November Message From CEO

Trials & Tribulations Of Transitioning

This month this year is historical and honors our democratic societal norms while paying tribute to the military veterans who "signed a check to our country with their lives, " a quote made by one of the veteran warriors who honorably served our country in the military. As such, this message is devoted to the veteran warriors and all those who support them.

Transitioning into the civilian workforce while coming out of the military or while serving part-time in the military is not an easy feat. We are characterized as too tough, too disciplined, and told "you are not going to act as you would in the military around here, are you?" As such, getting a job commensurate with our training and experience is next to impossible. We are offered the entry-level position and told to pay our dues just like our counterparts who were working in the civilian workforce while we were in the military. We were also told that our military training and experience did not count and was not the same as what our counterparts got so, therefore; we are not qualified as much as they are for the jobs that are not entry-level. Is it any wonder so many military veterans and warriors are giving up on living?

With the deck so stacked against us, it is difficult to break the barrier of stereotyping and move onward and upward in our lives and in our careers. But, with Prosperity Pathways it is possible, in fact, it is probable to get a commensurate position with your training and experience. We know who the military welcoming companies are that are waiting to welcome you to their workforce. Contact us and let us help place you in a job with a welcoming employer! Hoo-yah!
