

HUTCH-N-SONS SERVICES LLC

Our Vision

Cee Cee Donovan:

What inspired you to start HUTCH-N-Sons Services, and what was your initial vision for the company?

Dean Hutchinson: As the owner, I (Dean) set out to help communities across Oklahoma—not just our own—through a family business focused on heavy equipment services, disaster readiness, and genuine support during difficult times. With my son Justin working by my side, hopes to bring my son-in-law Jacob into the team, and my wife Nancy supporting our operations, we aim to combine family values with broad service reach.

Family Involvement

Cee Cee: How does your family participate in the business, and what roles do they play?

Dean: Justin is an essential part of daily operations, and we hope that Jacob, my son-in-law, will join us soon to add to our strengths. Nancy, my wife, provides operational and family support, further enabling our team to serve others. Our collective commitment lets us reach communities all over Oklahoma.

Statewide Commitment and Disaster Relief Readiness

Cee Cee: What distinguishes your company in terms of disaster relief and community support?

Dean: Although we have not yet been called upon for disaster relief, we are fully licensed, trained, and ready to respond anywhere in Oklahoma. Our equipment, team, and procedures are always kept ready so we can offer immediate support throughout the state when needed. Serving Oklahomans wherever they are—especially in times of emergency—is a core part of our mission.

Business Philosophy and Values

Cee Cee: What are the core values that define your family business?

Dean: Integrity, hard work, and community care drive us. Our family connection gives us trust and accountability both within our team and with every client we serve statewide.

Team Dynamic and Company Culture

Cee Cee: How does your family dynamic shape your work?

Dean: Having Justin actively involved, the prospective addition of Jacob, and Nancy's ongoing support creates a collaborative and dedicated culture. We believe in using our family unity to provide responsive, high-quality service no matter where in Oklahoma we're needed.

Community and Legacy

Cee Cee: How does your business structure and reach shape your impact in Oklahoma?

Dean: We are known as a family business with a statewide presence, prioritizing reliability, compassion, and readiness for any community in need. Maintaining our preparation and serving the entire state—whether it's daily support or disaster relief—ensures that Oklahomans everywhere can rely on us.

Cee Cee: What legacy do you want to leave?

Dean: We want HUTCH-N-Sons Services to be remembered for our dedication to family, community, and consistent readiness: a business that's not just centered in one town, but truly serves all of Oklahoma, always ready to step up for our neighbors wherever they may be.
