: Lifting anything can be dangerous. One could harm themselves even when they believed themselves to be healthy and capable. Before lifting anything with your back, seek and read ways of lifting things; Example: Lift with your legs and not your back. If you feel you are not in good enough health to lift the weight of your animal, seek assistance. The Game Handlers make no claims. They are a "Lift Assist Device". You will be lifting the animal not the straps. It is for this reason you are taking full responsibility for your actions.

1. Place the animal with the legs toward you.

2. Attach the "S" hook end to the vehicle, (Accessory strap needed for trucks and ATV's)

3. This end (above) will go around the animal, at the ponch and behind the front legs. The handles will be toward the ground and away from the animal.

4. The Snap Hook will attach to the "D" ring. Tighten the strap around the animal. Have the "D" ring near the backbone as the strap is tightened.

5. Using the handles near the snap hook, lift one side at a time, pulling the slack out of the strap after each lift.

Do this until the animal is as high as you can get it. That should be near the back of the loading deck.

6. Now, reach under and behind the animal. Grab the handles as high as you can. While standing up, roll the animal onto the vehicle

7. Now that the animal is on your vehicle, you can leave the Game Handlers attached to the animal and use the other end to secure it to the rack.
