Councilwoman Cindy Bass:

Brings Good News To North 22nd St.

Thera Martin-Milling
Allegheny West Foundation

It is always good to hear about redevelopment projects in the community. Smart people understand that redevelopment in a community that's been hard hit by industries leaving and unemployment at a rate well above anyone's comfort zone, redevelopment, translated can be a win-win for everyone. By everyone, we mean area residents, business owners large and small, community leaders and others, who can benefit. When old buildings are redeveloped, that's a good thing. When vacant buildings are gutted out and rebuilt, that some progress. When streets are kept clean, and police walk a regular beat in key areas, residents and merchants alike feel more safe. Redevelopment, or lack there-of can make or break a community.

So it was with great interest that a number of representatives from the business community on North 22nd Street, residents from the area and community leaders, came together for a meeting at the Panati Recreation Center, Monday, March 31, 2014. Approximately sixty people were in attendance, including guest speakers. The purpose was to receive an update from City Councilwoman Cindy Bass and from Denis Murphy of the city of Philadelphia Commerce Department about two good news projects. Special thanks to Councilwoman Bass for speaking up for this area of her eighth council district and fighting to get some much needed funding for North 22nd Street written into the 2014-2015 city budget.

"I am so excited that changes are coming to Panati", City Councilwoman Cindy Bass stated. "The new playground will be

The Changing Landscape of North 22nd Street

Desirae Holland
Allegheny West Foundation

Patrons, merchants and congested traffic hastily moved up and down North 22nd Street corridor with the sun at its peak on a Friday afternoon in March. Tucked in between two larger storefronts located at 2849 North 22nd Street, Fe-Male Fashion Discount Apparel invited potential shoppers into the store with bold "big sale" signs adorned on the outside of the store. Former president of the North 22nd Street Merchants Association for the Corridor for 20-plus-years and owner of Fe-Male Fashion Discount Apparel, Alvin Little discusses the ways he's been able to maintain a profitable business on the corridor for over 30 years with the corridor's changing economy, landscape and customer base.

"It used to be a complete ghost town on North 22nd Street," Linda Hamiel, a former employee of Fe-Male Fashion Discount Apparel mentioned. An employee for Little in the early 90s for six years, Hamiel explained that North 22nd Street corridor was deserted with empty stores, but has progressed tremendously and now thrives with diverse businesses.

The success of any commercial corridor relies heavily on the residents supporting the local businesses. Briefly explaining the history of the surrounding area, Little mentioned that the community surrounding North 22nd Street corridor started a downward spiral in the late 60s. During the late 60s and early 70s, the area surrounding North 22nd Street corridor was predominately Irish and Jewish Americans, with over 10,000 people working in the area at the local factories. The economy went through a

Community Meetings Are Happening in Our Area

Staff Report

Allegheny West Foundation

The Community Action Group hosted a lively meeting on February 11th, despite cold temperatures, ice and a little snow. The meeting was attended by upwards of 35 people and President of CAG, Darece Williford took the opportunity to encourage the group to do some fund raising so that over the summer of 2014 a special activity or two just may well become a reality for residents in the CAG area. The Community Action group operates generally from 30th and Allegheny back to 26th and Allegheny on the side streets in that area. Their goal is to keep residents informed about issues of concern such as real estate taxes, health care, identifying jobs for young and old alike, and staying on top of trying to keep the neighborhood clean.

Meanwhile, the RAH Civic Association, (Ridge Allegheny Hunting Park Civic Association) hosted its first meeting since last Fall on March 27th and over 65 people poured into the Saint James School auditorium to catch up on all the news of that community. Rosalie Cooper, President of the RAH Civic Association invited State Representatives Rosita C. Youngblood and State Representative Vanessa Lowery Brown to attend the meeting and share information about services provided in their offices. Businessman Adrian Moody, Esq., Business woman Tanya Rose Davis and the owner of a new tattoo Shop in the RAH Service area were all special guests at the meeting. There was also a representative from the Abbottsford Family Health Center on hand and lots of great networking and neighbors simply coming back together after a long, cold, hard winter in Philadelphia. At last, Spring has arrived. RAH will meet again with community members and residents on Thursday, April 24th at 6:30pm at Saint James School, 3217 W. Clearfield Street. The next day, Friday, April 25th, RAH Civic Association will hold a meeting with business owners from the area, 11am-1pm at the same location, Saint James School. A complimentary lunch will be served at the business owners meeting. The purpose is to bring business owners together with community leaders to work together for the improvement of this area of the city.

Congratulations go out to all of the Block Captains in the Allegheny West area of North Philadelphia who participated in the 7th Annual City of Philadelphia, Annual Outdoor Clean-

Up, co-sponsored by Philadelphia More beautiful Committee and mayor Michael A. Nutter. Many blocks did in fact participate on Saturday, April 5th and at the end of all the clean-up efforts, the community did look much better. Mark Green, 38th Ward Leader and Block Captain of the 3300 block of W. Allegheny Avenue says he's very proud of the way he saw neighbors get out, roll up their sleeves and work together to sweep up and clean-up.

Our next 2 meeting dates are Tuesday, May 13, 2014, 7:00 p.m. and Tuesday, June 10, 2014, 7:00 p.m. Devereaux United Methodist Church, 26th & Allegheny Avenue.

In May we will be talking to candidates for the position of State Representative for the 194th District. Pam DeLissio is the incumbent and Dave Henderson is candidate.

Planning Now for 2014 Community Day Festival

The planning and work has begun for the annual North 22nd Street Community Day Festival. The event this year, will take place on Saturday, June 28th with a rain date of Saturday, July 12, 2014. The festival will happen from 11am-5pm from 22nd and Lehigh down to 22nd and Clearfield. The purpose of the festival is an opportunity for the business owners along the business corridor of

N. 22nd Street to say "thank you", to the residents and leaders of this area of North Philadelphia. Business owners want residents and community leaders alike, to understand that they appreciate your business.

So to that end, for many years now, the business association on N. 22nd Street, in conjunction with support from the Allegheny West Foundation, have led the way to produce this event. This year on June 28th there will be free rides for children such as a moon walk and a train ride or giant slide and other attractions such as face painters.

There will be an Information Row for adults to learn about city services, and non-profit groups that can help. We'll have a mini-health fair with free health screenings and an entertainment stage that will be popping all day long because entertainment is being booked by D.J. Rodney Hamiel and ShadowTrax Productions.

If you want to perform on stage, be a vendor for the day, or have a community non-profit table set up with information to share, call Thera Milling at Allegheny West Foundation at 215-225-1019.

Keeping It Clean In Our Communities

Kiesha Garner

The City of Philadelphia now has some new mattress collection guidelines: Mattresses and box springs collected at the curb or accepted at City Sanitation Centers must be bagged and sealed in mattress disposal bags to prevent the spread of bed bugs. Bags are available at many retail stores or online. If you have any questions about disposing of mattresses and box springs, you can go on line at PhiladelphiaStreets.com/mattress-removal or call 311.

Meanwhile another way to help get some positive clean-up projects underway this spring and through the summer, is to think of PMBC. The Philadelphia More Beautiful Committee (PMBC), part of the Streets Department's Sanitation Division, began in 1965. Over the years, this initiative has evolved into an urban environmental partnership between city government and approximately 6,500 Block Captains and their organized blocks. PMBC has become

We believe that through the promotion of events and activities at this location, we will help to revitalize area businesses, decrease crime, and beautify the Denis Murphy from the Commerce Department said, “We are excited to be able to complete the street-scaping work that was started almost three years ago.” Murphy explained that the construction drawings are being completed and the work will be bid out by the City Streets Department and a contracting firm will be hired by late summer. Once the contractor is hired there will be another meeting to talk about the construction schedule so “stay tuned.” The project area is N 22nd St from Lehigh to Allegheny. One issue that was raised was a sinking issue in the west side of the street along 2800 block of N. 22nd Street. Murphy stated that the engineering firm that is doing the streetscape has notified the Streets Department of this issue because it may be need to be corrected in order for the streetscape contractor to be able to do the curb and sidewalk improvements in that section.

For anyone who might not know what a street-scaping project is, largely that’s when city officials will take care of the cost of making a commercial district or a commercial area look better. Street-scaping can mean getting new sidewalks or curbs. They’ll bring in special trash cans and recycling bins. They’ll create areas along the sidewalk for landscaping and plantings such as trees or shrubbery.

depression and local manufactories started exporting their businesses outside of the United States, which caused the majority of the local factories to shut down and community residents to lose their jobs. Residents were no longer shopping as often in the community therefore, causing local businesses to come up with creative strategies to get people to shop.

Little explained that with the economy changing a change in the revenue stream occurred. "It was a corporative effort from the businesses on the avenue to come up with forward thinking advertisement." Little mentioned that various businesses on the corridor would purchase commercial advertisement, which helped potential customers see that North 22nd Street was a shopping district that held various goods and services.

The key in surviving economy changes is too work together in business, "if you try to do this own your own, you stand on your own island, but if you get other people to join you in this advertisement venture you get forward thinking," said Little.

Customers flowed in and out of the small cramped women's clothing store that was also used as a travel notary, positioned in the front of the store. Filled with the last selection of winter sweaters, children's clothing, women's accessories and clothes, Fe-Male Fashion Discount Appeal attracted a wide-range customer base.

the most workable approach to combating neighborhood grime with organized block cleanings and has grown to be one of the largest volunteer organizations of its kind in the country.

Currently, over 90,000 volunteers, including Block Captains and their neighbors, community groups and their units, fill approximately 110,000 bags during their cleaning activities each year.

PMBC is a true example of a partnership that promotes civic pride, public safety, and neighborhood empowerment. loyalty is important in building a businesses," mentioned Little. Little explained that he was able to build generational customers by building a relationship with all his customers. "The grown children from my original customer base are shopping here now. Knowing how to serve the various different women's style, from the "conservative" to the "going-out" woman, helps bring in the younger and older women shopper."

Little started in the clothing business hustling men's clothing from out of his car and home. He would buy men's suits for cheap and sell them at a higher price to make a profit. Once he was able to, Little opened a store on 22nd and Indiana in 1974 and begin to sell men's suits and women's fashion with the help of his wife. Opening up a store made it more accessible for Little to generate customers from all over Philadelphia. Shortly after the opening of his first store, Little moved the store to its current location, in 1979 and begin selling women's clothing only. With the continuing success of the first business, Little was able to open up a second store selling only children's fashion in 1984. Due to the changing economy said Little, he had to downsize and begin selling women's and children together.

Little mentioned he was able to stay in business for so long because he had a plan. "You must have a business plan! Once you have a business plan in place, you must determine how to execute the plan and make adjustments to the original plan as you build your business."
