"He Is Not Here, for He Has Risen!"

"The Probably Empty Tomb"

A friend of mine shares this true story.

Three uniformed workers knocked on the door of his cousin Alline's farm home south of Orlando, Oklahoma. They represented a pipeline company. The two men and one woman ranged in age from early to mid-20's. They were seeking permission to survey along the creek south of her home. She granted their request.

But before leaving her porch she issued a motherly warning: "Now be careful of snakes down there. There could be copperheads or rattlesnakes, and there's a lot of brush drifted up from flooding." Then came the warning that went beyond motherly advice: "And don't be surprised when you come upon the old tomb that's down there!" That peaked their interest. "A tomb? A real tomb?" they asked. "Yes, it's been there for years, but it's probably empty. Sometimes a transient or a varmint hides there for a while."

As though they had been deaf to the snake and varmint warning, they asked again: "It's a real tomb?" "Yes, that's what it was built for," responded his cousin. As they walked away, she heard one say to the other two, "I'm not going there if there's a tomb!" Alline assumed they completed the survey, avoided snakes and saw the tomb that she believed was probably empty.

Interestingly, she did not tell them the rest of the story. Oh, it was a tomb alright, but a leftover from the Easter pageant staging of long ago. It had been constructed by a church member with stones taken from their old Lutheran Church.

When the church closed a man tried to remodel it by tearing off several rows of the large sandstones which were offered to this fellow. It was the tomb where another member portrayed Jesus; and after the crucifixion was carried and buried.

The pageant grounds have washed away by years of flooding, but the tomb, set high on the creek bank, survived it. It is still there, but if you search for it watch out for snakes and it will probably be empty!

"The Absolutely Empty Tomb"

Joseph of Arimathea had his tomb carved into a rock ledge outside of Jerusalem. His sole intent was to fill it by his own burial. He was a realist in that he knew he was going to die someday. And he was a planner because he made preparations for when that day would come.

Little did he suspect his newly hewn tomb, that cave-like sepulcher, would take on a divine dynamic. On that infamous Passover Friday, which we call Good, Joseph's heart was wrenched as he watched the bloody, brutal sacrifice of the Lamb of God. The Jewish leadership knew how to hate and the Roman soldiers knew how to crucify. The rough, rugged Roman cross atop that small hill called Golgotha or Calvary virtually cast its shadow on his own empty burial tomb.

Joseph had pinned his Messianic hopes on Jesus of Nazareth as the One who would bring about the Kingdom of God! But now on this Friday, a few hours before the high holy Sabbath of Passover, Jesus was being put to death by crucifixion. The least, the very least Joseph could do was bury the corpse of Jesus. He would fill his own, newly hewn tomb with the body of his Lord. What devotion! He and Nicodemus wrapped the body in spice-laced linen and filled the tomb. Little did he know how temporary this effort would be.

You see, Jesus doesn't like filled tombs. He likes empty tombs! By early Sunday morning Joseph's tomb was not "probably empty" like the one near Orlando; it was absolutely empty! The word of the Easter morning angel says it all: "Why do you seek the living among the dead? He is not here, but has risen. Remember how He told you, while He was still in Galilee, that the Son of Man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men and be crucified and on the third day rise" (Luke 24:5-7).

I venture to say that the empty tomb of Jesus may have been filled again at the death of Joseph of Arimathea, who owned it and planned to fill it. But remember, Jesus likes empty tombs, so even Joseph's tomb will again be emptied on the great day of the resurrection of all flesh. Jesus sealed that promise to us when He emptied His own tomb. By His tomb-emptying resurrection work He emptied death of its power to bind us as well! Through Jesus' death and resurrection we are assured that our filled tombs will someday be emptied too!

Martin Luther once said that every day should be a little Easter! May all of us rejoice in our Lord and Savior's gift of salvation and eternal life. Live in peace no matter what the devil and the world throws at you!

Love in Christ,
Pastor Gary Brandt

A boy just passed his driving test and asked his Father when he could use the car. His Father said, “You bring your grades up, study your Bible, and get your hair cut, we’ll talk about the car.”

A few weeks later the Father said, “You’ve brought your grades up, you’ve been studying your Bible, but you haven’t cut your hair.” The boy said, “In the Bible Samson had long hair, John the Baptist had long hair, Moses had long hair—even Jesus had long hair.” Father said, “Did you also notice they all walked everywhere they went?”

Too Great to Grasp

For more than three decades, St. Augustine of Hippo toiled over the mind-boggling doctrine of the Trinity. According to legend, one day the church father was strolling along a shore, wrestling with this puzzle. He saw a boy running back and forth, using a seashell to pour water from the ocean into a hole he’d dug in the sand. When Augustine asked what he was doing, the boy proclaimed, “I’m going to pour the entire ocean into this hole!”

“That’s impossible,” replied Augustine. “The sea is so great, and the shell and the hole are so little.”

“That’s true,” the boy said. “But it would be easier to draw all the water out of the sea and fit it into this hole than for you to fit the mystery of the Trinity and his divinity into your little intellect.”

Stewardship

St. Paul teaches us: “Let the one who is taught the word share all good things with the one who teaches” (Gal. 6:6). And again, he says: “Do you not know that those who are employed in the temple service get their food from the temple, and those who serve at the altar share in the sacrificial offerings? In the same way, the Lord commanded that those who proclaim the gospel should get their living by the gospel” (1 Cor. 9:13-14).

In other words, ministers of the Gospel are supported by the offerings of those who are served by them.

And this is how the church lives even now. It is standard practice. But this deserves closer examination. For it instructs us not just that we are to give but also what we are to give. And it does so with four little words: “In the same way ...”

St. Paul is building his case for supporting the preachers of the Gospel with the sacrificial giving of individual members on the example of the Old Testament people who supported the Levites with their offerings and sacrifices. We’re to support the Gospel ministry “in the same way.” But how did the Old Testament people support the Levites?

Moses records this: “You shall tithe all the yield of your seed that comes from the field year by year. And before the Lord your God, in the place that he will choose, to make his name dwell there, you shall eat the tithe of your grain, of your wine, and of your oil, and the firstborn of your herd and flock, that you may learn to fear the Lord your God always” (Deut. 14:22–23). The Levites were supported by the tithe, 10 percent of all the yearly yield of that which was harvested.

Does that seem like a lot? Does it surprise you that St. Paul instructs us that we are to support the New Testament Gospel ministry “in the same way?” If it does, ask yourself: Is the church’s job in the New Testament bigger or smaller than the Levites’ job in the Old Testament? Back then, there was one Temple, and the ministry was almost exclusively located in one nation among the descendants of Abraham. In Matthew 28, Jesus calls us to teach and baptize all nations, and there are churches and ministries all around the world! How could we support this new Gospel ministry with anything less than the Israelites supported the Old Testament ministry?

Of course, we are free to give more, for we have received more than those in the Old Testament. We have received the fullness of God’s revelation, the fullness of His salvation, and the fulfillment of everything that God promised to do. For we have received Christ, God’s own Son, in the flesh, who took upon himself our sins and in exchange gave us his righteousness. The Father claimed us as his own in Holy Baptism. He gathers us together in the place where his name dwells to feast on the first fruits of the resurrection, the risen and living body and blood of His Son – our Lord Jesus. He reminds us that we are His, that all things are ours because we belong to Him. He blesses us here in time with physical and spiritual gifts.

In the same way – and in response to His fatherly divine goodness and mercy – we gladly give to those who proclaim to us “the excellencies of him who called us out of darkness and into his marvelous light.” For once we were not a people, but now we are God’s people; once we had not received mercy, but now we have indeed (1 Peter 2:9–10).

side to the story: Jesus is good news of great joy. He has changed everything for the better. Our young people need to hear that from us, and they need to know if we really believe it, and why we believe it.

Prayer: Dear Lord, every day has plenty of evil without us borrowing from tomorrow. May our witness to the young reflect the joy we have in Jesus, who has given His life so we might have an abundant life (see John 10:10). In His Name. Amen.

From LHM daily devotion by
Pr. Ken Klaus. July 9, 2009

Therefore do not be anxious about tomorrow, for tomorrow will be anxious for itself. Sufficient for the day is its own trouble. Matthew 6:34

Do you remember that Buck Owens-Roy Clark song: “Gloom, despair, and agony on me. Deep, dark depression, excessive misery. If it weren’t for bad luck, I’d have no luck at all. Gloom, despair, and agony on me.” According to Dr. Iris Borowsky from the University of Minnesota, those words have found acceptance among a fairly high percentage of young people. Based on a survey of 20,000 kids, almost 15 percent thought they had a good chance of dying young. The big problem is this: those dark thoughts are being transformed into a self-fulfilling prophecy. The logic goes this way: these teens think they’re not going to live very long. Since they’re not going to live long, they’ve got nothing to lose. Since they’ve got nothing to lose, they might as well do what they want. All of this leads to taking chances and doing some risky stuff. How risky? Well, other statistics say that when compared to someone with a brighter outlook, a pessimistic teen has a higher chance of getting AIDS, of attempting suicide, and getting in a fight that will cause a serious injury. How much higher a chance? Seven times higher. And that’s a lot. So, what do we do about these young folks who are sure every day is filled to overflowing with trouble? First, we can pray for them. When Jesus talked about being the light of the world, He meant He can bring the brightness of God’s grace into hearts, which are darkened by discouragement and depression. Second, we can watch what we say around these future adults. While we can’t sugar coat the dark side of life, we don’t have to continuously dwell on sin’s repercussions. There is another

Argument #3—The Anthropic Principle

(The design of life) King David in Psalm 19:1 states that “the heavens declare the glory of God and proclaims His handiwork”.

The fact that the universe has a grand design means that there is a designer behind it. This argument observes that many of the features of the cosmos as well as life are so complex and unique that they must be the work of an intelligent and creative mind and not a product of gradual processes and mere chance. One feature of this argument is called “irreducible complexity” as postulated by the prominent biochemist Michael Behe. He states that the basic features of living creatures would’ve had to have been created in full form for them to function, such as the flagellum of microscopic organisms to propel themselves and feathers on birds.

Partially formed by chance they would’ve had no value whatsoever. Also consider the sense organs we use for sight, hearing, smell, taste and touch. They are so complex that they could never have sprung up by coincidence and chance. The lack of missing links in the fossil record bear this out. They do not provide the transitional fossilized creatures to prove that these features evolved haphazardly.

Next month will bring a discussion on DNA and the reasons why it could not have evolved. Russell Schulz, Evangelism Chair

You Are His Witness, What Does This Mean?

In Acts 1:8, Jesus calls His disciples to be His witnesses. “You will be My witnesses” is a statement of fact, not a request. Just as His disciples, we who are His disciples today are also called to be His witnesses. Just as the nation of Israel was set apart to be “a light for the nations” in testimony of God, so are we called to be witnesses to those who do not know Him. This brings some questions. What is a witness? What kind of witness am I? How do I witness? To whom should I witness? Where should I witness? The common definition of witness is someone who has knowledge of something and gives personal testimony to it. When Jesus calls us to be witnesses He is calling us who know Him personally by the faith He works in us by His Word, to share that knowledge with others. As simple as to what it means to be a witness, how to be a witness raises a lot of questions. We may feel inadequate or intimidated to give witness to others. We may wonder where or how to speak of Jesus. We should remember that Jesus’ disciples were just like us. They were not trained in theology or public speaking. They came from ordinary walks of life, but had experienced the extra ordinary while walking with Jesus. Like them, we may not have the worldly credentials, but we have experienced the extraordinary by being buried and raised with Jesus in Holy Baptism, and are, therefore, qualified to be witnesses by Him who has called, enlightened, sanctified, and kept in the true faith. Every one of Jesus’ disciples is His witness. By grace, this includes you.

Russell Schulz, Evangelism Chair

“But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you, and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth.” Act 1:8

A Shared Experience

What comes to mind when you hear the word Pentecost? Many people think of a mighty wind, tongues of fire and multiple languages. But Acts 2 begins with another detail that’s just as key: Jesus’ disciples “were all together in one place.” Because they were together physically and spiritually, the early believers didn’t miss the life-changing, world-changing birth of the Church.

The pandemic, while changing our definition of gathering, also highlighted our need for interaction. If Jesus’ first followers hadn’t been assembled on Pentecost, they would’ve missed the outpouring of God’s power and the indescribable joy God had for them. Think about what believers today might miss if we neglect to worship with other friends of Christ. Who would want to miss God’s blessings, promises and joy?

Your Vote Counts!

On April 6, citizens of Missouri went to the polls to vote on several issues. You might not know our church is a voting site for all elections. I am not sure how long we have done this, but we have been a voting site for many years, back to at least 2010. Jeff Hedberg started as an Election Official in 2013 when former member Arlene Leonard and her husband Leonard moved back to the St. Louis area.

Jeff and Helen Gunn work every election as Election Officials, based on their seniority, and there are others that also assist for anticipated busier election days. Jeff and Helen serve as supervisors for their respective party affiliations. The two major parties have to have an equal number of workers at each polling place.

The Election Officials day starts around 5 am when they begin getting everything set up. Polling begins at 6 am and closes at 7 pm. By the time they get everything together, do their count, take the ballots to the court house, it is at least 8 pm.

It is one of the initiatives the church participates in by providing space for election polling. It gives us some exposure to people from around the area. You might also be interested in the fact the church receives $100 which takes care of the extra utilities and cleaning.

We should also recognize Jeff for his participation. He does not do this as a church member, but as an interested citizen. Thanks to Jeff for a job well done.

Replacement of parking lot lights: Our parking lot lights are not working properly. Mark Riemann received a bid for them to be upgraded.

Voters unanimously approved the expenditures for parking lot repair, updating the parking lot lights, and roof replacements. There was discussion concerning the HVAC units. It was suggested that it would be best to replace all three units together. A committee will be established to discuss that matter with heating/cooling experts.

Voters unanimously approved the placing of $70,000.00 in the Depreciation Replacement Fund so that repairs and replacements can proceed.

Old Business:

- Documents for the perpetuity registry of the Peace Lutheran Cemetery are not completed.
- The development of internal capabilities for streaming worship services is being addressed.

New Business:

- Voters approved the appointment of Peggy Callahan to the position of member at large.
- Sara Anderegg will proceed with the organizing of Vacation Bible School.
- The Elders were asked to discuss the possibility of having ushers return to passing the collection plates rather than placing the plates at the back of the church.

Closing:

Pastor Anderegg presented a short devotion using the parable of the talents. He closed with prayer.

Respectfully submitted,
Susan Kral, secretary
