UNBLEACHED AND UNBROMATED: ALWAYS!

After flour is milled, it is subjected to a chlorine gas bath using chemicals such as chlorine dioxide and benzoyl peroxide. The chlorine binds with the protein in flour to produce a carcinogen, known as alloxan. Alloxan is used in laboratories to induce diabetes in rats and mice because it destroys beta cells in the pancreas. It has not been shown to do the same in humans, however alloxan has not been proven safe.

Bromated flour has been treated with potassium bromate to improve dough elasticity and allow it to stand up to commercial baking practices. Potassium bromate is a potential carcinogen and has been outlawed in the U.K. It has been associated with thyroid dysfunction. Some states require potassium bromate be disclosed on food labels. Unbleached and Unbromated on the label is a good thing. Be assured that Dabesta Pizza is always made with Unbleached and Unbromated flour.
