Election

6 contenders for 4 board seats

The 2026 FPNA board election features four directors up for re-election: John Alford, Linda Cullen, Tanya Lewicki and Julie Mullen. They and two challengers filed nomination forms by the Feb. 12 deadline, so there will be ballots sent out to current full members for voting. This Flyer serves as the 20-day (March 4) notice of a contested slate.

Tabulation will occur at the membership meeting, March 24 at the Howard Park recreation center. Votes will be opened and counted; no new nominations can occur from the floor, per our bylaws.

The ballots sent out will include the nomination forms, but here's an alphabetical sample from the candidates' info:

- John Alford, living here three years but volunteering for a decade; board incumbent since 2025.

- Raphael Clemente, 10 years here, a community development professional, former executive director of the Downtown Development Authority.

- Linda Cullen, living here since 1985; board incumbent who's held every office; historic preservation a key interest.

- Tanya Lewicki, four-year incumbent with about nine years in Flamingo Park; multi-tour chair and mentor for succession.

- Julie Mullen, eight years here, three years on board; PR professional handling FPNA social media.

- John Oliveros, here since 2020, wants to involve younger homeowners and families.

Three directors go on to the second year of their terms: Susan Hill, Steve Large and Rick Reikenis.

The board members decide among themselves who will serve in each of the four offices: president, vice president, treasurer and secretary. No person can serve in an office for longer than 24 consecutive months.

Watch for an email blast this month with more details about the meeting.

President's column

Busy start to the year — and end to president's term

Dear Flamingos,

Welcome to my last president's column. When the next issue of the Flamingo Flyer goes to print, the board will have chosen a new president. For the first time in many years, the Flamingo Park Neighborhood Association board is holding an election for four open seats — with four incumbent board members running and two new candidates.

Paid members will be receiving a mail-in ballot to complete and return, or, alternately, bring to our March 24 meeting when all ballots will be tabulated.

I urge everyone who is a full member of FPNA to cast their vote. (Associate members do not have voting privileges.)

We have had a very busy few months and there is more to come.

We held a rare December "flocktail" at the restored and renovated H.G. Roosters. This event was attended by so many of you and we thank AJ and Randy at Roosters for hosting.

Ya'll came hungry! Roosters at one point ran out of food, but thank you to Blissri Bakery and Kouun for helping out with delicious cookies and sushi.

January brought us a meeting regarding the airport noise. Our elected officials — U.S. Rep Lois

On the threshold of our 17th amazing garden tour

By the time you are reading this, our 17th Flamingo Park Garden Tour — set for March 8, 1-5 p.m. — will be just days away.

Guests to the 2026 tour will enjoy nine fantastic gardens — many open for the first time — nibble on light bites from some of our favorite local restaurants, and learn all about the best spots for growing a colorful bougainvillea.

Caterers have been booked, musicians are lined up and many volunteers recruited.

Advance $70 tickets are selling online to the public, but current members of FPNA can get theirs for $60 (age 70+ is $40). At the gate, all tickets are $90.

Beverages and food and music at each location will make for a fun afternoon for our guests. Master gardeners or some garden savvy volunteers will also be on hand to answer questions.

Putting on a garden tour is a multifaceted task, requiring a great deal of organization and logistics. Still, our friendly, fun neighborhood draws guests from Palm Beach and surrounding counties as well as visitors in town from elsewhere.

The 2024 Garden Tour saw approximately 500 tickets sold. How did it all happen?

In addition to signing up host gardens, we contact neighborhood favorites for catering, sell advertising for the brochure and coordinate serving goods and coolers and

House of the Month

Since 1990, the Flamingo Park Neighborhood Association has awarded the avian icon (mostly) monthly. It comes with a heaping helping of FPNA's appreciation for ongoing "curb appeal," or for the recent rejuvenation of a home's outside appearance.

Winners receive a $25 gift certificate from Serenity Garden Tea House.

March: 621 Biscayne — Colin Dougherty and Betsy Van Dyke

April: 708 Biscayne — Melisa Lerner

If you have a neighbor you would like to nominate, email cullen@digital.net.

Hosts needed for March, April

No hosts have yet signed on for March 27 and April 24 social hours.

The board thanks our social hosts for Jan. 30 (Joel and Elizabeth Crippen) and Feb. 27 (Loren and Greg Slaydon).

Social hours are the last Friday of the month, January through October, typically in a resident's yard.

Hosts receive a stipend to offset the cost of refreshments.

If it helps to motivate someone, the board has raised the stipend to hosts to $500.

Social hours are free to paid members and $5 for each guest. An email to residents who've signed up for FPNA news blasts gives details.

Linda Cullen keeps a running list of possible hosts. To get dibs on your favorite month, email her at cullen@digital.net.

Gardening

Hedges often a good bet

Hedges are one of the most common elements in our landscapes. They can be tall or short, provide privacy, delineate space or define property lines.

Hedge fullness is usually required which comes down to plant choice and proper routine pruning to be achieved.

For decades ficus (Ficus benjamina) was the queen of the hedge plant, consisting of 80-90% of all hedges. The downfall of the ficus, as with most monocultures, was becoming susceptible to a parade of disease, insect and pesticide maladies, wiping out its vigor and eventual survival.

Practically in desperation, the landscape industry clung to a new champion, the small leaf clusia (Clusia guttifer) to replace the thousands of miles of hedges throughout South Florida. Hopefully history won't repeat itself!

However, most shrubs and even some tree species can be grown as a hedge. While driving or walking the neighborhood, notice the array of plants homeowners are utilizing to screen their properties.

You'll see tidily sheared greenish borders of podocarpus, juniper (Juniperus sp.) and Clusia. There are attractive flowering hedges of ixora, Panama rose (Rondeletia leucophylla) and bougainvillea, as well as more natural and taller screens of bamboo, white bird of paradise (Strelitzia nicolai) and traveler's palm (Ravenea madagascariensis).

For shady hedging, aralia (Polyscias sp.) and corn plants (Dracaena fragrans) are good choices.

Once the plant selection is made, installation is the next step, but beware to not make the most common pitfall — planting a hedge too close to the sidewalk. The hedge will encroach on the walkway, forcing pedestrians to shimmy by to avoid contact.

Encroachment is a code violation and can subject the homeowner to fines and the hedge to harsh pruning and maintenance, making it unsightly.

Consider how wide the hedge will grow over time and plant it back from edge of the walkway accordingly. For example, clusia is wide-growing — to 4 feet — so the minimum planting distance from walk should be half that, or 2 feet.

Podocarpus on the other hand can be easily maintained at 3 feet wide, so plant it 1-1/2 feet from sidewalk.

Pruning is most often improperly performed. The top of plants naturally receives more sunlight, so they grow more and faster at top than at the bottom.

Ideal pruning consists of shearing the hedge perfectly vertical or slightly tilted inward at the top so maximum sunlight reaches the bottom of the hedge. Notice that most hedges in neighborhoods are flared out at the top, overshadowing the bottom of the hedge reducing its fullness.

It doesn't matter which plant choice you make as much as where and how it's planted and maintained.

Concerning the "Gardening: Nuts for Coconut Palms?" article in the January/February edition of the Flyer: The high plateau coconut (B. fenestralis) is correctly known as Beccariophoenix alfredii. Also, there are two other trees, with trunks, in the parkway at 815 Ardmore Road.

Twice before a special meeting was warranted and arranged so that our neighbors could hear about, ask questions and provide feedback. First was a project at 734 Ardmore Road and then at 736 Sunset Road.

And then Feb. 19, residents gathered to hear about the proposed construction at 501

The plans for this four-story commercial project were set to be presented to the city's Historic Preservation Board on Feb. 24 as this Flyer was at the printer.

Block party a huge hit

On Jan. 31, we gathered at Howard Park for the wonderful annual Flamingo Park block party. Despite the chilly weather, the turnout and energy were fantastic.

It was especially nice to see not only our Flamingo Park neighbors, but also friends from Grandview Heights and Sunshine Park. Events like this are a great opportunity to connect with folks we don't always see and a reminder of how connected our communities really are.

We enjoyed incredible food from Pig Beach and live music by Tradewinds, which kept the atmosphere lively all evening.

Face painting by Face Art

by Daisy was a huge hit with both kids and adults, adding a colorful touch to the night.

A big thank you to Tanya Lewicki, Susan Hill, Gregg and Rebecca Weiss, Julie Mullen, Rick Reikenis, Kim O'Donnell, Lee Geoffrey, Lindsey Diamond and Katherine Hely for all their hard work in planning and ensuring the event ran smoothly.

These gatherings truly take a team effort, and we're grateful for everyone who helps make them happen.

We're already looking forward to the next one!

How the 500 block became a zoning district

What is Flamingo Park's Railroad Transition District?

The Railroad Transition District was created by Flamingo Park for Flamingo Park as an overlay zoning district.

It was created to be a buffer from the FEC railroad tracks immediately to its east and encompasses properties (in gray on the map) immediately west of the FEC RR, from south of Park Place to north of the south side of Claremore Drive.

It came about when, in 1992, FPNA succeeded in stopping a city-initiated Commercial Incentive District zoning along the railroad tracks on our eastern border. "Rid CID" was our battle cry.

First, the properties — with their existing commercial uses — were rezoned as single-family residential, in hopes that the rezoning would spur conversion of these nonresidential uses to new homes.

Yet, after one of the largest housing booms ever in Florida, none of the nonresidential properties were converted.

Meanwhile, the existing properties were prohibited from improving their sites or enlarging their businesses. Stagnation was the result.

Residents wanted to create a path for rejuvenation.

Starting in 1994, FPNA put together a committee ("the 500 Block Committee") to draft a variety of proposals for FPNA to present to its residents, and ultimately to the city, to consider a comprehensive road map that would (1) encourage neighborhood-friendly businesses to invest in the area and (2) discourage incompatible businesses from staying.

The committee was comprised of Flamingo Park residents: Linda Cullen, Realtor and then FPNA president; Steve Roy, architect; Kirk Olney, landscape architect; and Marty Minor, city planner.

Over the next 10-plus years, it became obvious that a special zoning overlay was needed.

Internal FPNA discussions covered the progression of ideas. Palettes of allowable uses in the zoning district were created and agreed to by FPNA residents.

Architectural standards were developed. Standards for setbacks, building height and lot coverage, as well as requirements for open space landscape requirements were formulated.

Meetings were held with WPB city planners.

Owners of all of the parcels in gray were met with. Ultimately they were all in agreement with creating a special zoning district.

The city agreed to make the request city-initiated, eliminating the cost to FPNA if FPNA had asked for the rezoning.

This involved traffic studies, level of service, text amendment review and more.

The city then sent this back to FPNA for final approval.

Finally, on Feb. 17, 2016, the West Palm Beach Planning Board approved the code revision case and the City Commission made the adoption official shortly thereafter.

tables for the hosts. We buy and deliver beverages for each home as well.

A legion of volunteers — for pickups and delivery, help serving refreshments and directing traffic in gardens, handling check-in at the gate and cleanup and returns afterward — help make this event a true success for FPNA.

What's it all for?

- Pride! The chance to rightly show off the result of hot, dirty days in the "yard," converting it into a welcoming outdoor living space (for cooler days and nights!). It is seriously gratifying to have dozens of visitors thank you for access to your private paradise and compliment you on the beauty that you and Mother Nature have wrought.

- Money! Tours — garden and home — have always been the single largest source of revenue for FPNA. Second is membership dues (hint, hint).

That cash pays for the tree trimmers that we hire to tend to our great canopy; maintenance of the hardscape features we own (street poles, corner trash bins, entry island monuments); production of this Flyer; social hours and block parties and so much more.

Pitch in to help or, if you are taking the tour, enjoy being part of a terrific day.

President, from Page 1

Frankel, County Commissioner Gregg Weiss and City Commissioner Christina Lambert — spoke about the situation and how things have gotten a lot better, as I'm sure you'll agree. The neighborhood made such an outcry, and we were heard. Talk about the mouse that roared!

Later in January, Joel and Elizabeth Crippen hosted the January "flocktail" in their magical and magnificent garden. This is always a highly attended social. It was great seeing so many of you. Thank you, Crippens, for a wonderful evening.

As if that were not enough, the very next day we held our 2026 Block Party at Howard Park. I think all of you who braved the elements will agree that this was one of the more memorable block parties. We had wind, we had rain, and freezing cold, none of which deterred so many of you. It was wonderful to see so many families with their children having a great time.

A very special thanks goes out to Lauren Sheridan for spearheading this affair. This was Lauren's first go at organizing the block party and she hit it out of the ballpark!

February brought us the neighborhood yard sale extravaganza in which so many of you participated. Who knew we all had such wonderful treasures? Victoria Preuss has been organizing the FPNA yard sale for many years and it is run like a well-oiled machine. Thank you, Victoria, for once again making this such a success.

Our February "flocktail" took place at the incredible home of Greg and Loren Slaydon. Mardi Gras themed! Do we know how to have fun or what? Thank you, Greg and Loren, for another wonderful event.

Our next big event is the Garden Tour, which will take place Sunday, March 8, from 1 to 5 p.m. We have nine incredible gardens lined up, many of which have never been on the garden tour.

We have special ticket rates for card-carrying members of FPNA, so if you want to attend, please renew your membership at www.flamingopark.org (QR on back page!) and reach out to me about securing your tickets in advance.

We are assembling an army of volunteers for this major event. We can never have too many volunteers, so if you wish to lend a hand, please let me know. Be aware that if you volunteer and thereby cannot tour the gardens on the 8th, you need not despair. We hold a follow-up tour the next Sunday just for the hosts and volunteers who were tethered to one garden on the day of the event.

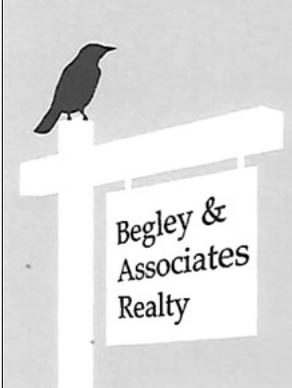

This is a fun outing where everyone tours each garden as a group. We will end up at Raphael and Lois Clemente's house after the after-tour for food and refreshments.

And speaking of volunteers, we'll have the return of Volunteer Spotlight recognition soon. Check out the May/June Flamingo Flyer for more news on that.

Whew! Life in Flamingo Park is never dull. Don't you all just love living here? No other neighborhood compares.

It is you, the Flamingos, who make this such a special place to live. Thank you all.

New flight noise monitors sought in PBIA rules

At the Jan. 22 meeting of the Citizens Commission on Airport Noise, committee members approved the installation of fixed-location noise monitors and asked airport staff to work with the town of Palm Beach to identify a location for a portable monitor as well. Further discussion sought the best location for another permanent monitor on the island.

On Feb. 16 the Palm Beach Post reported that Palm Beach Town Hall has identified potential sites and has sent the list to Palm Beach County's Department of Airports. Airport staff were to present to a CCAN meeting their location recommendations for monitors on Feb. 26, as this Flyer was in production. The CCAN meeting can be watched after the fact online at <https://vimeo.com/event/5730035>.

Resident launches PBInoise.com

A Palm Beach resident wrote to Commissioner Gregg Weiss that they purchased a professional-grade noise monitoring device and then built an application to correlate the noise spikes with the flight information from Flight Aware, a constantly updating flight data website (<https://www.flightaware.com/live/airport/KPBI>).

"The devices measures an important FAA noise metric called Day-Night Average Sound Level. If monitoring shows that DNL exceeds 65 dB, it places significant pressure on the FAA to act," wrote the resident.

"For Palm Beach residents, a 24-hour average hides the acute reality of our skies," the site reads.

The day-night average sound level, or DNL, measures aviation noise over a full 24-hour period "and smooths it out into a single average. ... When you look at a 24-hour DNL, the quiet hours of the night pull the overall average down, often keeping the daily number just below the FAA's 65 dB threshold for regulatory action."

A technically "compliant" daily average means nothing, the site says, when a neighborhood is subjected to "concentrated bombardments of aircraft noise that disrupt normal life."

The dashboard can be viewed at PBInoise.com; be sure to visit the site and look at the subpages that go into more detail.

They are interested in expanding data collection by adding three or four locations right under the flight path in the worst-affected West Palm Beach neighborhoods for new noise-monitoring devices.

Help gather data

So if you live directly under the flight path, and have an open view of the sky for a small, 6-inch-long device, get in touch. There is no cost to you and someone will help install the device. In return you will get accurate data proving how serious the problem is.

If you're interested in this, send an email to district2@pbc.gov, include your address and phone number.

Damage to property

As previously reported, Airport Director Laura Beebe provided resources if you believe you've suffered damage to your property as a result of the current flight restrictions. Go to the FAA Aviation Noise Complaint and Inquiry Response web portal (www.faa.gov/ancir) or call 202-267-3521.

Voice noise complaints

Report noise complaints to PBIA, online at www.planenoise.com/pbi/

Tell the Trump administration how you feel about the flight path changes.

Option 1: Use the online form found at <https://www.whitehouse.gov/contact/>.

Option 2: Call the White House comments line at 202-456-6213. You give feedback, express concerns, or share thoughts on policies or issues. Staff members (or a recording system) collect and review these comments.

Option 3: Send a letter to the White House, 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. NW, Washington, DC 20500. Include your return address on both the letter and the envelope.

This information was drawn from the ninth newsletter update by Commissioner Gregg Weiss.

You're welcome to email (District2@pbc.gov) or call Gregg Weiss' county office at 561-355-2202.

Historic cemetery

New nonprofit sees Woodlawn as a space for new life

When Woodlawn opened in 1904, during the Victorian era, cemeteries frequently also served as public gardens, offering tranquil, landscaped areas for remembrance and passive recreation.

In this tradition, Henry Flagler had 14 acres of pineapple fields cleared and designed Woodlawn as a place of final rest that invited the living to visit, stroll and picnic among its beautiful, parklike grounds.

It was so grand that it was touted in a St. Augustine newspaper as a destination to visit.

Today, after several expansions, Woodlawn comprises 17 acres and is adjacent to downtown West Palm Beach, across from the Norton Museum of Art on Dixie Highway. It sits in the middle of a city that continues to “grow up” around it.

While individuals continue to be buried in Woodlawn Cemetery, cars zoom past it, and visitors are sparse compared to its early days.

A recently formed nonprofit, The Friends Of Woodlawn, embraces a historically bold vision for the cemetery: a place that welcomes the living with a parklike atmosphere.

Guiding this return, the organization has engaged Foster & Partners, a global studio for sustainable architecture, urbanism and engineering, in concert with engineering, planning and design firm Kimley-Horn.

A transformed Woodlawn will welcome a restored tree canopy, new footpaths and roads, enhanced gardens, sculptures, and an iconic trellis structure for gatherings.

It is envisioned that Woodlawn will again become a place for picnicking, watching butterflies and listening to birds. A place that honors those who have gone before us and history.

Additionally, it is envisioned that Woodlawn will become a place that offers small-scale programming, complementing its existence as a cemetery with small-scale classical music performances, poetry readings, art and more.

A cemetery that serves as a park and hosts cultural events is not a unique idea: Many European cemeteries and a handful of cemeteries in the U.S. operate as multipurpose places with programming, such as Highgate Cemetery in London and Green-Wood Cemetery in Brooklyn.

To accommodate gatherings, Foster & Partners has proposed a trellis-like structure with four vast petals, replacing the current central roundabout. This garden-imbued structure defines the space and creates an enchanting place.

To date, the organization has raised funds to support design work, including planning and engineering. With these funds, we have developed a conceptual plan and completed the technical work (survey and acutely identifying gravesites with ground-penetrating radar) to craft an inspired and informed landscape plan, which was recently submitted to the city for review.

A detailed presentation about this project will be made at the Flamingo Park membership meeting on March 24.

See ceramicists work

The Ceramic League of the Palm Beaches is a nonprofit organization that has been in the county for 55 years. The CLPB is a community of artists that creates programs that promote ceramics culture, exchange of ideas, reflection and sharing of knowledge.

Ceramic League of the Palm Beaches

This celebration of International Women's Day is an educational tour of ceramic arts and interior design with live ceramic art makers showing their art and how they make it: hand-building sculpture, painting on tiles, relief tile making, mosaic making and throwing on a potter's wheel.

Longtime Flamingo Park resident and former FPNA board member Nazaré Feliciano is on the board of the Ceramic League. She and other league members in Flamingo Park invite all interested neighbors to join them for this event and see Nazare's ceramics as well as league members in action at 502 Palm St., Suites No. 1 and 2, on Saturday, March 7.

CLPB is celebrating International Women's Day on March 7. From 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., ceramic artists — members of the CLPB — come together with Nido Home, Casa Ceramica and Bo Sham Beaux to show, educate and demonstrate how ceramic art is an integral part of home life, and has been for centuries.

Freshen your closet with ReDep

ReFashion Weekend at Resource Depot is around the corner.

Tickets are required for access to the curated selection of gently worn ladies wear and accessories.

Before anyone else, go March 6, 5:30-8:30 p.m., and sip some bubbly, enjoy light bites and exploring racks of incredible finds. (Ticket $75)

Next opportunity is the Saturday Morning Style Rush, March 7, 9 a.m. to noon. Shop two floors of women's clothing, shoes and accessories, from designer boutique items to the Fill-A-Bag section. (Ticket $50)

Not an early riser? Opt for Saturday Afternoon Style Edit, from 2 to 5 p.m. Still score amazing sustainable fashion finds. Shop the boutique and Fill-A-Bag section while enjoying surprise deals and the thrill of hunting for one-of-a-kind pieces. (Ticket $35)

And lastly, Monday March 9 get Fashion by the Pound from 9 a.m. to noon. Leave with as many fab finds as you like and pay just $2 per pound. A $5 ticket will get you in for Monday's wind-down.

ReFashion Weekend is the perfect chance to score stylish treasures while giving pre-loved fashion a new home.
