

Newsletter

Local
Art
News
&
Events

podart.com.au | terry@podart.com.au | 61+ 459 226 408

'The Low Rider' sees a few weeks of Daylight

at Blush Retail Gallery, Albany

The Low Rider.

'The Low Rider' has spent the last 14 years in storage, the canvas rolled-up inside a wooden crate. During September it was shown for the first time in Albany at Blush Retail Gallery. 'The Low Rider' was painted at Point Lookout, North Stradbroke Island, Queensland in 2004. It is part of a series of 10 paintings entitled

'The Low Man'. If I remember correctly, when I started this work, I had no air-conditioning at all in my studio, so it was a typically hot Queensland high-summer's day. It was all 'dripping sweat and oil paint' - not an ideal combination - but just the way I like it ...

The Old Town hall, Albany. What can we expect from the new art venue ... ?

Everyone is excited about the news of the new art venue at the Old Town Hall, which is scheduled to open to the public in early December 2020, after an extensive refurbishment.

It houses Galleries on the Ground Floor and First Floor. The City council is offering a range of exhibitions to the community, including the yearly Great Southern Art Award.

Old Town Hall Opening Hours

(from December 2020)

Tuesday to Saturday, 10am - 5pm

Open on public holiday Mondays and Mondays during school holidays.

Upcoming News

- New Conway Britton paintings
- Podmore art on lease
- My Search for a new art studio

Visit PodArt for your next Newsletter! - October 2020