

CIFST

Canadian Institute of Food Science & Technology
Ontario Section

COMMODITIES WEBINAR SERIES APRIL 22, 2021

Speaker Bio's

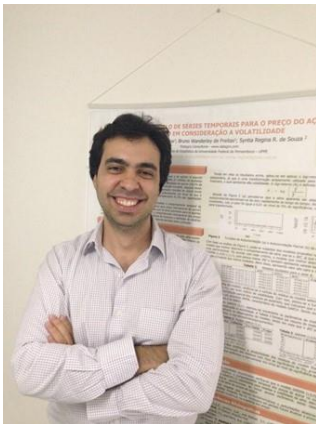

SUGAR

Moderator: Thomas Call
Commodity Market Analyst: Barry Callebaut

Thomas worked as a commodity market analyst and trader on the trading floor of the Chicago Board of Trade prior to joining Barry Callebaut in 2017. At Barry Callebaut, Thomas' focus is on the Dairy; U.S., World and Mexico Sugar; and Oils & Fats markets. With more than 15 years in commodity markets,

Thomas has vast experience analyzing commodity market fundamentals and examining drivers behind price movements and is an expert in commodity derivatives.

Expert Speaker: Bruno Wanderley
Senior Economist: DATAGRO (Brazil)

Associated to DATAGRO, heads the DATAGRO markets' research team. Senior economist responsible for writing in-depth daily and weekly reports on the sugar and ethanol markets and inter-related commodities, such as corn and crude oil, beyond industry/market reports in consulting projects (ad hoc analysis). Also analyze macro and microeconomics trends and how they impact the sugar and ethanol market, government policies and F/X changes and speak at events organized by industry and DATAGRO. He also serves as professor of economics. Holds a degree in Economics from University of Pernambuco, with a Masters from the same University.

Discussion Summary:

World Sugar prices have risen sharply in the beginning of this year and have seen volatility in the previous weeks. We are now entering the sugar cane season in Brazil - traditionally the largest exporter of sugar to the world. The conditions and production in Brazil largely dictate price swings in the coming months. Join us Join us for a conversation with Bruno W. de Freitas - Senior Economist for Brazilian based market research firm and consultancy Datagro. Bruno will provide insight into the sugar cane season and outlook for the sugar market.