

Out Of Love

A Fighting Chance

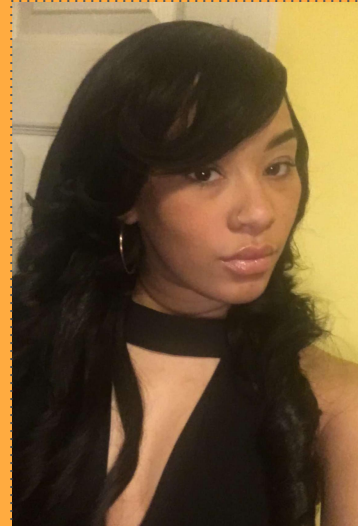

Cecelia S. Aiken, CEO

Joslyn L Aiken-Fletcher

Our Team

Jessica M Aiken

Claudia C. Aiken

Out of struggle comes many sacrifices, our Executive Director and many of the staff have empowering stories to tell. We have seen first hand the trauma and the long term effects that poverty and the lack of structure and support cause. Our goal is to help level the playing field, create opportunities for enrichment, growth, and a sense of accomplishment. To help, motivate and empower people and give the downtrodden a fighting chance!

Our History

To some this bench may just be a bench, yet to others it may be a welcome invitation to sit and soak up the scenery after a great walk through a lovely park or after a day strolling the malls or amusement parks, yet to others, it may be a last stop where they break down contemplating ending their lives, or even as home to someone without a home. This is why we are here!

Our cause is to make the simple things simple again, to instill joy and hope into others and let a bench be a benchmark instead of a seat, a place of elevation and not depreciation and a focal point of things to aspire towards. Out Of Love got started with a thought. A very sad and distraught mother of 3 had a vision and vowed that if she could change the life of just one family who has suffered the shame, stigmas and guilt of being less fortunate, that she would do it. Later in life she found that some of the very same issues that plague the less fortunate lead to other issues, including mental illness and substance abuse and thought; why not help those who want and need it most? Poverty, the lack of structure, inequalities and fear prevent so many from being helped. Out Of Love , A Fighting Chance, is a necessary tool that can enrich communities, celebrate life, increase morale and community spirit and empower neighborhoods with the spirit of change and inclusion to make the world a happier and better place by changing or saving a life and giving a, mother, brother or other a hand

Our Mission

Our Mission is to provide a Supportive Living and Resource Center to help disadvantaged, displaced, dysfunctional persons to live in a safe structured environment by providing Mental, Social and Interactive Resources and Long Term Housing to displaced individuals. Engaging Single Struggling Low Income Parents with tools, resources and supportive services to aid them in taking care of their family and decreasing the stress thresholds of the two categories alike. The reason Out Of Love selected these two areas of interest are due to living in a world affected by those issues, having been in the shoes of those who struggle and know what it feels like first hand makes our mission a monumental why.