HISTORY

The Vision for Global Conflict and Control Planned Back In The 18th Century

The general plan for this war was conceived back in the 18th century, as outlined in a letter attributed to the famous Freemason Albert Pike. Pike is credited with designing the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, as well as the compass and "G" symbol of the Freemasons.

In a letter he wrote to the Italian journalist Giuseppe Mazzini on August 15, 1871, Pike describes the need for three world wars to bring about a new world order. Below are some quotes from that letter.

Albert Pike writes:

"The Second World War must be fomented by taking advantage of the differences between the Fascists and the political Zionists. This war must be brought about so that Nazism is destroyed and that the political Zionism be strong enough to institute a sovereign state of Israel in Palestine. During the Second World War, International Communism must become strong enough in order to balance Christendom, which would be then restrained and held in check until the time when we would need it for the final social cataclysm."

"The Third World War must be fomented by taking advantage of the differences caused by the "agentur" of the "Illuminati" between the political Zionists and the leaders of Islamic World. The war must be conducted in such a way that Islam (the Moslem Arabic World) and political Zionism (the State of Israel) mutually destroy each other.

Meanwhile the other nations, once more divided on this issue will be constrained to fight to the point of complete physical, moral, spiritual and economical exhaustion... We shall unleash the Nihilists and the atheists, and we shall provoke a formidable social cataclysm which in all its horror will show clearly to the nations the effect of absolute atheism, origin of savagery and of the most bloody turmoil.

Then everywhere, the citizens, obliged to defend themselves against the world minority of revolutionaries, will exterminate those destroyers of civilization, and the multitude, disillusioned with christianity, whose deistic spirits will from that moment be without compass or direction, anxious for an ideal, but without knowing where to render its adoration, will receive the true light through the universal manifestation of the pure doctrine of Lucifer, brought finally out in the public view.

This manifestation will result from the general reactionary movement which will follow the destruction of Christianity and atheism, both conquered and exterminated at the same time."

Freemasonry, World Economic Forum and Globalism

Freemasonry and Globalism:

Freemasonry has sought to establish a new world order led by a single government, aiming to economically control as many countries as possible and spread their ideological creed, Gnosticism. This is why globalism is driven by these Masonic elites. Freemasonry's plans for world government date back to the end of World War I or earlier. Freemasonry supports massive illegal immigration to push society towards cultural and religious syncretism, uprooting nations from their traditions and customs, and promoting globalism.

Freemasonry uses screen organizations with purported altruistic and philanthropic purposes in various fields to introduce its ideas, allying with those who seek power and influence. This has involved figures like Pedro Sanchez, President of the Spanish Government, who is seen as compliant with Masonic dictates. Freemasonry promotes globalism under the guise of progressivism, advocating for freedom and tolerance while attacking dissenters. This movement aims to implement the new world order, a controlling global government. We are currently experiencing the effects of progressive globalism, which threatens cultural and national identity, with the eradication of Christianity as one of its primary objectives.

World Economic Forum and Globalism:

Globalism is often confused with globalization, but they are fundamentally different concepts. Globalization has evolved spontaneously, bringing people together from around the world through advances in technology and transportation. It respects national identities shaped by centuries of coexistence and promotes freedom, democracy, and capitalism on a global scale, generating greater economic growth without being incompatible with nation-states.

In contrast, globalism seeks to collectivize the masses in a "totalizing" manner, with international organizations like the UN imposing ideological dogmas on everyone, such as quotas for refugees, gender ideology indoctrination, and encouraging more abortions. Globalism opposes nation-states and is rooted in radical socialism, contrary to nationalism and patriotism. Prominent figures like George Soros and Klaus Martin Schwab, president of the World Economic Forum, promote globalism, advocating for a world governed by multinational corporations, governments, and selected civil society organizations instead of traditional democratic structures, as outlined in the Great Reset agenda.

World Economic Forum's members include:

Henry Kissinger, George Soros, Rockefeller Foundation, Bill Gates, Benjamin Netanyahu (Israeli PM), Isaac Herzog (Israel's President), many other members of Knesset and former Prime Ministers (such as Ehud Barak who was known to be a frequent visitor of Epstein), Mahmoud Abbas (Palestine's President), Hassan Rouhani (Iran's former President). The World Economic Forum's members include political members from all across the world.

The Creation of The World Economic Forum:

The World Economic Forum (WEF) was not created by Klaus Schwab but originated from a CIA-funded Harvard program led by Henry Kissinger, with significant contributions from John Kenneth Galbraith and Herman Kahn, all members of the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR). Schwab aims to integrate his physical and biological identities with future technology, promoting "stakeholder capitalism," which shifts power from democratic processes to a small, pre-selected leadership group.

trained to continue the established agenda. The return to Cold War rhetoric is attributed to Schwab and his backers running out of new ideas.

There is much more history to both the World Economic Forum and it's "founder", Klaus Schwab (such as: connections to the Nazi party during WWII, developing atomic weapons to South Africa, end of the gold standard and more) which we recommend you delve in! For the sake of this booklet, we do our best to stay on the discussed subject as much as possible and keep the history as short as possible and to the point.

More About the World Economic Forum's Agenda:

Also known as the 2030 agenda (a.k.a the great reset). Was published on their official website, the famous quote: "By 2030, you will own nothing and be happy."

The World Economic Forum, promote their 'great reset' agenda to their members, who are the top echelon of politicians from across the world, world leaders, the pope, royal family members, influencers, Hollywood actors, big business, big Pharma and big tech CEO's, mainstream media corporations, other government officials lobbyists from all over the world, UN members, WHO officials, and young global leaders (trained agents of the WEF that infiltrate different government and business sectors worldwide).

Through those members, the WEF has successfully conducted the last COVID scam worldwide (also recorded on video, Event 201, that took place on October 18, 2019) and included participants from all sort of sections like big pharma, the UN, the WHO, and other big business and government officials from across the world.

The end goal? Create a massive shift of wealth (giving more money to the wealthy, creating global poverty), that will result in increased dependency in government and government funding for the poor (universal income), give more power to unelected and elected officials, create a new world order and finally, depopulation.

They're not even trying to hide it anymore!

Just look at some of the members of the WEF publicly expressing their plan to 'decrease' the human population.

World Economic Forum and Benjamin Netanyahu:

Benjamin Netanyahu, the longest-serving Prime Minister in Israel's history with over 17 years in office, has been a long-time member of the World Economic Forum (WEF). During his tenure, Netanyahu actively promoted the WEF's agendas, contributed financially to the organization (potentially using taxpayer money), and facilitated the establishment of their headquarters in Israel for the Fourth Industrial Revolution. This was confirmed by Borge Brende, a former Minister of Foreign Affairs in Norway and the current President of the WEF, during a recorded interview with Netanyahu in 2021.

Henry Kissinger

Now that we understand Kissinger's connections with the World Economic Forum and their greater agenda in mind, let's go through other very interesting connections between Kissinger and his involvement in many wars globally, specifically with Israel.

Connection to The Yom Kippur War in Israel (October 6, 1973):

Kissinger has many connections to different wars around the world, including the wars in Vietnam, Cambodia, Bangladesh, Chile, Cyprus, East Timor, Argentina, South Africa, China and Israel.

The Yom Kippur war, was a surprise attack on Israel by Egypt and Syria with a very slow response time from army officials (just like on October the 7th, 2023). The war lasted for a total of 19 days and cost the lives of over 2,600 soldiers and civilians.

The slow response time for the attack was very suspicious and was declared as a "failure" amongst Israeli leaders at the time.

The list of failures, are also "coincidentally" similar to the ones on the current war with Gaza.

Failures Leading to the Yom Kippur War in 1973 include:

1. Intelligence Failures: Misinterpreting military build-ups as exercises and relying too heavily on the belief that Egypt and Syria wouldn't attack without sufficient airpower.
2. Overconfidence: Israeli leadership's overconfidence in military superiority and underestimating Arab states' readiness post-Six-Day War.
3. Ignoring Warnings: Disregarding multiple intelligence reports and warnings about imminent attacks from various sources.
4. Diplomatic Missteps: Underestimating Arab diplomatic efforts and missing opportunities for negotiation, particularly with Egypt.
5. Underestimating Capabilities: Misjudging Arab military improvements and the effectiveness of their new weaponry.
6. Inadequate Readiness: Failing to mobilize reserves and prepare for the scale of coordinated attacks due to a belief that war was not imminent.
7. Communication Issues: Poor coordination and communication within Israeli military branches, leading to delays and confusion.
8. Strategic Misjudgments: Incorrect assessments of Arab intentions and timing, and underestimating their resolve to reclaim territories.
9. Leadership Failures: Reluctance to take preemptive action due to fear of international backlash and inadequate contingency planning.
10. Ignoring Early Signs: Overlooking increased Arab military activity and not adapting defence strategies to evolving threats.

These combined failures left Israel unprepared for the surprise attacks by Egypt and Syria on October 6, 1973, resulting in significant early setbacks and casualties.

These failures combined to create a situation where Israel was caught off guard by the coordinated surprise attacks by Egypt and Syria on October 6, 1973, leading to the initial setbacks and heavy casualties in the early stages of the Yom Kippur War.

On top of those “failures” we can also look into some other suspicious “coincidences”. Such as: The removal of the mines from the Suez Canal, a canal connecting Egypt to Israel. Ultimately assisting the Egyptian army to invade on October 6th. Reports from Neomi Frenkel, an Israeli writer, former Navy officer who later was officially concluding the headquarters discussions of the military during the Yom Kippur war. In her report, Neomi states that Moshe Dayan, the defence minister at the time, ignored the calls for help at the time of the initial attack, mentioning that Henry Kissinger was the one to give the order not to respond. Henry Kissinger also had some very cryptic messages in the past about Israel. In his own words, about ten years ago, he mentioned that “in ten more years, Israel will cease to exist”. Another very interesting fact it’s important to mention, was his meeting with Mr. Netanyahu 16 days before the attack on October the 7th (and 8 days before his passing).

The attack of October the 7th was made exactly 50 years after the Yom Kippur War.

Benjamin Netanyahu

After also discussing Netanyahu’s history and connections to the WEF, connections to Kissinger, and his long lived contribution to the great reset agenda, let’s look at his connections to the war on October the 7th.

Starting from a video from 2017 where he talks in the Knesset in front of Members of the Knesset about Hamas’ plan. Describing it to a tea as it happened on October the 7th.

Netanyahu also mentioned in the past his weird connections to people who have the power to create chaos in the entire middle east. Declaring about 3 years ago that he was offered to make a move that would set the entire middle east on fire if he won the elections but he refused.

Not to mention that this was not his first time neither his last time describing those events to members of Knesset and the public.

Lastly, who can forget, the infamous interview Netanyahu had with the Daily Wire during the COVID crisis on 2022, where Netanyahu confesses that he traded the Israeli public’s medical data (given no permission or informing the public) with Pfizer (a private company), in order to have Israel the first country to receive the vaccines (paid also double by the Israeli tax payer).

IGNORED WARNINGS

Increasing Warnings Ignored

Warnings about Hamas approaching the fence increased daily. Every day, there was more recorded activity by Hamas. Countless soldiers who served on the Gaza border recently unanimously testified to this increased activity, yet the IDF did not raise its alert level. In an interview on Channel 11, a female observer who was serving there on the day of the massacre shared: "They (Hamas) had training sessions once a week. Then suddenly, it was once a day. Then twice a day. Eventually, it was all the time. Shouldn't that raise alertness?"

The soldiers and female observers do not believe in a conspiracy involving senior ranks collaborating with Hamas. However, they fail to understand how the IDF became the Defence Forces of Hamas. The day before the attack, Hamas operatives were seen with maps, discussing a breach in front of the fence, yet the commanders dismissed these concerns.

Overlooked Warnings from Observation Balloon Operators (Warned, Provided Proof & Paid With Their Life)

An article on Channel 11 highlights the story of five combat soldiers operating observation balloons at the Nahal Oz outpost. These soldiers repeatedly warned about Hamas training with drones. Some even took photos and videos of the terrorists paragliding and training with drones right on the Israeli border.

These soldiers, who reported and filmed Hamas's training activities, were tragically murdered by the same terrorists they had been warning about. In remembrance of one of the murdered soldiers, his friends recounted how he alerted, photographed, and sent reports to state leaders. Unfortunately, IDF leaders dismissed, mocked, and silenced these warnings. Instead of heeding the alerts, they took down observation balloons before the Hamas attack.

Observers' Warnings Ignored: The Lead-Up to Disaster

Numerous articles have emerged since the October 7th massacre, featuring interviews with female observers who served in the Gaza Envelope and survived. These observers consistently reported increased Hamas activity and live fire training. They recognized the mounting threat and warned their superiors that these exercises could soon become a real-life danger. Despite their repeated alerts, it was unclear how seriously their warnings were taken. The media's claims that the observers did not witness the preparations have been proven false. These observers did their duty, some are still held hostage by Hamas, many paid with their lives. Some speculate that efforts to eliminate these observers were attempts to obscure evidence, should a trial be held for the atrocities committed.

Observers were threatened with prosecution if they continued to report their findings (prior to the attack). Despite witnessing changes and increased activity near the border, their concerns were dismissed. When they reported these anomalies to a senior commander, they were told to stop discussing it or face trial. Disturbingly, five female observers taken by helicopter disappeared without a trace. One observer's father, in his quest for answers, revealed that all cameras had been confiscated. Later, it was discovered that most of these observers were murdered, but questions remain about who was responsible if not Hamas.

Hamas Training Warnings Ignored by Military Leadership

A senior operative in the 8200 unit of Israeli intelligence, Modi'in, reported extensively on Hamas training exercises, explicitly warning of a potential invasion and massacre. Despite these detailed warnings, the army dismissed the scenario as "imaginary."

The operative described an intense training session in late May, involving two Nakba companies. The exercise spanned from morning until 8:30 PM, featuring terrorists mounted on jeeps and motorcycles. They rehearsed shooting down fighter planes and helicopters, taking over a kibbutz, and seizing a military base with orders to kill all personnel.

In her email, the operative urged, "please do not ignore this!" Her concerns were corroborated by her colleagues in Modi'in. Within days, another soldier reported additional Hamas training involving other battalions. This was followed by intercepted communications indicating readiness for an imminent attack. However, on July 12, a commanding officer dismissed these reports, calling the scenario "totally imaginary."

Despite this, the soldier persisted, denying the imaginary nature of the threat and emphasizing Hamas's capabilities. She warned, "If you don't address this now, we may not be able to give you a warning in real time." She highlighted the imminent danger, referencing quotes from Hamas leaders advocating for violence against Jews.

The negligence in addressing these warnings showcases a severe oversight in military intelligence, underscoring the catastrophic consequences of underestimating credible threats.

Heads of Communities Warnings Ignored

The leaders of the communities were alerted to imminent threats and warnings from Hamas regarding potential violence. Despite these serious alerts, the military advised them to refrain from public comment, downplaying the gravity of the situation.

Prior to the tragic events, communitiy leaders had received notifications via their mobile devices warning of planned attacks by Hamas. Immediately recognizing the urgency of the situation, they appealed to the military for reinforcements and additional weaponry to fortify their defenses. Regrettably, their concerns were met with derision and dismissal by military officials.

Furthermore, despite the looming danger, the military assured that public gatherings, including a large-scale event in Reim with thousands of participants, could proceed as scheduled. They even suggested that holding such gatherings near the fence, as opposed to Yehoshua Gardens in Tel Aviv, would be safer, despite the imminent threat.

Surveillance Expert Ignored

The warnings of expert Rafael Hayon, who diligently alerted authorities for an entire year about Hamas' intentions to seize control of the communities in Otef, committing atrocities against residents and taking hostages, were tragically overlooked by both the Shin Bet and intelligence agencies.

Rafael Hayon asserts that he possesses numerous recordings featuring Hamas members openly discussing their nefarious plans. According to him, there was no secrecy; they openly detailed their intentions to execute a comprehensive assault on the communities and to detain civilians. Despite this wealth of information being relayed to government and military leadership, the intelligence heads chose to suppress the matter and took no action.

In emotional interviews, Rafael Chayon breaks down in tears, mourning the loss of around forty close friends who served in Gaza divisions and perished due to the IDF's disregard of his warnings. He emphasizes that had his meticulously detailed alerts been heeded, the abductions and subsequent massacre could have been prevented entirely.

Unheeded Warnings: The Urgent Call to Action by Major General Yigal Carmon

Major General Yigal Carmon, a respected figure in counter-terrorism and the chairman of the Middle East Media Research Institute (MEMRI), issued grave warnings to all sectors of the country, but they were regrettably disregarded.

General Carmon, renowned globally for his expertise in combating terrorism, forewarned of an impending conflict at the hands of Hamas two months prior to the devastating massacre. His urgent alerts were disseminated through MEMRI's platforms, which meticulously collect and analyze information from public sources, including programs and terrorist organizations. Despite personally reaching out to numerous journalists and senior security officials in Israel, his warnings were overlooked and no action was taken.

Yigal Carmon, the founder and president of MEMRI, brings a wealth of experience as a Major General in the reserves and as a former counter-terrorism advisor to three Israeli Prime Ministers. His roles have encompassed leading civilian administration in practice in regions such as Judea, Samaria, and the Gaza Strip.

Overlooked Alerts: The Disregarded Egyptian Warning on Gaza's Impending Threat

The Israeli intelligence overlooked crucial warnings conveyed by their Egyptian counterparts, who cautioned of an imminent and catastrophic event emerging from Gaza.

Dr. Nimrod Novick, an Israeli entrepreneur with close ties to the Egyptian government, disclosed that he had engaged in discussions with a high-ranking officer from Egyptian intelligence in the weeks preceding the tragedy. The Egyptian intelligence officer had conveyed a dire message to their Israeli counterparts, emphasizing the severity of the impending threat with the stark declaration: "Something big and terrible is coming from Gaza."

MISSED SIGNALS

Security Breach

IDF's Neglect of Hamas Threats at the Border

The IDF disregarded concerning Hamas activities near the border fence, allowing them to dismantle security cameras without any response.

Former police commissioner Avi Weiss revealed during a broadcast that Hamas had incorporated the removal of the separation fence cameras into their pre-attack preparations. This negligence is unacceptable; permitting Hamas to tamper with the fence while actively training to breach Israel's border is a grave oversight. Furthermore, despite Hamas's actions being captured on IDF cameras, neither the Shin Bet, intelligence agencies, nor the IDF intervened, enabling the attack on the security cameras to proceed unchecked.

Neglected Alerts

IDF's Failure to Respond to Hamas Incursions

On the night of the attack, the IDF disregarded two highly significant warnings regarding the imminent approach of hundreds of Hamas terrorists toward the fence.

Reserve Major Yitzhak Barik revealed that the IDF received two alerts that night, signaling the advance of thousands of Hamas militants converging on the fence from multiple points simultaneously. This critical information, widely reported in the media, reached the highest echelons of government and the military. However, instead of escalating consultations, authorities chose to dismiss the warnings, neglecting to inform or caution a single resident in the Gaza envelope or to place adjacent sectors and military bases on urgent emergency alert.

The egregious disregard for these alerts begs the question: could such inaction be attributed to anything other than a deliberate desire for the event to culminate in disaster and tragedy?

DETAILED PLANS KNOWN

Profiting from Peril Investor Knowledge of Hamas Attacks

Recent reports in prominent global financial publications, including De-Marker in Israel and N12 News, shed light on a startling revelation: prior to the Hamas attack, many investors were privy to preliminary information about the impending breach and capitalized on this knowledge, reaping substantial profits.

Interestingly, the chosen date of the attack, October 7, was widely known among investors well in advance. This pattern of anticipation echoes a previous instance during the week of Passover, where a similar scheme was thwarted by heightened IDF vigilance. Notably, a recent study conducted by researchers from New York and Columbia Universities found a surge in short-selling activity against Israeli companies in the days leading up to the attack, including significant transactions involving Bank Leumi, resulting in profits amounting to millions of shekels.

The study's findings suggest that investors had access to advance information regarding the attack, leveraging this knowledge for financial gain. This raises pertinent questions about the discrepancy between the awareness of traders and the apparent lack of intelligence among the heads of the Shin Bet and the state regarding the October 7th date.

Unveiled Intentions Hamas' Brazen Display of Aggression

Hamas openly broadcasted their intentions through Gaza media channels, showcasing videos depicting their training for the occupation of settlements, mass murder, and abduction of prisoners.

Zvi Yehezkali, chief reporter for Arab affairs at Channel 13, presented these alarming videos in the news studio, revealing Hamas' strategic preparations for invasion. The footage depicts Hamas operatives undergoing training in urban environments, simulating incursions into Israeli homes with chilling precision, executing acts of violence and abduction.

These videos, disseminated by Hamas in the Arab media, emerged a month prior to the tragic massacre. In his incredulity, Zvi Yehezkali posed a poignant question: "Here are the videos, here is Hamas, but where are we?" This prompts a crucial inquiry: does this not underscore a premeditated collaboration between Israel and Hamas? Such blatant evidence begs the question: would any normative country in the world ignore such stark realities without taking decisive action?

Forewarned: Hamas' Public Declaration of Aggression

In the days leading up to the terrorist attack, Hamas utilized Arab television to broadcast an interview featuring a spokesperson boldly announcing their imminent plans to occupy settlements and abduct captives.

Retired police superintendent Avi Weiss recounted the widely circulated video that surfaced on Arab television just days before the massacre, garnering global attention. In the interview, the Hamas spokesperson passionately declares, "This week you will see us occupying the communities! Taking prisoners!" The spokesperson brazenly outlines Hamas' intentions to launch full-scale missile attacks on Tel Aviv and Israel, while emphasizing the capture of Jewish communities and residents as just the initial step in their aggressive agenda.

Despite these explicit declarations made in the studio, Israeli intelligence, renowned as among the best globally, contends ignorance of this "secret" Hamas plan, despite receiving warnings from various sources.

Foreshadowing Tragedy Hamas' Haunting Portrayal of the October 7 Massacre

During Ramadan approximately a year before the attack (2022), Hamas aired a chilling drama series that eerily foretold the events of the October 7 massacre with alarming accuracy.

Entitled "The Fist of the Free," the fictional series, produced by Hamas and broadcasted on their official TV channel, meticulously depicted Hamas' strategic planning and execution of a raid into Israeli territory from the Gaza Strip. The striking resemblance between the series' portrayal and the actual events of October 7 is uncanny.

Notably, the series received acclaim within Hamas circles, with particular praise coming from Yahya Sinwar, the leader of Hamas in the Gaza Strip. Sinwar even presented awards to the creators of the series, as seen in a recent video circulating on social media. In the video, Sinwar explicitly acknowledges that the events depicted in the series mirror Hamas' real-world preparations and intentions. He asserts that the series served as a blueprint for the meticulous planning and execution of Hamas' operations, emphasizing its integral role in their strategy for "release and return."

Silent Warning: The Ignored Hamas Training Manual

Hamas distributed a comprehensive training manual for the impending attack, which fell into the hands of the IDF a week prior to the massacre. Shockingly, the army chose to disregard its contents.

Reports from Israeli media reveal that the IDF possessed a detailed Hamas booklet outlining every facet of the planned assault. This manual meticulously outlined strategies for occupying military bases and outposts in the Gaza Division, infiltrating nearby kibbutzim and moshavim, as well as the abduction and murder of civilians. Despite the explicit instructions contained within, the IDF opted to maintain silence and took no preparatory measures.

Hamas invested considerable time and resources in printing these instructional booklets, disseminating them among thousands of terrorists in Gaza. The booklet served as a sinister blueprint for the atrocities committed on that fateful Shabbat, outlining the exact procedures for the assault on the Gaza Division and surrounding settlements.

The revelation that the IDF had possession of this damning evidence a full week before the attack has left the nation in disbelief. The decision by military leadership and the head of the Shin Bet to overlook this critical intelligence and refrain from action has raised profound concerns and questions about their judgment and commitment to safeguarding Israeli lives.

Unheeded Alerts

The Gaza Division's Forewarning of Hamas Invasion

News Channel 11 recently disclosed that a year before the tragic massacre, the Gaza Division received a comprehensive briefing from the Southern Command's intelligence titled "The Wall of Jericho - Plan for Seizing Settlements and Bases in the South." This briefing, consisting of approximately forty slides, meticulously outlined Hamas's impending invasion strategy. It detailed infiltrations through 65 breaches in the fence, the use of motorcycles and cars to introduce terrorists, attacks on surveillance cameras, drone usage, and the targeting of towns like Ofakim and Sderot.

The entire briefing was transmitted to Major General Haliva, the head of AMAN (intelligence), and the Southern Command's commander in May 2022. Even as new intelligence updates were incorporated a month before the planned attack, no action was taken. Instead of heightening alert levels, state leaders chose inaction, effectively putting the military on standby.

The night before the invasion, some leaders received phone calls alerting them to the impending threat, but even then, crucial decision-makers like the Head of AMAN failed to take decisive action, choosing to remain passive. Despite glaring warning signs and detailed presentations, military leadership obstinately refused to act, turning a blind eye to the looming danger.

The intelligence community's failure to act, despite its reputation as "the best in the world," raises significant questions. Contrastingly, recent successes like the Mossad's thwarting of a Hezbollah attack in Brazil highlight the stark disparity in addressing threats. The irony of knowing about and thwarting a distant attack while failing to detect and prevent a massive invasion in their own backyard underscores the gravity of the intelligence failure.

In the aftermath of the tragedy on October 7th, the claim that everyone was caught off guard rings hollow as soldiers fell victim to the attack, underscoring the devastating consequences of negligence in the face of clear warnings.

Media Presence

The Contrasting Awareness of Hamas' Attack

Several global media networks dispatched reporters to the scene alongside Hamas terrorists, capturing real-time footage of the breach and abduction of Israeli citizens. Meanwhile, the Shin Bet and Israel's acclaimed intelligence remained oblivious to the impending attack.

The baffling disparity becomes glaringly apparent when considering that journalists took calculated risks to document the event, confident in the absence of imminent IDF intervention. This raises crucial questions: how did international media anticipate the attack and arrive equipped with advanced cameras, while Israeli intelligence, purportedly "the best in the world," remained unaware? This stark discrepancy underscores serious concerns regarding the efficacy of the IDF and the Shin Bet.

LIST OF “FAILURES”

System Failure

The Disabling of the 'See Shoot' Defence Mechanism

Retired police superintendent Avi Weiss revealed troubling details about the failure of the "See Shoot" system, designed to safeguard Israeli borders. This sophisticated defense mechanism, capable of remote activation, is intended to deter and incapacitate intruders attempting to breach the fence. However, on the day of the attack, the system was inexplicably offline.

Superintendent Weiss clarified that the system was not malfunctioning but deliberately deactivated under orders from higher-ranking officials. This deliberate neutralization rendered the entire defense system inoperative, enabling Hamas terrorists to infiltrate Israeli territory unimpeded. With the "See Shoot" system offline, Hamas operatives exploited drones to breach the fence and disable border cameras, further compromising security.

Grounded Guardians

The Failure of Observation Balloons Before the Attack

In the weeks leading up to the tragic massacre, the IDF made the perplexing decision to deactivate the towering observation balloons stationed along the Gaza border, crucial for monitoring the region's security. Despite looming warnings of an impending conflict, the IDF deferred maintenance on these critical surveillance assets, opting to resume regular operations.

Media investigations uncovered that the observation balloons, requiring mere one-day renovations, were inexplicably excluded from service upon receiving an order from the IDF. Strikingly, their deactivation coincided precisely with the terrorist attack by Hamas. The IDF had the capability to swiftly repair and restore these vital assets, yet deliberately postponed their maintenance until after the devastating events of Shabbat Simchat Torah, disregarding urgent warnings.

Eyewitness accounts further corroborate the negligence surrounding the observation balloons. Residents from settlements such as Tenth Street and Netiv Haa'Sara observed these balloons grounded on the eve of the attack, contrary to their usual 24-hour surveillance protocol. Despite heightened Hamas activity along the border, the IDF dismissed residents' concerns, insisting on the withdrawal of troops from the area, a decision met with incredulity and frustration among local communities.

The Inoperable 'Omega' Intelligence System

Retired police superintendent Avi Weiss has uncovered documents revealing a critical breakdown in the "Omega" intelligence system during the incident. This vital system, intended to provide crucial intelligence, was completely offline, resulting in a lack of coordination between military units and commanders, and a disconnect from the reality on the ground.

Intelligence Inaction

The Shin Bet's Systemic Failures

Retired police superintendent Avi Weiss sheds light on the Shin Bet's intelligence shortcomings. Even their sophisticated system designed to monitor Arab social networks failed to function effectively during the critical period. Despite receiving an alert about Hamas' mobilization for war—indicated by the sudden activation of thousands of Hamas SIM cards in Gaza—at 1 a.m., crucial decisions were delayed and ultimately dismissed after further deliberation the following day. This failure to respond decisively, despite clear indicators of impending conflict, underscores systemic deficiencies in intelligence operations.

Neglected Vigilance

The Abandonment of 'Alertness at Dawn'

Reserve Major Yitzhak Barik sheds light on a standard procedure within the IDF known as "Konenut Im Shahar," or "Alertness at Dawn." This essential protocol involves thorough inspections of all military positions at daybreak, including comprehensive checks along the border fence and exercises to maintain readiness. However, Major Barik reveals that this critical procedure was inexplicably neglected on the day of the massacre, leaving military positions unchecked and compromising security along the border.

Breached Defenses

The Neglected Security of the Gaza Border Fence

The Gaza border fence stands as one of the world's most sophisticated barriers, boasting years of investment in cutting-edge technology and protective measures. However, the IDF's neglect of routine maintenance and disregard for severe warnings compromised its integrity.

Initially heralded as impenetrable, the fence was showcased as a formidable deterrent against unauthorized entry. Specialized military units were deployed along its length to ensure constant vigilance, with even minor disturbances triggering swift responses. Yet, in the lead-up to the October 7th incident, a stark departure from protocol occurred.

Eyewitness accounts from numerous commanders and soldiers stationed along the Gaza border reveal a startling lapse in maintenance and security measures. Previously, any disturbance near the fence warranted immediate attention, but in the days preceding the attack, Hamas operatives were allowed to approach under the guise of "agricultural work." Despite reports of suspicious activity and mapping efforts by Hamas, commanders failed to act.

The events of that fateful Saturday morning defy comprehension. Thousands of terrorists breached the fence with explosives, visible from afar, while surveillance cameras captured the incursion. Astonishingly, no reinforcements were summoned to the scene, and assistance was delayed for hours, leaving the entire sector vulnerable.

Questions linger regarding the orders to abandon the fence and permit Hamas to conduct brazen breach training unhindered. The breach of the Gaza border fence stands as a glaring failure of security protocol, demanding accountability for those responsible.

Fatal Misjudgment

The IDF's Weapons Ban for Standby Forces

The IDF recently issued a controversial command forbidding the standby forces in the settlements surrounding Gaza from keeping weapons in their homes. This decision has taken a bloody toll on the community.

The IDF's directive mandated that all weapons be stored in central armories, citing concerns about potential thefts from homes. This directive included confiscating long guns from some residents. Such a measure contradicts the fundamental principle of maintaining readiness, where soldiers are expected to be prepared for immediate action, often sleeping fully dressed with weapons at hand.

Despite urgent warnings before the disaster, the IDF did not revise this command. Consequently, many residents were massacred by Hamas terrorists while attempting to reach the armory to retrieve their weapons. In numerous instances, the armory was locked, keys were missing, and residents were unable to arm themselves in time.

A chilling example of the dire consequences of this decision comes from Avihai Brodetz of Kfar Aza. When terrorists attacked, Brodetz ran to the armory to retrieve his rifle. Upon his return, he found his house empty—his wife and three children had been kidnapped to Gaza.

This tragic policy failure starkly illustrates the need for a reassessment of security protocols to ensure the safety of residents in vulnerable areas.

Denied Surveillance An Expert's License Revoked

Approximately three months before the massacre, Rafael Hayon, one of Israel's foremost experts in phone and internet surveillance, was inexplicably stripped of his license to monitor Hamas communications.

Rafael Hayon, a specialist in hacking phone lines and the internet, had voluntarily used professional equipment for years to listen to enemy communications. He had even received a special license from Israeli security authorities. Rafael maintained constant contact with senior officials in the Israeli army and security establishment, successfully thwarting numerous attacks over the years.

However, just a short time before the massacre, those same officials abruptly decided to revoke his surveillance capabilities. They confiscated his specialized equipment and license, preventing him from monitoring Hamas's phone calls and internet activities. This decision came despite escalating warnings about imminent threats.

Desperate, Rafael appealed to his contacts within the army, pleading to continue his critical work during such dangerous times. His requests were denied, with the explanation that "Your request was blocked from above," indicating a decision made at the highest levels. Officially, the army told him, "We already know everything. You are completely unnecessary and only a bother."

Rafael strongly believes that if he had been allowed to continue his surveillance, the catastrophic events could have been averted. He argues that with his capabilities, Hamas's plans could have been uncovered and neutralized, potentially preventing the disaster.

Security Leadership's Vacation Amid Dire Warnings

Despite all the dire warnings, Israel's security leadership chose to neglect their duties and go on holiday in Eilat on Friday (October 6, 2023).

Retired police superintendent Avi Weiss revealed that on that fateful holiday eve, almost the entire top echelon of the intelligence community, the Shin Bet, and the IDF were on a planned vacation in Eilat. Despite the escalating warnings, they decided to go on vacation, abandoning all the citizens near the Gaza border, including women and babies. They left the army without any emergency alerts, leading to the massacre and capture of observers who had raised alarms.

This highlights the negligence of the army and state leadership. The absence of the commanders and their trip to Eilat on the day of the disaster were likely premeditated. Their absence caused a complete breakdown of the military system, paralyzing it during the most critical hours. This included shutting down the Air Force and special divisions meant to operate during terrorist intrusions.

Battalions Paralyzed During Terrorist Infiltration Due to Missing Keys and Records

A battalion trained specifically for terrorist infiltration scenarios was rendered inoperative for 12 hours because they couldn't find the keys to the armory. Another battalion remained grounded, claiming they were missing necessary records to receive their weapons.

Special regiments, trained to be first responders to terrorist infiltrations in the settlements surrounding Gaza, were ready to act on Saturday at 11 am at Basis Katziot. However, they did nothing for 12 hours because the keys to the armory were missing. Meanwhile, another battalion couldn't arm itself because the records of the weapons' recipients were missing. The general manager was aware of this issue but took no action to resolve it.

During these critical hours of inaction, dozens of people lost their lives. Is this a coincidence, or does it suggest that someone ensured the success of the planned massacre?

Delays in Arming Reserve Fighters on October 7

Sergeant Gal Schwartz, a fighter in a reserve battalion belonging to the Southern Brigade, reported that on October 7, he and many other soldiers arrived at assembly areas in the south, ready to join the fight. However, they were left at the base without weapons and did not go out to battle.

Schwartz recounted, "We trained precisely for this scenario—a raid by 200 Hamas terrorists on the Storm outpost. We were trained to fight against Hamas, we knew the threat, and we were ready to engage."

He continued, "We arrived at the reserve around noon, just minutes away from the settlements under attack, where people were being murdered, but we were left in Tsalim without action until Monday. By noon, 80% of our battalion was already there, waiting for orders. Despite being so close to the conflict, we were not given weapons. There was an armory, but we did not receive weapons until midnight."

Schwartz emphasized, "If our battalion had been deployed at 1:00 p.m., we could have changed the situation. Four hundred fighters could have made a significant difference. I believe the problem lies with the chain of command."

EVIDENCE OF INFILTRATION

Controversial Paraglider Approval by Israel and the EU Prior to the Attack

Three months before the start of the war, the European Union decided to transform the beaches of Gaza into paragliding spots. Until then, Israel had not approved the introduction of paraglides into Gaza due to security concerns. However, the State of Israel unexpectedly granted the European Union representatives the approval to bring in paraglides.

It's important to note that a significant part of the success of the terrorists' infiltration into Israeli territory was achieved through the use of these paraglides. Terrorists used them to fly over the fence into the settlements in the Gaza Envelope. Utilizing these paraglides, Hamas was able to disable the "Shooter Seer" system, which was designed to prevent the entry of such attackers.

Infiltration and Coordination ZAKA's Knowledge and the Undetected Attack

Despite intelligence agencies typically being aware of even minor attacks, the largest terrorist attack in Israel's history went undetected. Yehuda Meshi Zahav, the chairman of ZAKA, testified several years ago that they coordinated with Hamas for every small attack.

It is well-known among experts that several intelligence agencies usually have advance knowledge of all attacks, even the smallest ones. There is substantial evidence of direct communication between Israel and terrorist leaders. While the reasons for not preventing these attacks are beyond the scope of this discussion, it is clear that Israeli intelligence had to be aware of the date and time of this massive attack. According to Meshi Zahav: "We are coordinated with Hamas, we know when there is going to be an attack."

Additionally, confirmed reports indicate that a camp called Shura was established, with numerous refrigerators dedicated to storing bodies installed two weeks before the massacre.

*ZAKA is a series of voluntary community emergency response teams in Israel, recognized by the Israeli government.

A Failure to Inform The Night of the Terrible Massacre

On the night before the terrible massacre, the heads of the army and the Shin Bet held an emergency meeting and concluded that a battle was likely on Saturday, potentially including an attempt to kidnap civilians. However, they chose not to inform anyone of the imminent danger.

In a report by Channel 12 News, it was revealed what transpired in the hours leading up to the attack on the Shin Bet and the IDF. The report disclosed that clear and concrete signs indicating imminent action were discussed during this emergency meeting between the heads of the IDF and Shin Bet. The meeting ended with the assessment that Hamas would indeed initiate a battle on Saturday. The army and Shin Bet were aware that this might include an attempted raid and infiltration by a terrorist force aiming to take over one or two settlements and potentially take prisoners. Despite this critical information, they chose to keep it to themselves and did not inform the military forces in the field, including all commanders and soldiers in the Gaza Division.

Not only did the army fail to raise the alert level and reinforce forces, but they also reduced their presence. They did not update the forces in the field or wake up the soldiers in the outposts to prepare for the invasion. Consequently, soldiers were killed while sleeping in their rooms. Tanks that were in rear positions were not brought to the front, and the emergency rooms of all the settlements were not activated. Thousands of people attending the party in Reim, located right next to the border, were not warned, nor were the police securing the event. This lack of action and communication had devastating consequences.

Israeli Airforce Failed to Intervene Despite Evidence of Presence

Field evidence indicates that helicopters failed to intervene in the battles on October 7th, despite being spotted over several settlements during the Hamas attack.

In almost all the affected settlements, no helicopters were seen in the sky until the afternoon, and in some cases, not until the next morning. However, members of Kibbutz Magen's standby squad reported that while they were engaged in prolonged combat with terrorists on that Saturday, they saw helicopters flying above them. The helicopters, apparently instructed not to intervene, did not assist them in any way. According to the standby squad, a combat helicopter could have decimated the Hamas terrorists from above, but this did not happen. They were baffled as to why no action was taken, especially since the helicopter base was only a minute and a half away, yet neither helicopters nor planes arrived.

The army chiefs halted the Air Force, which could have prevented the terrorists from entering. The Air Force was on standby and ready for action, but the order to engage never came. In an interview with Channel 13, an IDF Air Force pilot confirmed that the Air Force was on routine alert that Saturday. When asked by the interviewer why the Air Force did not intervene to stop the massacre, drop bombs, or deploy Apache helicopters to prevent the massive entry of terrorists, the pilot responded indifferently, "I cannot discuss this topic at this time."

This failure to act raises significant questions about the decisions made by the army chiefs and the subsequent lack of aerial intervention during the critical hours of the attack.

Testimonies and Evidence of Orders to Withhold Assistance

Citizens and members of standby units across settlements in the Gaza Strip have testified that it took the IDF between 7 to 12 hours to respond during the Hamas attack. In some places, it took even longer for the IDF to arrive, leaving many wounded without the urgent medical attention they needed.

The Rabbi of the Tzuchar community stated that the IDF first arrived 27 hours after the attack began. He further testified that even after the army made contact at 17:30 in the afternoon, they were informed that the IDF might reach them by morning. Rabbi Hanania Weissman also testified that the IDF had been given explicit instructions not to respond for seven hours.

A video featuring the chairman of a charity organization, with testimony from Rabbi Hananya Weissman, claims that confidential sources informed him the IDF was ordered to stay away from the disaster zone for at least seven hours. During this period, the IDF was prohibited from responding to any Hamas attacks, which allowed Hamas to operate with impunity. They dismantled fences and invaded homes without immediate military intervention.

In Beeri, members of the standby unit recounted seeing about 500 well-armed soldiers standing outside the settlement while terrorists were attacking residents inside. Despite pleas from the emergency personnel to intervene, the soldiers remained inactive. One survivor even communicated the situation to the Prime Minister, who assured him that the situation was being addressed, yet no action was taken for hours.

Channel 13 reported that soldiers from the Golani Brigade, patrolling along the fence line, were ordered to leave the area approximately half an hour before the Hamas attack. They received a directive to evacuate the exact axis through which Hamas later infiltrated. Had the Golani fighters remained, they could have intercepted the terrorists. This sequence of events raises serious questions about potential premeditation and coordination.

This account of delayed military response, explicit orders to withhold assistance, and unexplained military withdrawals provides a troubling narrative of the events surrounding the attack, suggesting a level of planning and coordination that allowed the terrorists to execute their attack with minimal immediate resistance.

IDF's Delayed Response During Hamas Attack A Testimony

In an interview with Channel 13, the military regular security coordinator of the Shlomit community recounted his experience on the day of the Hamas attack. When he contacted the IDF for assistance, he received a text message with a sad emoji in response.

As he and his comrades fought the terrorists, they held onto the belief that the IDF would arrive any moment. This confidence stemmed from their lifelong training and drills, where they were taught to expect swift military intervention. However, contrary to their expectations, the situation only worsened.

Despite numerous breaches in the fence, not a single point was shelled or blocked. Terrorists launched a second wave of attacks, taking more prisoners and killing more civilians, yet no military aid arrived. It seemed as if someone had instructed the IDF to withhold intervention, allowing Hamas to operate freely until the late afternoon.

This testimony raises critical questions about the IDF's capabilities and the decisions made during the attack, highlighting a severe breakdown in the response mechanism that left many questioning the effectiveness of the military's preparedness and execution.

Deleted Evidence

The Missing Videos from October 7

In a recent article by "Walla" News, a senior reserve officer revealed a troubling incident related to the investigation of the October 7 attack. The officer recounted sitting with a general to review a video of one of the events, only to discover that the videos had been deleted.

"It was very embarrassing," the officer said. "Then suspicion arose, and finally, the excuses started. We were told that special privileges had been granted to those who requested. But rank officers like us need permissions? It seems like a war of generals and military roles. It feels like everyone is now trying to take care of themselves after the attack."

This revelation raises serious concerns about transparency and accountability within the military, suggesting a possible cover-up and internal conflict following the attack.

The Guardian

Hamas Used Spies Inside Israeli Military Bases

According to a report by The Guardian, Hamas has infiltrated Israeli military bases using spies. Among the documents seized from Hamas, one notable find was a highly detailed map of an Israeli military base, reportedly more comprehensive than what the IDF itself possessed.

Commanders acknowledged that such precise mapping and calculation could only have been achieved with "inner knowledge" from someone in a high-ranking position within the Israeli military. An Israeli intelligence source told The Guardian that this map, likely originating from the top levels of the Israeli army, ended up in Hamas's hands through Israeli spies working for the terrorist organization.

Terrorists' Complacency Revealed They Knew No One Would Intervene

Survivors' testimonies from that fateful Saturday paint a disturbing picture: the terrorists were remarkably calm and unhurried. Unlike the typical behaviour of skilled Hamas operatives, who are trained to act swiftly due to the expected rapid response of the IDF, these terrorists lingered. They entered homes, cooked food, and sat down to eat on the lawns, showing no fear of immediate retaliation.

The terrorists' leisurely behaviour suggests they were confident they had ample time to carry out their brutal activities. They knew they had a significant time window to organize, kill, loot, and rob without facing immediate intervention. This raises troubling questions: who leaked this information to them? How were they able to execute their plan until the evening without any hindrance?

MEDIA SUPPRESSION

The Media

The Watchdog of Institutional Dictatorship

Not a day has passed since the horrific massacre in the Gaza Envelope, and the media is already warning the public (as they did during COVID) about the dangers of fake news. They claim you are not strong enough to digest the blatant betrayal captured in thousands of real-time videos filmed by Hamas, the murdered, and the survivors from the Gaza Envelope. These videos, shared by TV reporters, were authentic records of the massacre scenes. Yet, suddenly, the state urges us to stop and not trust what we see directly from the field—the neglect, abandonment of civilians, and collaboration of traitorous Jews with Hamas. Instead, they want us to view everything through their controlled filter.

In essence, they want us to see only what doesn't expose their failings. They aim to keep us under their control by censoring and blacking out all other information, much like the secretive agreement with Pfizer. Anyone caught distributing truthful videos that incriminate the state will be arrested and face a three-year prison sentence. This is dictatorship at its finest—a totalitarian control process. The issue of media censorship, as part of the state's betrayal of its residents, must be addressed and understood by the public.

For years, the media has not protected the people or aided the weak. Instead, it has become a tool of war, a mind-engineering device that performs the establishment's brainwashing. The media, which claims to be the watchdog of democracy, is supposed to protect citizens from monopolistic corporations and expose government corruption. It should be challenging politicians to ensure they act in the citizens' best interests. However, as seen during COVID, the establishment media channels, including newspapers, radio, and internet news, avoided any discussion, question, or hint of internal betrayal.

In conclusion, the media has revealed itself as the government's watchdog, spreading fake news and casting lies upon a truth-seeking public while boldly labeling real facts as 'fake news.' As the saying goes, "Everyone who disqualifies, in their own way, they themselves are disqualified."

A Severe Warning Against Truth Revealers

Two days after the horrific massacre, Channel 13 published an article warning anyone who dares to question the integrity of Israel's security decision-makers and authorities. The article stated, "Posts shamelessly accuse the IDF and Shin Bet of collaborating with Hamas's attack. Israelis are claiming that members of the security forces helped Hamas!" Alon Ben David went further, asserting that raising concerns about potential traitors among us equates to betrayal and collaboration with the enemy. According to him, truth-tellers are traitors.

The past 70 years have shown how the state and government have betrayed the public, from the Yemenite children affair to the thousands who died from COVID vaccines. The massacre on October 7 brought a realization similar to the boy who declared, "The emperor has no clothes." Newspapers are filled with pages about 'failures,' yet they spare those funding them, avoiding blame on the truly responsible.

Silencing the Truth

During a Channel 14 broadcast hosted by Arel Segal, Shai Goldstein suggested that there might have been cooperation on the day of the massacre. Goldstein said, "The public knows and connects the dots from various events... and suspects." Segal quickly interjected, "You and I don't suspect," to which Goldstein, understanding the hint, replied, "Of course we don't suspect." Despite being silenced, Goldstein persisted, saying, "In this matter of coincidences...", only to be cut off again. This exchange highlighted the government's absolute control over the media, blocking any inspection or suggestion of an inside job, labeling such suggestions as betrayals.

Denying Conspiracy

In a press conference, a journalist asked Prime Minister Netanyahu about a survey indicating that 32% of the public believes insiders were involved or had prior knowledge of the Hamas attacks. Netanyahu responded, "There is no conspiracy. There was no conspiracy. And there cannot be... There are questions that need to be answered, such as what happened and how it happened, but this will be discussed after the war, certainly not now." His diplomatic answer avoided excuses, while the media continues to block anyone presenting facts that could prove the extent of the state and army's betrayal.

Publications Of Crucial Moments During The Attack Were Muzzled

An order was issued from the political level to all media to delay the publication of the Hamas attack and the breach of the fence for about two hours, preventing the potential saving of hundreds of lives.

A senior broadcaster in Channel 14's news studio revealed shocking details about the IDF's instructions to the media. He stated: "The first video of a squad infiltrating Sderot in vans was captured at 7:15 in the morning. We, the journalists, were instructed not to publish it. We were prevented from reporting anything for an hour and a half. During that time, if we had reported the event, we could have warned people to lock themselves in their houses, arm themselves, and save lives!"

CONCLUSION

Heroic Tales of Single Men's Valor

Since the massacre at Simchat Torah, stories of individual heroism have emerged, highlighting those who saved dozens, even hundreds, of civilians from certain death. These heroes risked, and in some cases lost, their lives during this difficult time. However, there are critical points raised by these stories that the media often overlooks:

- If a single unarmed individual with a vehicle can intimidate a hundred people, what could an entire battalion achieve?
- If a single standby squad can repel dozens of terrorists, what could a battalion do?
- If one tank can stop dozens of well-armed terrorists and save an outpost, how much more effective would multiple combat helicopters be?

Stories of Bravery:

Oz Davidan - Rescued 120 People with His Private Vehicle:

Oz Davidan couldn't stand by while people were in danger. Driving towards the party in Kibbutz 'Raim,' he found and rescued many survivors despite encountering terrorists along the way. Miraculously, he was unharmed by their gunfire. Some survivors believed he was a Shin Bet agent due to his fearless actions.

One Tank Saves an Entire Outpost:

A soldier observing Shabbat woke to a "red alert" and quickly realized terrorists were attacking. He and a colleague in a tank faced 50 motorcycles carrying armed terrorists. They ran over the terrorists and fired shells at them, repelling multiple squads for nine hours. Afterward, the soldier continued fighting on foot, saving an entire division from slaughter.

The Emergency Squad that Saved a Kibbutz:

In Kibbutz Magen, a small standby squad of Shabbat-observant Jews organized quickly with their home weapons. They managed to repel dozens of well-armed terrorists for hours until the IDF arrived. Despite facing machine guns, grenades, and RPGs, the squad's bravery saved their entire kibbutz.

How Did Hamas Know?

The biggest question that arises from the multitude of "coincidences" surrounding the massacre on Shabbat-Simchat Torah (7.10.23) is how Hamas managed to execute their plan with such apparent impunity.

Hamas, a terrorist organization with extensive funding and experience, surely understood that Israeli intelligence and security forces were aware of their planned attack. Given Israel's quick-response capabilities, such as fighter jets capable of reaching any part of the country within minutes and delivering substantial firepower, Hamas's confidence is puzzling. They launched their attack openly, in broad daylight, and without the usual secrecy or underground tunnels, using vehicles, motorcycles, carts, and even on foot.

Key questions include:

- Why was Hamas not concerned about immediate retaliation from Israeli fighter jets and helicopters?
- How did they know the Air Force wouldn't intervene for hours?
- Why did they feel safe crossing the border, fully exposed, during the day?
- How did they anticipate that tanks and troops wouldn't be waiting for them?
- Why did they approach the fence, normally heavily monitored, without fear?
- How did they know about specific instructions and failures within the IDF on that day?

According to a survey in Israel, 32% of the public believes the answer to these questions lies in a betrayal by the state itself, a sentiment echoed by former Mossad chief Tamir Pardo: "The State of Israel has betrayed its own citizens!"

Hamas seemingly knew that these "coincidences" would align perfectly on that day, allowing them to act without facing the expected military response. This level of foreknowledge suggests an unprecedented level of confidence in their planning and execution.

Unveiling the Hidden Truth

The purpose of this booklet is to alert the public to the conduct of Israel's state and military leaders, who are allegedly infiltrated by global evil organizations. Without understanding this infiltration, we risk being repeatedly victimized by these entities.

One might ask: why would a man betray his brother? The answer lies in recognizing the criminal organizations involved, such as the WEF and the CFR, whose members are said to have sold their souls to malevolent forces. This betrayal, facilitated by these organizations, has profound implications for Israel.

The Infiltration of Global Organizations

The heads of state and military in Israel are reportedly affiliated with:

- The World Economic Forum (WEF): Founded by Klaus Schwab and backed by figures like Henry Kissinger, it promotes a globalist agenda including totalitarian control and population reduction.
- The Council on Foreign Relations (CFR): Financed by influential families like Carnegie, Ford, and Rockefeller, it extends its influence through entities like the Wexner Foundation in Israel.

These organizations masquerade as benevolent entities such as the WHO and the WEF, but they are fronts for the so-called Illuminati "Shadow Government," manipulating world governments under the guise of public welfare.

Key Figures and the Wexner Foundation

Many Israeli leaders, including high-ranking officials in the judiciary, military, and police, are graduates of the Wexner Foundation. This foundation, claiming to reshape Israel, educates senior public sector officials in secrecy, with its alumni network deeply entrenched in Israel's power structures. Graduates receive prestigious education and grants, fostering a tight-knit community of mutual support.

A Network of Influence

The foundation's alumni occupy significant roles in the Supreme Court, IDF General Headquarters, and other top institutions. They control major civil rights organizations and exert immense influence over the nation's governance.

The Global Agenda

Prominent global figures, including Israeli leaders like Netanyahu and Barak, are members of the CFR and WEF. Their involvement signals a coordinated effort to establish a new world order. These organizations allegedly exploit crises to push their agenda, as seen in the recent Gaza conflict.

The Existential Threat

Given the evidence presented, it is crucial to recognize the dangers of enlisting in an army influenced by the Wexner Foundation. The October 7th massacre is cited as an example of how these infiltrators paralyzed the army and abandoned their compatriots, driven by a diabolical agenda rather than genuine Jewish values.

The Broader Implications

The perpetrators of the new world order aim to harm humanity physically and spiritually, striving for the abolition of all religions and governments, and the establishment of a single, oppressive regime. They exert control through media, pharmaceuticals, and technology, spreading moral decay and societal destruction.

Our Duty

It is imperative for the informed public to reject these traitors and recognize the existential threat they pose. The continuation of their agenda could lead to an all-out war between religious groups, depleting our resources and endangering our future.

Together, we must stand against this global conspiracy, safeguarding our values and our very existence from those who seek to undermine and destroy us.

By understanding and exposing these truths, we can protect ourselves and work towards a future free from the influence of these nefarious entities.

Proposed Solutions

Empowering Ourselves Against Global Corruption

In the face of global corruption and infiltration, it's crucial to equip ourselves with the knowledge and strategies needed to resist and overcome these dark forces. Here are the key steps we can take to protect ourselves and our future:

1. Educate and Inform: Knowledge is Power

To counteract the influence of corrupt organizations, we must first educate ourselves:

- Deepen Our Understanding: Investigate the origins, agendas, and operations of these global entities. By knowing our adversaries, we can better anticipate their moves.
- Filter Information: Learn to discern between fake news and genuine information. Developing critical thinking skills and cross-referencing sources can help us see through misinformation.
- Share Knowledge: Spread the word about what you've learned. Inform your friends, family, and community about the realities of these corrupt influences. Knowledge shared is knowledge multiplied.

2. Raise Awareness: Strength in Numbers

Awareness is our greatest tool:

- Spread the Message: Use social media, community meetings, and public forums to share this document and the critical information it contains. The more people who understand the threat, the stronger our collective resistance.
- Mobilize the Masses: Encourage others to join the movement. Our strength lies in numbers; a united front can challenge and dismantle these oppressive structures.

3. Build Strong Communities: Unite Against the Darkness

Communities rooted in strong values and mutual support can withstand external threats:

- Form Alliances: Create networks of like-minded individuals who share a commitment to truth and justice. These networks provide support, resources, and a platform for coordinated action.
- Support Each Other: In times of need, communities can offer protection, share resources, and provide emotional and practical support. A united community is resilient and adaptable.

4. Outsmart the Plan: Stay Two Steps Ahead

By using our knowledge strategically, we can outmaneuver corrupt agendas:

- Strategic Planning: Develop long-term strategies to counteract the influence of these organizations. This might include economic self-sufficiency, political advocacy, or technological innovation.
- Resource Utilization: Leverage existing resources to enhance community resilience. This could mean anything from growing local food supplies to developing independent media channels.

5. Maintain Health: Build Physical and Mental Strength

A healthy body and mind are essential for sustained resistance:

- Prioritize Well-being: Focus on maintaining physical health through proper nutrition, exercise, and avoiding harmful substances. A healthy body is less susceptible to external control and manipulation.
- Mental Resilience: Cultivate mental and emotional strength through education, mindfulness practices, and supportive community interactions. Mental resilience helps us stay focused and determined.

6. Advocate for Change: Legislative Action

Political engagement is crucial for systemic change:

- Promote Good Governance: Work to elect representatives who are committed to transparency, accountability, and the public good. Support policies that protect individual freedoms and promote justice.
- Resist Oppressive Laws: Organize and participate in advocacy efforts to oppose legislation that infringes on rights and freedoms. Legal action and public protest can be effective tools against unjust laws.

Conclusion

Empowerment Through Action

By taking these steps, we can empower ourselves and our communities to resist and overcome the influence of corrupt global organizations. Together, through education, awareness, community building, strategic planning, health maintenance, and political advocacy, we can forge a future based on truth, justice, and resilience. This collective effort will ensure that we are not merely passive victims but active participants in shaping a better world for ourselves and future generations.

Let's unite, stay informed, and take action to safeguard our freedoms and values. The power to change the course of our future is in our hands.

By following these proposed solutions, we can build a formidable defense against the forces that seek to undermine our society. Let's commit to these actions and work together to create a world where truth and justice prevail.
