BRIGHT BOOK REVIEWS

"NC State Congressman Don Davis said, "As a legislator, I can't think of anything better than this book to explain to youth how laws are made. What a wonderful contribution to the education of our youth who are our future!"

"Beth Uffers, Pitt County Teacher of the Year, noted that "the book addresses stereotypes and is inclusive of different races, ethnic backgrounds, religions, and gender. I am excited about seeing this!"

BOOK
ENDORSEMENT

This wonderful little book is fact-based, fun to read, and full of accurate information on 'how a bill becomes a law.' I strongly endorse it as a teaching tool for every NC fourth grader as they learn the basics of state government including how to make a law. I would have loved to have had it to hand out to the hundreds of fourth graders who annually travel to the state Capitol as I talked to them about the steps so cleverly explained in this book.

Former North Carolina Governor

"There Ought to Be a Law: A Bright Day at the State Capitol is a terrific message about how every citizen—especially young people—can make things better where they live. They don't have to be grown up and able to vote. I strongly recommend this book to students in North Carolina and throughout America."
