Vitrine

This vitrine features a mirror back and floor. It is used to house sculptures in PLA that I printed in 3D from 2024 through 2026. Also included is a single example of a Mr. Milk Bottle bust I cast in urethane, and one example I had made by an outside company as a rapid prototype.

All these sculptures are facets of the same language of images that have appeared to me in dreams all my life.

Dreams are usually of a piece. That is, they are uniquely uniform. It is difficult to separate them into components. In order to print these small sculptures, I had to make these images separate, one from another. It took years.

Printing these 3D objects were a very rewarding enterprise. Even more rewarding was the realization that these tiny sculptures should be displayed as a unit. Lorna, my wife, was instrumental here, because she located the vitrine in the auction room here in Wesley Grand, and put in the winning bid. Here is the cabinet in our living room.

Rather than in a museum or gallery, which one has to travel to see, I believe my work is best seen at home, wherever your home is. Though, if your home is a museum or gallery, then there it is.

Following are some URLs explaining the objects seen here:

https://fredtruck.com/weaving-%26-3d-printing

https://fredtruck.com/blue-chromosome

https://fredtruck.com/solar-orbit-1

https://fredtruck.com/solar-orbit-animation

https://fredtruck.com/mr-chroma-bottle

https://fredtruck.com/sleeping-chromatid

https://fredtruck.com/my-monopoly-art-game includes the Trivet, the Bomb, Mr. Milk Bottle Contemplates, and Stop Action https://fredtruck.com/reliquary Originally appearing in 2016, Rocky Milk Bottle is briefly described as “a great Heavy Weight champion with a fatal glass jaw.” He plays a much larger role in the Vitrine.

At the very top of Vitrine, you will find the da Vinci Flying Machine. This PLA sculpture requires more explanation, which you can find here:

https://fredtruck.com/da-vinci-flying-machine

Please enjoy my work.