Old Business: None

New business:

- Sandy raised a friendly reminder to chairs about too much pressure on people to share. Conversation ensued leading to the following:
 - Chairpersons should follow the script: When chairing a meeting do not share after a person's share as this takes up time during the meeting for others. Please refrain from commenting on shares, providing your own experience after each share, cross talking, or giving advise after each share. A simple "thanks for sharing" is sufficient and provides consistency to everyone. The meeting is meant for everyone attending limit speaking on other's shares (before and after; refrain from calling out names of people who do not have hands raised, encourage shares in a productive way.

- Chair persons should encourage participate in a positive way with healthy nudging
 - Chair persons should not call on people whose hands aren't raised
- Andrea raised needing time to order medallions and asked that members of the group with anniversaries, ensure she is emailed a month in advance. Andrea is also compiling a list of anniversary dates and asks and members use the contact us section of the website to send their name and anniversary date. This will be announced during our daily meeting.
