

CAITLIN CLARK THANKS IOWA CITY COMMUNITY WITH FOUR $22,000 GRANTS THROUGH THE CAITLIN CLARK FOUNDATION

- Clark's #22 jersey will be retired by the University of Iowa on Feb. 2 -

January 29, 2025—The Caitlin Clark Foundation today announced four $22,000 grants for Iowa charities that inspired Clark during her time at the University of Iowa. The recipients are:

- The University of Iowa Children's Hospital
- Coralville Community Food Pantry \(CCFP\)
- Boys and Girls Club of the Corridor
- Special Olympics Iowa – East Central

“One of my favorite things about Iowa City is the way the community is connected and how everyone supports each other. It is something I felt during my time here and is important to me that I stay connected with. I am proud to be a part of each of these organizations’ efforts and the meaningful impact they provide for the people of Iowa,” said Clark.

Clark has previously engaged with the four organizations, whether providing product donations, participating in events and fundraising efforts, or visiting the Children's Hospital, one of her favorite activities as a student-athlete.

Mary Coffin, President of the Caitlin Clark Foundation, added, “The foundation is thrilled to support these organizations given their alignment with our mission statement and the three core pillars of uplifting youth through education, nutrition, and sports. Caitlin is an example for all of us of the impact one interaction can have and the legacy of uplifting others.”

These grants come ahead of Clark's #22 jersey retirement ceremony at the Iowa Hawkeyes women's basketball game against USC on February 2nd.
