

Hello everybody!

It's with a heavy, sad heart that I bring you news about a member of our bUneke family. Jennifer's father-in-law has crossed over and I hope you will join me in sending condolences to the entire East family. The East millennials have been blessed to have had their patriarch in their lives for all of their childhoods and into their adult lives and I know his presence in their lives will be deeply missed.

Tonight, Monday April 29, 9pm ET, we unveil Season 2 of Coffee or Tea? No Phones Allowed! If you can't watch, due to time differences or you need quiet at that time, please try to log in and mute the sound. You don't have to actually watch, but we get the view counts. We really need to log as many views as possible within the first hour of the premiere. Please, tell your friends and ask them to join us in the online chat! You can set YouTube to remind you when the show starts.

Our Board of Directors has expanded and is ready to help us take this organization to the next level! If you thought PEACECORE was amazing last year, just wait until you see what we have in store next! I'll be asking you all to step up to help us expand on our bThe Change theme. No matter where you live, there will be things you can do to help us evolve and I want to say thank you in advance. You are helping us educate hundreds of thousands of readers, listeners and viewers!

I'd like to give special thanks and kudos to Jennifer East, Donnie Crawford, Chantel Eubanks, Chloe

McElroy and Tyrel Earnest for helping out at the bUneke tent on Earth Day in Orlando, Florida earlier this month. Super thanks for the improvised dance show with the IBEX Puppetry troupe. I know Jennifer is working feverishly to get all the amazing interviews and videos uploaded.

Tyrel, words cannot adequately express my sincere appreciation and gratitude for your participation with Jennifer and me at the Authors for Authors Conference in West Melbourne, Florida. You gave up your entire Sunday and single-handedly facilitated 14 fascinating interviews. Some of them were challenging, at best; infuriating in some cases and you never lost your professionalism. You hang in there like the pro you are and if that weren't enough, you helped Yvonne, Jennifer and me load our cars after the event – and you made us laugh.

After much deliberation, Jennifer and I have decided to follow some of the advice we often give. We need to set boundaries, understand our limitations, be true to ourselves and achieve a solid work/life balance. She and I have worked many, many hours each month to be sure the magazine is released on the first, while also managing the administrative tasks, podcasts, events, the webisodes and still more. So, we have decided to change to a quarterly format for bUneke Magazine, at least through the end of 2019. Because, every now and then, we need to breathe and do something not related to managing the organization.

If any of you would like to earn some money while promoting this charity, let me know. I have some tools you can use to sell ads and sponsorships. You will earn 25% of any sales you make. It's not difficult, but it often requires following up with people, so you'd need to pay attention to details and keep a calendar.

Here is an overview of the PEACECORE-sponsored events we have planned for May. More may be added as we progress through the month. Remember to check the TEAM ONLY Page on <https://buneke.org> to see what's happening next and to get more details about these events. Also, be sure to email me YOUR birthday so we can add it to the calendar.
