

Dry My Eyes

Shadows frown upon me, eerie voices fill my head
In company I'm lonely, though my heart beats, I am dead

I can't step off this treadmill, will I ever scale this hill?
and my smiles, they're all untrue

My eyes work in grayscale, happiness is just a word Fall and fail's my sorry-tale and my pain remains unheard

I can't step off this treadmill, will I ever scale this hill?
and my smiles, they're all untrue
(Take me, oh come and save me,
embrace me, oh please don't hate me
face me, help, I'm crying, dry my eyes)
Life seems strange and undeserved, I feel lost and bewildered still, I keep these smiles for you

Sleep to stow away my grief, feeling loss and disbelief Mind and soul always at war Am I intruding on this earth? Does my presence have a for?
What's to fix, there is no cure

I can't step off this treadmill, will I ever scale this hill?
and my smiles, they're all untrue
(Take me, oh come and save me,
embrace me, oh please don't hate me
face me, help, I'm crying, dry my eyes)
Life seems strange and undeserved, I feel lost and bewildered still, I keep my smiles for you
