To the editor:

I encourage everyone to set some aside time on Saturday, April 27 to visit the Croton100 table at our annual Earth Day celebration in Senasqua Park.

I got a sneak peak of the beautiful quilt they will be unveiling at the event and it is a "must see." Comprised of 1,200 pieces of cloth, it tells a compelling story of the environmental progress the group and its many volunteers have made toward their goal to help us make Croton emissions-free.

The work of fourteen volunteers, it celebrates our neighbors and local entities who have made both big and small contributions to the mission including using electric vehicles, supporting a green economy, composting, installing solar panels and creating edible gardens.

In addition to getting to see the colorful and informative quilt, kids visiting the booth with their parents will have an opportunity to win a mini solar-powered car, have their faces painted, and get fun, sustainable items from the group's fossil fuel smash-and-grab piñata.

I know there will be numerous other great groups, displays and vendors at the event which will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., but I feel this quilt is such a special testament to all that is going on to make Croton a healthier place to live that I wanted to shine a rechargeable light on it.

See you there!
