

To George, the most enjoyable aspect of the real estate profession is the opportunity to build meaningful relationships and provide sound advice in a very personable manner. Consequently, he along with his wife Sue has built an extensive client base over the years. Closing a sale and generating a commission is secondary to George... by far the most important aspect of the home buying or selling experience is ensuring that his clients make decisions that are in their own best interest.