Kups and Coffee

From the President

Once upon a present time, out west (Arizona) a new publication is launched Kups 2020. As we begin this new decade, Kups 2020 looks to build relationships between companies and buyers. Buyers who are looking for great products and great services Throughout the years a hot cup of coffee has done just that. Coffee shops and other businesses that sells coffee and have a meeting area i.e. bookstores, super markets, and theme parks just to name a few, have been creating an atmosphere where people talk about their products and services as well as read about them in the local area.

Kups 2020 will advertise businesses products and services to the reading audience and more. Kups 2020 will have forty percent advertising and sixty percent content and stories. Kups 2020 will also get the community involved by publishing one family or person's story in each publication. For example, a student went from C's and D's to A's and B's, Kups 2020 wants that story. Another example, if a family took their yard from ordinary to extraordinary by landscaping it, Kups 2020 wants that story. If a couple or family had a great vacation, Kups 2020 wants that story.

Other content will feature products or services relative to but not excluding the services or products of the businesses who are advertising. Readers, I invite you to take the journey with me. Explore the possibilities of great products, great services, and great savings. During these times of uncertainty, Kups 2020 will advertise the companies with the best product and services for its readers. I look forward to one day meeting and greeting the readers of Kups 2020.

A Man Named Jadrik

It was a nice winter day back in January of 2020 when I walked through the automatic doors of Office Depot. There I was greeted by an employee behind the counter. I ask where there printing was and I was instructed to go right, through the opening to the printing room. I went to the counter, signed in, and waited to be served. After several minutes of waiting, I was called to the counter and ask what can I help you with today. As I begin to explain the publication I was starting, the young man listen and added some more suggestions. He went on to tell me about his background and his skill set. I learned he got into graphic art and design around the age of 18 and started learning as much as he could. He also started designing logo's for small businesses and individuals before starting at Office Depot. I still didn't know his name. As he shared more of his business background, his professionalism, his dedication to hard work, and giving customers the best experience while in the store became more apparent.

Jadrik is no stranger to publishing, his Uncle Steve Downs was a big inspiration for him. He was Editor and Chief of Chen Low Publishing. He published international magazines such as; Men's Exercise, Exercise for Men Only, Exercise for Women Only, just to name a few.

Jadrik family moved a lot because of the profession his mother was in. The young man from Saranac Lake, New York has lived in various states including Florida, New Jersey, and now Arizona for the past eight years. In his later years, Jadrik was home-schooled and fell in love with History and Science. His hobbies are; writing, art of all kinds, singing, and playing music.

Jadrik knew KUPS2020 when it was in its developing stage. He help design, type set, and put KUPS2020 together. Jadrik thank you for your professionalism and thank you for being my friend. This young man is the real deal. This young man is Jadrik Downs.

Coffee in the Morning

There are several surprising health benefits to that morning cup of coffee as long as you keep the consumption low, say three to four cups a day minus the sugar. Let's talk about several reasons why coffee is considered to be good for you.

(1) Coffee increases your memory. A radiological society of North America researchers found that drinking two to three cups of coffee a day improves short term memory and lower the risk of developing Alzheimer's disease.

(2) Coffee can lessen your chance of developing depression. A study on women published in the 2011 "Archives of Internal Medicine" found that women who drank two to four cups a day were 15 to 20 percent less likely to develop depression.

(3) Coffee can rev up your metabolism. Caffeine in your Morning Joe has been linked to boosting the metabolism, which aids in weight loss. Chlorogenic Acid that is present in coffee is also linked to lowering glucose absorption; ensuring sugar is flushed out of the body.

(4) According to several medical journals drinking coffee can lower your risk for families who have a history of type diabetes by 50 percent. The study shows a type of polypeptide that's in coffee can prevent abnormal protein fibers from developing. This is common to those with the disease.

(5) Coffee increases endurance. Drinking a cup of caffeinated coffee increases energy prior to workouts, however, it also strengthens endurance, greatly aiding athletic performance.

(6) Staying thin, so many people are struggling with their weight can be excited to know that drinking coffee may actually help you lose weight. There is a serious interest in how caffeine could play a role in obesity treatments, however research findings are not yet conclusive. The amount of evidence found that coffee causes an increase in metabolic rate and this helps burn up excess body fat is promising.

(7) Coffee is high in antioxidant qualities. Our bodies are involved in a constant struggle to resist toxic substances that are absorbed through food and drinks, pollution in the environment drugs and others. Coffee has valuable antioxidant properties. When you drink a cup of coffee, you boost your energy and strength which helps clean out those toxins from your body. You can say that drinking coffee reduces the risk of infections that gets in the body. This does not imply that someone with an infection can expect to cure it with a few cups of coffee. If you have an infection, see your doctor.

The Wall with a Pulse

Top Story

People have pulses, animals have pulses, but what about a wall? Here is the story. A few years ago, a rock wall was noticed along Goldwater and Scottsdale Road in the heart of downtown Scottsdale. It was a plain rock wall housed in a wire structure. It was approximately 4' wide, 4' tall and stretched for some distance.

It was interesting and unique to look at. It made you think, what a neat concept. Now as you drive through many parts of the valley, those walls are popping up everywhere.

You can see them along streets, in front of business and around residential homes. This brings me to the point of the rock wall with a pulse.

A few months ago, my fiancée and I talked about putting a rock wall in front of our home. I thought it was silly at first, but after she explained in detail how the finished wall would look and the beauty it would bring to the front yard. I then began to understand her vision, so we drew up a design and I started construction.

It took seven weekends to build the wire boxes, connect them, paint them, and put them in place. Once the wire boxes were in place, the rocks were washed and the assembly began.

As we searched through the rocks trying to find the best ones, the wall finally began to grow. Layer upon layer it grew. When it was close to the half way mark, we continually looked for rocks to build the wall when finally out of the pile there was this beautiful rock shaped like a heart. Both of our eyes widened as we admired how beautiful and unique it was. The thought came to mind, clean it and paint it.

Once that was done, then we decided where to place it. As I stepped back into the street and looked at the half built wall, the thought came to me, put it in the center. That is where the Heart belongs. So it was placed in the center of the wall.

The rest of the wall was built around and over it, making it a beautiful wall to look at. You are wondering, well, how did it get a pulse? Thanks for asking that question. OK, here it is. Each time you look at it, take a picture of it, or feel the beauty when you look at it, it beats inside of you. You take that beauty with you. Walt Disney said, "as long as there is imagination, Disneyland will never be completed". I say to you my readers, "as long as this picture of this beautiful rock wall is in your heart and mind, this rock wall will have a pulse".

Why San Diego?

San Diego is the home to many exciting places, i.e. Balboa Park, Little Italy, San Diego Zoo, Sea World, and the Wild Animal Park, just to name a few. The high rises by the ocean front are spectacular and offers dancing and dining with fantastic views. Once in San Diego, you can't help but get caught up in the excitement of the city. With so much to see and do, and its diverse culture, San Diego is one of the most enchanting cities in our nation.

This brings me back to the question, why San Diego? My fiancée and I spent the fourth of July week in San Diego Del Mar and had the time of our life. One special evening that stood out was the night we spent dancing at Humphries, located on Shelter Island in San Diego. As we walked in, paid and found a table in the middle of the club, we were ready to bogy and we did. During the breaks we walked out on to the terrace that over looked the bay, the yachts, and the boats docked in the harbor. Throughout the night as we danced, one couple stood out, the one dance they did captivated the club. I called it the "push back dance". As they danced and came closer together, they spoke a few words to each other, she would take her two hands, place them on his chest and push him away. The club would go wild. As their dance journeyed them back together, the moves were electrifying. But wait there is more that is a must when visiting San Diego. How about a dinner Cruise? Yes, you read it right. Weekend Dining Cruise aboard a luxury yacht that leaves from the Harbor about 7:30pm Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. After that wonderful Friday night dancing at Humphries, we were seated at the number one table on the second floor of the beautiful yacht by the window. Couples and families were tabled on the first and second floor. Before the yacht started its engines, we walked around the lower (first floor) and took in some of the beauty that was all around us. Then we made our way to the upper deck of the yacht where we could see the beautiful lights of downtown San Diego and the magic in the beauty that it brings to your senses. We went back to our table as the yacht was backing out to the ocean looking out the window at the beautiful lights of San Diego. There were some moments when our eyes met, I couldn't help but think how beautiful and loving she is and I am grateful to have her in my life. Sweetheart, before I finish writing this story, I want to say I love you. Thank you for all the beautiful memories.

Dinner was being served. The four course gourmet dinner was delicious. As we passed under the bridge that took us from San Diego to Coronado Island, the music began to pick up and the dancing started. The two and a half hours cruise from beginning to end was spectacular. At the yacht made its way back to the harbor we got up and danced a few songs keeping in mind what a wonderful time we were having. There is plenty more to write about, I will leave that open for other couples and families who have and will experience love and happiness while on their vacation. In closing, San Diego is a great vacation city and the great part, its only six hours drive from Phoenix.
