

🌸 Welcome to the Fall 2025 Semester!

The first month of the academic year has been full of excitement, learning, and community here at NBICC! Our students have hit the ground running, completing their Food Safety, WHMIS, and First Aid & CPR certifications — setting a strong foundation for success in their programs.

NBICC continues to be a place where culture, education, and opportunity meet. We are proud to see our students learning, growing, and supporting one another both inside and outside the classroom.

Indigenous Hospitality & Tourism Management

Lilith Kehoe

In just a short month, Lilith Kehoe, from Elsipogtog First Nation, has truly flourished and become a shining presence in our classroom. From the quiet and reserved student first met at the beginning of the term, she has blossomed into a confident, engaged, and inspiring student who contributes so much to every discussion and activity. Lilith's kindness, curiosity, and willingness to share her insights have enriched the learning environment for everyone around her. She carries the strength and spirit of her community with her, embodying both grace and determination in all she does. Lilith is genuinely beautiful inside and out, and it's been such a joy to witness her growth and confidence unfold. I am incredibly proud of how far she's come already and can't wait to see all the amazing things she accomplishes throughout this academic year.

Addictions Services Counsellor

Johann Caplin

Congratulations to Johann Caplin, from Gesgapegiag First Nation – NBICC's Student of the Month for the Addictions Services Counsellor program in 2025. Johann's dedication to her studies truly stands out. Her enthusiasm for learning, consistent participation, and genuine support for her classmates reflect the heart of this profession. She carries the strength and compassion of her community with her, inspiring those around her through her positivity and empathy. We deeply appreciate the light and encouragement Johann brings to the classroom. Congratulations on this well-deserved recognition – we look forward to seeing where your passion and commitment will take you!

Human Services Counsellor/Indigenous Social Services Community Worker

Alic Paul

As a new student to NBICC, Alic Paul, from Sipekne'katik First Nation, has quickly stood out for his exemplary skills, positive attitude, and dedication to learning. Alic's respect for his instructor and his supportive, encouraging nature toward his classmates have made him a valued member of the NBICC community. He brings with him the strength, pride, and resilience of his community, which shines through in everything he does. His enthusiasm and commitment to excellence reflect the true spirit and values of our college. Congratulations, Alic – keep up the great work! We're also proud of you!

Early Childhood Education

Cecelia Fanjoy

Cecelia Fanjoy, from Bilikj First Nation, has quickly stood out as an exceptional student whose sweet and caring demeanor brings warmth and positivity to our classroom. She approaches every lesson with enthusiasm and professionalism, demonstrating a genuine passion for the Early Childhood Education field. Cecelia's dedication shows in her punctuality, consistent attendance, and the high quality of her assignments, which are already outstanding in both thoroughness and detail. She carries the heart and values of her community into her work – showing kindness, reliability, and a natural ability to connect with others. Cecelia is a true asset to this profession, and I have no doubt she will continue to shine as she grows in her journey as an educator.
