Any content on my website or in my physical shop including but not limited to text, graphics, images and other material is for informational or educational purposes only, and is not intended to substitute professional medical advice, therapy or consultations with healthcare professionals for treatment, diagnosis or any other care plan.

Our products contain essential oils, butters from natural nuts, herbs, seeds, fruit and other natural/organic ingredients.

If you have any known allergies, please read each label and ingredients list carefully before using. If sensitivity or irritation occurs, please immediately discontinue use.

We recommend anyone with skin sensitivity apply to a small patch of skin first to ensure there is no irritation.

If you are pregnant, trying to conceive, or nursing, please talk to your doctor before using any new products including anything from The Farmacy Ranch.

Anyone or I associated with The Farmacy Ranch will never make claims to cure, treat or prevent any disease or medical issue. All information is based on my experiences and observations.

If you are uncertain about a certain product or ingredient, especially if you take prescription drugs, have a diagnosed condition or allergies, I recommend discussing your concerns with a trusted health care professional to determine what is best for you.
