

THERE'S A FARMER IN MY CLASSROOM PROGRAM

Timeline:

Starts November 2024 and runs through May 2025

What the Program Includes:

- Monthly virtual farm tours where Sara, a farmer, travels to meet other farmers to learn about their farm and the different facets of agriculture including but not limited to: beef, dairy, sheep, goats, corn, soybeans, turkeys and more
- Building a relationship with a farmer who wants to share what happens on their farm and around the states of Iowa and Minnesota
- Monthly curriculum created by There's a Farmer in My Classroom and sent directly to your email
- Quarterly LIVE question and answer sessions with a farmer
- Bi-monthly updates on farming and agriculture resources that are 'farmer approved' through a value added e-newsletter

Learning Outcomes:

- A greater understanding of farming and how it effects everyone around the world daily
- The opportunity to learn about a variety of farms and farmers direct from one farmer to another while working on writing, math, social studies and problem solving skills.
- Interaction with a farmer that wants to answer any questions about where our food comes from
- Facts, stories and relationships that stay with students for years to come. This has been proven in prior years.

About Sara Preston

Founder and Farmer

Sara and her husband, Jared, farm with his family and their three children, outside of Swea City, Iowa. They have a cow-calf herd as well as grow corn and soybeans. Sara is the 6th generation in her family to raise livestock. Sara also comes from a long-line of teachers, including her mom, that has given her a passion not only for agriculture but to create engaging and educational resources and connections with and teach youth as she shares about the wonderful world of agriculture.
