Commanders Report

Greetings friends and fellow compatriots, Happy New Year. We start of this year with our first meeting at Chill on January 18th and are pleased to have as our guest speaker Mark Vogl. Mark spoke at one of our meetings last year and we are delighted that he has accepted our invitation to speak again. The month of December was a busy one for our Camp which is unusual for being so close to the Christmas and New Year's holidays. Please continue to keep Allen and Mike in your prayers. Allen is still recovering a getting better each day, thank you Lord! I want to send a special shout out and thank you to Billy for stepping up and volunteering to oversee flagging operations at this year's Stock Show Parade, which has just been cancelled. I have not received any word about flagging the Rodeo from Festus. Let me be clear about the Rodeo flagging. If we do this, we need a to present a good showing of support for this event. The R. E. Lee Camp has always helped us out and now it is time to show support for our Southern Heritage and their efforts. I am planning some minor revisions to our Camp Constitution and hope to present those to our members at the February meeting. By the way, I want to thank you all for the Gavel and Teakwood Case presented to me at the banquet! I promise to use it with a humble heart and I'm so grateful that you elected me to wield it with a measure of wisdom

I hope to see you at the meeting this coming Tuesday the 18th. Mark V. will be speaking on The Lee - Jackson Partnership. Don't miss this presentation.

God Bless Texas and Dixie! God Save The South!

Trust in the LORD with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways acknowledge him, and he will make your paths straight. Proverbs 3:5-6

I memorized these verses years and years ago, along with John 3:16 and other verses that good little children in Sunday School learn. In my five-year-old mind, I associated the proverb with a mental picture of a road stretching out for miles until it merged with the horizon. That was the "straight road" that I could so easily understand—clearly marked, unswerving, and, most importantly, unchanging. All I had to do was trust God and keep following that path. Little did I know, right?

At times, the journey has felt more like an anecdote that I remembered reading about a man traveling through a thunderstorm. Through the mud and sheets of rain, the poor traveler felt that he would lose his way entirely. The thunderclaps seemed right overhead, jolting his senses every few moments. Only the flashes of lightning helped him keep to the road. Finally, after a particular loud crash, the man fell to his knees and cried, "O, Lord God, if it's all the same to you, I would like a little more light and little less noise!"

The major and minor uncertainties I've encountered—and will encounter in the future—often leave me with that sentiment. I think back to the promise of paths made straight and grumble that the signposts would be a lot easier to follow if they were in neon. We all ask, is this the career path you want me to take, God? Is this the woman you want me to marry? Should I buy this house? Are we supposed to settle at this church? Am I supposed to go here or there? Do this or do that? God, I could easily use a lightning bolt to clarify things!

It's easy to forget that the proverb reserves the promise until the last quarter of the verse, not the first. Review the wording of verse 6 with me. "In all your ways acknowledge him, and he will make your paths straight."

I memorized this verse years ago, but I'm still learning it by heart. It's easier to visualize myself making "progress" towards a goal than it is to stop and refocus on inner attitudes. It doesn't occur to me that part of the plan is simply standing still, waiting, and listening. I demand lightning bolts to see God's working rather than taking responsibility for the part assigned to me. My part lies in the trusting, the repudiating of self, and a settled confidence that he will work all things for his purpose. Then...the path is straightened. We may not even realize it this side of heaven, but the promise is that he guides our feet when our eyes are on him.

I fully believe that the Lord guides us in specific ways—through the Word, through the counsel of godly mentors, through nudges of the Holy Spirit—and yet we get caught up in the road metaphor a little too much. We're so distracted looking for the path that we forget a lifestyle of worship. To an extent, it matters less what we're doing than how we're doing it. As Paul wrote, "So whether you eat or drink or whatever you do, do it all for the glory of God." 1 Corinthians 10:31

The Old Camp in Graham, Texas

Last December, we celebrated our newest SCV Camp in Graham, Texas. However, while browsing through the 1893 Volume of Confederate Veteran Magazine I ran across the following letter to the editor from Capt. A. T. Gray of Graham Texas: "Our Camp is not a large one. The county was a wilderness during the war, and has been settled since 1875, and Confederates here hail from every State in the South and represent almost every battlefield fought under the stars and bars; and could you be with us in some of our reunions and listen at the tales of valor told by these boys in gray, it would do you good. Our Camp sent up, through Gen. Cabel something near $100 more than two years ago to aid in the building the grandest monument to be erected in commemoration of the grandest name on the pages of American history---the leader of a people who has few equals and no superiors in ancient or modern times. Having served in the Thirty-first Tennessee Infantry under Stewart and Strahl, I have a right to speak on behalf of Tennessee soldiers. Send along the Confederate Veteran; we like the name."

The 1893 Volume of Confederate Veteran is the first Volume printed. If you notice in Capt. Gray's letter, he mentioned that they sent "$100 more this year than two years ago", so this would indicate that the Camp in Graham, Tx. was in operation during the early 1870s.

Do You Know the Answers? You Should!

1. What do you know about Robert E. Lee?
2. What did he say to his soldiers in his farewell address?
3. Where did he spend the last years of his life?
4. Where is he buried?
5. Tell of his faithful horse Traveler.
6. How did Gen. Jackson obtain the sobriquet "Stonewall"?
7. Who gave it to him?
8. Where did he teach before the war?
9. Where is he buried?
10. Repeat his last words.

Read "Stonewall Jackson's Way."

CONFEDERATE AIR FORCE FLIES AGAIN!

This afternoon, a banner plane pulling a massive Confederate Battle flag and the message "GOD BLESS ROBERT E. LEE" flew over Monument Avenue and LEE Circle, where crews, under orders of Virginia Governor Northam, are working to dismantle the massive base to the Robert E. Lee monument, once the crowning glory of what was formerly known as the "Grandest Avenue in the South". It now resembles more of a burned-out war zone, with the remains of the beautiful memorials covered with profanity and cop-hating graffiti, which democrats in the City of Richmond and the Commonwealth of Virginia refuse to remove, lest they upset the hate-fueled rioters who turn to violence when they don't get their way. Reports from the ground included cheers and salutes from citizens, and a few vulgar gestures and shouts of obscenities from haters.

The Virginia Flaggers hired the banner plane, funded by our supporters, to send a strong message. To the citizens of Richmond and the Commonwealth who OVERWHELMINGLY are against the left's monument removal campaign: You are not alone. You have a voice. We will not stop fighting for the honor and memory of our Confederate dead. Join us. To those who are blazing the path of destruction and desecration: We will not be silenced. We will not back down from our duty. We will replace what you remove, and as God vindicates, so will the name of Robert E. Lee be spoken with reverence by true Virginians long after those tearing downing his memorial are gone and forgotten.

"His (Robert E. Lee's) deeds will be remembered; and when the monument we build shall have crumbled into dust, his virtues will still live, a high model for the imitation of generations yet unborn." ~ President Jefferson Davis, CSA, Richmond Dispatch, November 4, 1873.

The Virginia Flaggers have been very busy and we are thrilled to announce that we have signed leases and building permits IN HAND for TWO new roadside memorial battle flag sites in Virginia!

These are great sites, with excellent locations and historical significance, in a community where a Confederate monument was removed. One will be a major project for us (financially and construction-wise), a mega flag, with an 80' pole that will fly a 20' x 30' battle flag! Construction will commence NEXT WEEK. Pray that everything will go smoothly and we can beat the winter weather and get them both completed quickly.

Like many of you, we are experiencing extreme supply chain issues. Material for pipe is in very short supply. In fact, we have several other projects that are ready to go, but we can't find the pipe we need to build the poles...and all materials and labor costs have nearly doubled. We have no intention of letting it stop us, but it certainly has made things take longer than usual, and cost a lot more. If you have any connections that may have access to used flag poles, or steel or aluminum pipe, please contact us!

In the meantime, we appreciate your continued and generous support as we continue to stretch every penny to fund new construction and maintain and supply flags for our 30+ existing flag sites.

Thank you, gentlemen, for your dedication and commitment to our Cause!

Stay tuned for progress reports on the two new sites, and dedication/flag raising information...

For Christ and the Confederacy,
Susan Lee

Spirit of Defiance!

Many of you will remember that after a lengthy legal battle, and underhanded shenanigans by the Louisa County Board of Supervisors, we were forced to lower the I-64 Charlottesville Spirit of Defiance Battle Flag a few months ago.

We lowered it to 50' per the law that was changed AFTER we raised the flag. This made it NOT visible from I-64, but we left the flag flying since it marked the grave of one of our Confederate Veterans.

Fast forward to New Years Eve, 2022... and we are pleased to share that THIS is the current view from I-64...

Not only is the original flag still flying (you can see it in this photo behind the new flag) but a NEW mega flag has been hung from wire, closer to the road, and is now even MORE VISIBLE from I-64 THAN THE PREVIOUS FLAG!
SPIRIT OF DEFIANCE, INDEED!

SLRC Update

Southern Legal Resource Center

Charlottesville voted to give the bronze equestrian statue of Gen Robert E. Lee to an African Art group to be melted down & turned into some kind of (no doubt) degenerate sculpture, we at the SLRC have been deluged by queries demanding to know what we are doing about this atrocity. Most of the queries, as far as we can tell, is from people who have never given a dime to our (since 2015) monument cases or probably any other heritage cases.

For the record, as bankrupt & bereft of funds as we are - the SLRC is doing what it can.

We are working with a young man from Charlottesville, Andrew Phillip Hamilton, who has an attorney, who is working on injunctive relief to stop the smelting scheme. The attorney needs to work fast, as the bolsheviks will want Lee smelted before the newly elected Governor can do anything to stop them.

My answer to the queries was testy (not really, but it was what I was thinking):

"Where have you been the last 6 years when we struggled with deficient resource4s to fight this monument destroying evil? So it took melting Lee down for you to figure out how much our evil opposition HATES US AND EVERYTHING WE STAND FOR AS NORMAL AMERICANS!?! And that after they get our monuments, WE ARE NEXT!"

So now that we've said WE TOLD YOU SO - start helping us before it is too late."

To help you along - When the SLRC receives $2000 in designated donations. $1000 of which will be donated to the Lee statue fight, I will donate my 600 page, 1895 copy of the History of the Lee Family 1642-1892 by Edmund Jennings Lee (who was a minister and I think 2nd Cousin of Robert E. Lee) to the SCV Dept of the Army of Northern Virginia, which will place the book in the library of the SCV Museum at Elm Springs.

SCV Petitions Supremes to Hear Alpharetta, GA Government Speech Case

CITY OF ALPHARETTA, GEORGIA: SCV you can't march in our Veteran's Parade (started by Confederate Veterans in the 1870s) with your Battle flag!!!~ WHY? BECAUSE OF "GOVERNMENT SPEECH" THAT'S WHY!

SCV: OK TYRANT, WE'LL SEE!!

Petition for Writ of Certiorari filed 27 DEC in the Supreme Court of the United States. The SLRC is proud to have been able to humbly assist in this noble endeavor as part of the litigation team. Help us with your most generous donation, so we don't have to ask the SCV to cover our fees.

This is case is critical for the future liberty of groups disfavored by current Woke state & federal regimes. Kiss SCV/any non Politically Incorrect group's participation in local parades or community events goodbye if we can't change this tyrannical & evil Government Speech doctrine.

GOVERNMENT SPEECH IS TYRANNY!!!

An Old Confederate's Story of Irish Wit

Tommy Logan was a typical son of the Emerald Isle who entered the Confederate Army at the first call for troops from Mississippi. He joined the company to which I belonged which was formed of young planters, all or nearly all the sons of wealthy planters of Hinds and Madison Counties. Tommy was older than any of the other privates and had traveled over nearly all the States as a common laborer, mostly with his shovel or hod. Never was Tommy wanting in a reply to any question asked; he needed no time to "frame" his answer. The only besetting sin of this true man and soldier was his love for the jug. No kinder man ever lived. He was liberal to a fault and had impoverished himself that other might not suffer.

When General Lee's army was encamped around Fredericksburg, Va., with the Federal army waiting to attack as soon as they could cross the river, General John Magruder, a splendid officer, and brave commander, issued an order that no intoxicants should be sold within the Confederate line nor sold or given away to any Confederate soldier. General Magruder was himself a hard drinker, and this, and this alone, kept him down to the rank of major general. A few days after this order Tommy was detailed as a guard at General Magruder's headquarters and was on duty near the General's tent when a conversation arose between the officers as to why the pay of the Confederate army was fixed at odd numbers, a private receiving $11 per month, a sergeant $17, a lieutenant $91, a captain $121, and a general $301. They could arrive at no conclusion to the controversy. One of the aids to the General who knew Tommy said: "General Magruder, old Tommy Logan, the guard out there, may answer your question. He has a ready answer to any question asked him."

So, another soldier was sent to take Tommy's place, and Tommy was ordered to headquarters more as a joke than for information. When Tommy came up, it was plainly seen that he had been drinking, and he thought that was why he was ordered to headquarters. General Magruder said: "Sir, I see you have been drinking. Will you tell where you got the whiskey?" "O, General, I'm afraid you will put me in the guardhouse, and I think the damn Yankees are thinking of taking Fredericksburg, and I would hate to tell some of my good friends in town I did not fire a shot in their defense." "No," said the General, "I will not punish you if you will tell where you got your whiskey." "AH, General, that sounds so kind of you to say that that that matters not where I got the whiskey; so, I will tell you the God's truth where I got the liquor." "Yes, if you will tell me truthfully where you got the whiskey, I shall see that no punishment is given you. Now tell me, where did you get the whiskey?" "Well, General, I took a stroll around the hills beyond the clump of bushes, and I saw some horses hitched, with no attendant looking after them. When I was with a racer in Kentucky some years ago, I learned to love horses, and one of these animals was a beautiful bay. Ah! He was of royal blood, I bet. I went up to him and rubbed his head and neck. He seemed to know I was his admiring friend. On going around him I discovered a canteen hung to the saddle, and the devil take my curiosity, I smelt of the canteen and fond about three drinks of good whiskey. My curiosity to taste was up, and I took a small drink. Ah! Bad luck to whiskey. I made me want more, and I drank the entire contents of that canteen, not more than three fingers, though, you see."

Here the General put in: "Well, you are telling a long-winded story, and the one who owned the whiskey or horse you have not divulged, and you seem to want to hide. Out with the truth. Whose horse was he canteen on!" "Ah! My kind General, I do not know the owner; but I have for the last six months seen you ridin' that noble animal." When this came out the entire office force began to laugh, and one said: "General, Tommy is too much for you." "But" said the General, "he has not only got off for being drunk but has gotten drunk on my whiskey."

As Tommy started to leave, the General (who enjoyed the joke on himself) said: "Tommy, I sent for you not knowing you had been drinking; but some one said you could explain why soldiers' pay was put at such odd numbers. Now, you get $11 per month, and I get $301 per month. How do you explain that?" "Ah! General, that is aisy. I get $10 a month for the work I do as a private and $1 for the honor of being a soldier, and you get $300 for the honor of being a general and $1 for the work you do." I now must tell you that General Magruder never passed our company at any time on the march or in camp and saw Tommy that he did not raise his hat a salute the private who explained so fully the odd numbers that Congress fixed as the pay for its officers and soldiers of the line.

Dixie Poem

Created by a nation's glee,
With jest and song and revelry,
We sang it in our early pride
Throughout our Southern borders wide;
While from ten thousand throats rang out
A promise in one glorious shout,
"To live or die for Dixie!"

Beloved land! Beloved song!
Your thrilling power shall last as long—
Enshrined within each Southern soul—
As Time's eternal ages roll;
Made holier by the test of years,
Baptized with our country's tears—
God and the right for Dixie!

----Fannie Downing

Editor's Note: This poem appeared on the cover of Confederate Veteran Magazine, the April 1916 Issue. What made this so interesting to me is that I heard my mother mention Aunt Fannie. Aunt Fannie Downing was the youngest of eleven children born to Thomas Downing, Jr. and his wife Elizabeth. Fannie is the sister to my Great Grandfather Ruben. Five of Fannie's brother served in the Confederacy: Edward R. (10th Mississippi), Daniel (1st Mississippi Light Artillery), James (12th Mississippi), Benjamin (21st Mississippi), and William (1st Mississippi Light Artillery).

Aunt Fannie was born 11/29/1855 and passed on 9/23/1955. She is buried at the Reeves Chapel Cemetery in Hinds Co. Mississippi.

I don't know if this is coincidence, but my records would indicate that Aunt Fannie is the author of "Dixie."

CHARGE TO THE SONS OF CONFEDERATE VETERANS

“To you, Sons of Confederate Veterans, we will commit the vindication of the cause for which we fought. To your strength will be given the defense of the Confederate soldier's good name, the guardianship of his history, the emulation of his virtues, the perpetuation of those principles which he loved and which you love also, and those ideals which made him glorious and which you also cherish.”

Lt. General Stephen Dill Lee Commander-General United Confederate Veterans New Orleans, Louisiana 1906

Remember, it is our duty to see that the true history of the South is preserved and presented to future generations.

Until we meet again, let us remember our obligations to our forefathers, who gave us the undeniable birthright of our Southern Heritage and the vision, desire and courage to see it perpetuated.
