PROFESSIONAL PROFILE

Jamila Coleman is a forensic behavioral health expert and psycholegal consultant who partners with attorneys across Washington State to strengthen litigation involving psychological injury, trauma exposure, institutional harm, disability, and complex psychosocial damages. Her work is grounded in the Beyond Damages™ Model — a structured forensic framework that translates lived experience into legally defensible evidence. Her role is non-therapeutic and focused on case strategy, evidentiary clarity, and expert positioning.

With over 15 years of experience across behavioral health, legal systems, and public institutions, Jamila brings a dual lens—clinical and legal—to case strategy. She is known for bridging the gap between what clients have experienced and what can be effectively demonstrated in a legal context, ensuring that damages are not only described, but understood.

THE BEYOND DAMAGES™ MODEL

The Beyond Damages™ Model addresses a critical gap in litigation: the ability to demonstrate not just what happened, but what that harm did. This model centers on functional impact, systems interaction, and lived experience to produce clear, defensible narratives for court.

Core Components:

- Evidence of Experience™ – translating lived experience into structured, admissible insights
- Functional Impact Analysis – demonstrating disruption across life domains
- Systems Context Mapping – identifying institutional influence and failures
- Causation Framing – connecting events to outcomes in a legally relevant structure
- Strategic Narrative Development – aligning findings with litigation strategy

LIVED SYSTEMS INSIGHT

Jamila brings lived experience navigating foster care, education, behavioral health, and justice systems. This perspective strengthens her ability to identify patterns of institutional harm, contextualize trauma, and articulate the real-world impact of systemic failures within legal proceedings.

PROFESSIONAL APPROACH

Jamila's work is grounded in one core principle:

If the impact is not clearly translated, it is not fully seen.

She approaches each case with a balance of clinical depth, legal awareness, and strategic clarity—ensuring that psychological harm is not minimized, misinterpreted, or left underdeveloped in litigation.
