Prayer Works.
Prayer is Work.
Prayer leads to Work.

The operative word in the above statements is PRAYER. We often put the emphasis on WORK, throw up our hands and give up. Have you ever been guilty of that?

When your list of pressing chores is especially long, are you inclined to spend more time on your knees — or less? Do you view prayer as a leisurely pastime or a life-preserving necessity?

James 5:16 tells us, “The effectual, fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.”

Prayer should be so much more than a brief benediction we utter before setting our shoulder to the wheel.

Prayer works. Prayer itself is work. And prayer has the power to make all the work that follows more focused and productive.

Martin Luther understood this fact, which is why he once wrote, “I have so much to do today, I must spend the first three hours in prayer.”

The longer our “to do” list, the more desperately we need the wisdom, blessing, and empowerment of God.

"The Lame Beggar Healed"

Acts 3

I. The _____ is Set

- Peter and John were going to the _____ at the ninth hour, 3 p.m., a time of _____ associated with evening sacrifice.
- At the same time that Peter and John were entering the temple area, a man who had been _____ from _____ was being carried to be laid at the Beautiful Gate.
- He was seeking to have his _____ needs met through the receiving of _____.
- The giving of alms is consistently connected to the heart-attitude that treasures God over _____ and neighbors over _____.

II. The _____ is Initiated

- The lame man "...asked to receive alms..."; but Peter's response may have initially _____ the beggar.
- Monetary aid is far surpassed by the _____ of the life-changing _____ of Christ.
- The reality of _____ is exemplified through the name of Christ as He meets our deepest _____.

III. The _____ is Performed

- The beggar didn't ask for _____ healing, he asked for alms.
- The beggar _____ Peter's outstretched hand and was pulled to his feet.
- The lame man was healed; he was _____ the ability to walk, something which he had never experienced since he was lame from _____.

IV. The _____ of Faith

On the Lame Man:

- He _____, stood, and began to _____, entering the temple with Peter and John.
- Scripture uses the word (walk) to describe a dynamic, _____ pattern of conduct that flows from one's _____ with God.
- The word (leap) carries connotations of _____, freedom, and newly released power, images that Scripture employs to communicate both physical and spiritual _____.

- The leap of healed bodies became a _____ sign that the age of the _____ had dawned, galvanizing evangelistic _____.
- The lame man _____ God.
- Like “praise” in the first-century church, our congregational praise and worship must be _____-centered, _____-driven, and _____-empowered.

On the People:

- They were filled with _____ and amazement at what had happened to him.
- Wonder describes someone who becomes _____ or dumbfounded by what they see or hear.
- Wonder must lead to repentance, faith, and obedient witness, lest the moment’s wonder _____ without eternal _____.

V. The _____ is Attributed to God

- Peter rightly used the opportunity of the healing, not to point the people of the city to _____, but to _____.
- Peter clearly defines the manner by which a person is _____ – _____ is the God-wrought conviction that rests on His self-revelation and responds with personal _____ and _____.
- Luke’s medical precision underscores that nothing _____ or _____ took place. The healing was _____ and it was completely God!

VI. The _____ to the Spiritually Lame

- The people are called to “_____”, to _____ differently, to reconsider.
- The command to repent is coupled with the phrase “and _____” or come again, _____, to turn back morally, to reform.
- The _____ of repentance and turning back:
 - Your _____ may be blotted out.
 - Times of _____ may come.
 - God will _____ the Christ appointed for you.

VII. The Final _____ to Abraham’s Descendants

- The call is to _____, to _____, to _____, and to live _____ because of our faith in Christ as Savior and Lord.
