

ANNA DAVID

Founders and CEOs spend unnecessary time and resources trying to get attention in the marketplace so they can stand out from the competition. Anna David's Unique Story Method™ is here to save them.

When it comes to promoting your business, it's not about the product or service you sell. It's about the story you tell.

Yet too many business owners don't know how to tell their personal or company story. Instead, they pour time and resources into social media and publicity services. While they're wondering why they're not getting the results they want, their competitors are acquiring their potential customers and clients.

With the Unique Story Method™, journalist, TV personality and New York Times bestselling author Anna David shows entrepreneurs how to effectively understand and share their personal or company story so that their marketing and publicity efforts will actually pay off.

David guides business owners through the process of determining their personal or company story so they can use it to amplify their business. When presented as a workshop, it allows opportunities for the participants to open up to one another in a way they normally wouldn't.
