A Session for Patients and Their Healthcare Professionals
We're delivering a dedicated and compassionate session on how to manage menopause after cancer — created specifically for both patients and the cancer care teams who support them.

Led by Dani Binnington, founder of Menopause and Cancer and a patient with lived experience, the session blends personal insight with the latest evidence to explore the unique challenges faced by those experiencing treatment-induced menopause.

You'll also learn about the work of Menopause and Cancer — the UK's only non-profit focused solely on this issue — and how we support both patients and healthcare professionals through expert-led resources, clinical partnerships, and tailored services.

Whether you're navigating menopause yourself or supporting someone who is, this is an opportunity to gain practical tools, deepen your understanding, and help improve quality of life for all those affected.
