

Inside the WCS

sort of like ESPN the Magazine, but way shittier.

The scene has played out on the WCS countless times over the years. Four men approach the first tee, exchange greetings and then proceed to spend five hours together without engaging in any dialogue that might actually help them get to know each other better. So it is, despite playing together for the better part of a decade, most of the WCS attendees don't know a thing about each other.

Now this may very well be on purpose. Let's face it, time is valuable, you're on vacation and the last thing you want to do is get caught talking to someone you have little desire to get to know. On the other hand, you may want to get to know someone, but just might not know the right question to ask to get the person talking.

It is with that in mind that the editors of ITWCS have compiled the following "Guide to getting to know the Fellas" handbook for this year's event.

The guide contains two potential open ended questions you can ask every competitor on the swing when you find yourself alone and would like to accomplish one of two things: Either;

1) Kill the hour (KTH) -This is a question that will spark a thoughtful introspective dialogue with the goal of reveling the deep shielded pure nature of the individual.

2) Kill the conversation (KTC) -The goal being to get away from the person. This is a question that will quickly put the individual on the defensive, cause them embarrassment and ultimately cause them to exit the conversation and general vicinity as soon as possible.

We'll start with the Varsity:

Brian Grady

KTH: Ask him to walk through the 1982 St Louis Cardinal Baseball season.

KTC: Ask him for a favor.

Koz

KTH: Ask him what he thinks about Michael Phelps's 22 Olympic medals.

KTC: Ask him to spell anything. Including the word "anything".

Egan

KTH: Ask him what new gear he purchased for this year's swing.

KTC: Ask him how many women he has slept with in his life.

Nardi

KTH- Ask him how many women he has slept with in his life.

KTC- Ask him about the 1990 Thornwood vs Homewood-Flossmoor football game.

Boy

KTH: Ask him to walk through his investment portfolio.

KTC: Ask him how Howells and Hood is doing.

Shimo

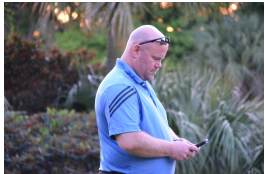

KTH- Ask him his position on the future of the NFL.

KTC- Ask him how much he has made on his past real estate transactions. Then congratulate him on his recent home purchase as he walks away.

Dug

KTH- Ask him anything and hope it only kills an hour.

KTC- Walk away. Unfortunately no other way to kill it.

B Moore

KTH- Ask him about his car.

KTC- Ask him to explain what he does for a living.

Burrows

KTH- Ask him to comment on tort reform advocates recent focus on personal injury common law.

KTC-Ask him to touch his toes.

Smitty

KTH- Ask him to see pictures of his kids.

KTC- Ask him to see pictures of Kristen.

Caliento

KTH- Ask him to walk through his job history.

KTC- Ask him how the renovations on his house are coming along.

Freezer

KTH- Ask him to describe the times in his life he feels like he 'got lucky'.

KTC- Ask him to describe all of his career receiving TDs.

Dusty

KTH- Ask him to walk through the Hilding family tree.

KTC-Ask him how many times his wife calls him TWalk during sex.

T Walk

KTH- Ask him to walk through his gun collection.

KTC- Ask him who he's voting for; Hillary or Bernie.

Nelly

KTH- Ask him how the State Farm discount double check works.

KTC- Ask him if he believes in strippers anymore.

Seth

KTH-Ask him to walk through the last 20 min of his Facebook posts. Should kill the hour.

KTC-Ask him where the phrase "piss drunk" came from.

Rod

KTH-Ask him to walk through his pre-swing though process.

KTC-Ask him how many black women he has slept with in his life.

Casey

KTH- Ask him if he wants a dance with Mary Jane.

KTC- Ask him to piss in a cup.
