LCCM June Collection ~ CANNED VEGETABLES ~
Don't forget to bring extra canned items to Church on Sunday, June 2nd for our monthly Altar collection

Then I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and the first earth had passed away, and the sea was no more. And I saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a loud voice from the throne saying, "Behold, the dwelling place of God is with man. He will dwell with them, and they will be his people, and God himself will be with them as their God. He will wipe away every tear from their eyes, and death shall be no more; neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain anymore, for the former things have passed away." (Revelation 21:1-4)

We all have our little "guilty pleasures" - you know, the escapist romances, the soap operas, the sci-fi marathons, the video games, the cheesy '80s movies. For me, it's Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure, a silly little late-80s movie about two California teens who, through time travel and music, change the world. Bill & Ted is known for giving Keanu Reeves his start, and for playing with the already silly idea of time travel in a pretty, well, late-80s and "most excellent" way. If you haven't seen it, let me spoil the movie's ultimate message by saying, "Be excellent to each other" and "Party on, dudes!" Like I said, "guilty pleasure" - maybe Laura would say, "Not guilty enough..." I particularly love the theme song from Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure, a song titled "In Time" by Robbie Robb. It's one of those "accidentally Christian" songs into which you often run. By accidentally Christian, what I mean is a song or poem or story that, whether intentionally or not, has a Christian message. Here's why I say "In Time" is accidentally Christian; the lyrics say:

No fear, no loss, no tears, the time is almost here. Our dreams will all come true, I promise you, 'Cause I can see for miles and miles . . . One heart, one soul, one mind, Our eyes will not be blind. We'll see this rain come down without this sound, We can all, we can all break free. In time we'll be dancing in the streets all night!

Tell me that's not a redeemed world Robbie Robb is singing about - a world like the one John describes in Revelation 21, where everything is made new by the One who makes all things new, a world where the streets are for dancing, voices are for singing, and eyes are for seeing the King of Glory face to face! Now, if I could change one lyric from "In Time", I'd say in that second stanza, "We'll see his reign come down, and with a trumpet sound, we can all, we can all break free! In time..." But that's just me.

How many times do we run across "accidentally Christian" messages in the world around us? Whether it's the theme song from a guilty-pleasure 80s movie or a character in a video game or TV series, whether it's a series of allusions in a poem or book we've been reading, how often do we run across messages that reinforce or echo the Gospel of Jesus, the story of the Bible? Not only do we have a culture that - at least for the last 400 years - has been saturated with the Church & the Bible, we also have the presence of God himself, the Holy Spirit, who pours out what we call "common grace". That simply means that the Spirit of God is at work in the world in general, helping people - even artists, writers, & singers - pick up on, whether they intend to or not, the message that, "God so loves this world that He gave it His only Son..."

So here's the bottom line: How do we, the Church, respond to the "accidentally Christian" messages around us? Do we recognize them? Do we appreciate the work of the Holy Spirit, do we celebrate the work of the Church Fathers & Mothers that made this possible? Better yet, do we take advantage of these messages when we interact with our non-Christian friends, coworkers, & family? Do we point out, when we're watching Bill & Ted, "Hey, that song sounds like what God's going to do at the end of time"? Do we say to a friend, when we're reading The Lord of the Rings, "Did you know that J.R.R. Tolkien was a Christian and a friend with C.S. Lewis?" When we're riding in a car with our friends, and Audioslave's song "I am the highway" comes on, do we mention, "This sounds just like what David says in Psalm 139, when he's struggling with God's presence"?

So, how can we do this? How are we going to be able to both recognize and comment on accidentally Christian messages to the people we'd like to introduce to Jesus? First, by knowing the Bible. We need to have a working knowledge of the message of the Bible, a firm grasp of the Gospel especially, so much so that we can't help but notice. Be in love with the story of Jesus forgiving you! Second, you'll never have a conversation with a non-Christian about an accidentally Christian message unless you have non-Christian friends. Yes, the Bible has several warnings about how bad company corrupts good character—so choose these friends carefully. But the message of the Bible is resoundingly this: The Church reaches the Lost by living among the Lost. Make friends, and introduce those friends to Jesus.

Finally, we can connect the accidentally Christian to the non-Christians we know best of all by connecting to & following the Holy Spirit's leading. He'll help us make the right friends, he'll give us the insights & opportunities, he'll guide us through those conversations - and all the while, he'll use our words, our studies, our prayers in order to reach people with their Savior Jesus' love - even if he has to use Bill & Ted in order to do so. Praise the Spirit for his work!

Blessings in Jesus' name - Pastor Chris

News from the Session...

Greetings, and welcome to summer! We've already suffered through record heat the last few weeks of May, and God willing, things will cool down so we may enjoy part of the summer. As we crawl into the summer, remember we have vacation bible school coming up which will be hosted by the Methodist Church. We have other exciting events planned for kids that we are working on confirming for the summer as well so please do consistently check the Church calendar and of course we'll keep everyone abreast of those events. A big thank you to those who came and assisted in the "Church Cleanup" just a few weeks ago too. We cut shrubs, power washed, cleaned interior walls, painted, replaced lights, cleaned out the kitchen, and many, many other housekeeping matters to keep the Church looking spring and spry. If you see anything else which needs attention, please continue to let Elders or members of the Session know. Have a blessed June!

In Christ, Charlie Ipock, Clerk of Session

We are very excited about our Sunday school class for our 20+ Younger Adults

With the leadership of Rev Parnell and many young members of the church, we will discuss and analyze topics and issues pertinent to Younger Adults, such as: marriage, parenthood, work/life balance, and study the Word through various lenses and mediums for practical application in today's ever evolving world. We will have monthly dinners, outside of Church, to encourage others in the community to witness the power of the Word in a more relaxed and recognizable venue.

April 2019

Scripture comes to the Gungu people

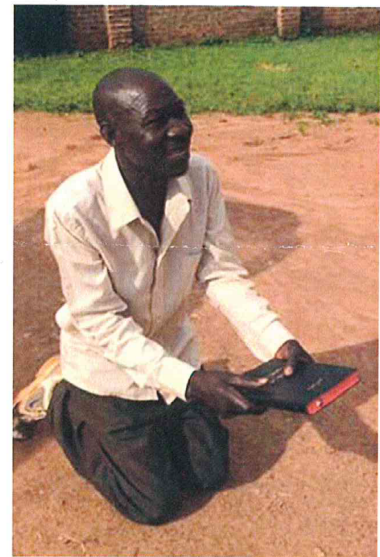

In a village in Uganda, the guard on duty at the local radio station opened the gate and greeted the team arriving with New Testaments. He eagerly watched as a young radio presenter opened a box and took out a copy of the recently published Scriptures. The guard had heard the excitement surrounding the Gungu New Testament the day before, when a special event had been held to dedicate the newly printed books. There, many people had heard God's Word in their language for the first time, and because many were inspired to buy copies, the team had run out and had to send to a nearby town for more.

Now, whispering, the guard asked his colleague to read a verse from Matthew. The presenter read the verse aloud while the guard listened closely: "What do you benefit if you gain the whole world but lose your own soul? Is anything worth more than your soul?" (Matthew 16:26 NLT). The guard urged the man to read it again, which he did.

Seeing the guard's interest, the team decided to give him a New Testament. The man leapt with joy, knelt on the ground, raised his hands in the air with excitement, laughed and hugged the Bible to his chest. "I've done so many bad things in my life," he said, "but now salvation has come to me. The Lord is with me!"

Still kneeling and swaying, he kept thanking them for the New Testament, and he called out the name of Jesus with great joy. Then he got up and started dancing spontaneously with the radio presenter, unable to hide his excitement — a moving and a powerful testimony to the impact of God's Word in the mother tongue. Someone asked if the guard knew how to read. "No," said the presenter, "but now he will be asking the young people in his home to read that Bible to him."

Made in God's image

I have often reflected on what it means to be made in God's image. One of the most fundamental affirmations in Christian belief is the doctrine of the Trinity, that God exists eternally in three persons, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. This means that for all eternity God has existed in relationship, and at the center of such relationships is love, personality, and communication. The executive director of SIL, Dr. Michel Kenmogne, has pointed out that communication in language is one of the features of our bearing God's image—that we communicate, just as the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit have always communicated within the community of the Trinity. For us, just as with the Trinity, communication in language is at the center of personhood and of love.

God is a communicator—the original communicator. Hebrews 11:1-2 tells us that in the past God communicated through prophets in many ways, but in these last days he has spoken through his Son. The Word of God, the Bible, is the record of God's long history of communicating with us, as well as the record of the life and message of the Son of God. Translating the Bible into the languages of the linguistic minorities of the world is the goal toward which our organization works. Thank you for whatever part you have had in our efforts toward reaching that goal!

Update on the Lectionary project

I have been working for much of the last three years on the Old Testament Lectionary Exegetical Summary Project, providing translation helps for pastors and missionaries wanting to translate the Old Testament portions that are read each Sunday in liturgical churches (such as Catholic, Lutheran, Anglican, etc.). Of the 154 readings, 45 have been published electronically (all from Isaiah). Another 60 are ready to be typeset and published, 30 are near ready for typesetting, and 19 are in the beginning stages. I have authored 46 of the readings, and proof-read or edited 89 of the others, which represents thousands of pages of text. A few months ago I received an email from a Catholic official in the Vatican who assured me that they were enthusiastic about the project and were willing to assist in any way that might become necessary. This is encouraging. Your ongoing prayers for the project would be appreciated.

Philip is now a United States Marine

Philip left home on January 22 for Marine Corps boot camp, which is twelve weeks of mentally and physically demanding training. It culminated in 54 hours of field testing known as The Crucible, during which recruits get little sleep and endure considerable strenuous physical activity, including hiking 47 miles while carrying up to 45 pounds of gear. He graduated from boot camp on April 19.

Then on April 30 Philip will go to a Marine base near San Diego for advanced infantry training. We ask your prayer that God would guide and protect him wherever he goes.
