Hello everyone,

As the summer draws to a close and the evenings start to feel that little bit crisper, I've been busy in the studio experimenting with new winter themes and glazes. You'll find a lovely selection of fresh pieces now available at Crafters in Wotton, perfect for those early festive gift ideas or a little treat for yourself.

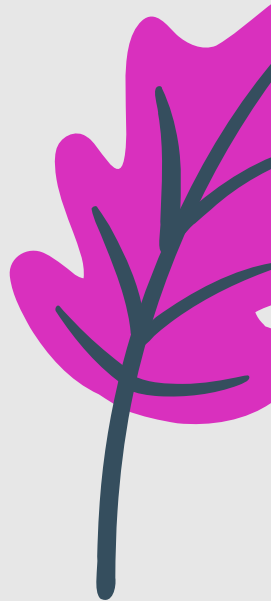

I'm also delighted to share that I now have a regular stall at the Shambles Market in Stroud, on the first Friday and Saturday of each month. If you're in town this weekend, why not pop by for a browse and a chat? It's always lovely to see familiar faces.

It's been a busy month for commissions, too – from personalised mugs to wedding presents. If you're thinking of a unique, handmade gift for the festive season, now's the time to get in touch. The earlier you can place your order, the better, to make sure everything's ready in time.

My first hand-building course is well underway, and it's so exciting to see everyone getting creative with clay. I can't wait to share some of their finished pieces with you soon – keep an eye on Instagram for updates!

Our Halloween pottery painting evening has now sold out, which is fantastic – thank you to everyone who booked. If you missed out, don't worry: I've got a few more workshops lined up in the run-up to Christmas.

Looking forward to seeing many of you over the coming weeks for a cosy, creative autumn – and thank you, as always, for your wonderful support.
