Commanders Report

Greetings Compatriots and friends;

I hope everyone is enjoying the long over due cooler weather we are getting. With that in mind we are coming up on our "busy season". But first I wanted to thank you to Lt. Commander Kyle Sims, 2nd Lt Commander Billy Goar and his wife Jennifer for representing the camp at the R E Lee Camp #239 Picnic last week. I also want to thank Clinton Stone and our Chaplain Jack Bowen for representing the camp at the General W L Cabell Camp #1313 pistol shoot. I really like it when our camp is represented at events, and seeing our members enjoying the camaraderie and fellowship with other compatriots.

Speaking of which, the Palo Pinto Camp will be performing a grave dedication ceremony on Sunday October 27, 2019. We are less than a month away from the Grapevine Veterans Day Parade. It will be held on Saturday November 9, 2019 at 10am, we will start lining up at 9am at the usual location on Dallas Street. Afterwards we will be gathering for lunch at Chill Sports Bar 814 S Main St, Grapevine, TX 76051. On Saturday December 7, 2019 we will be having our annual Christmas Party at Saljos from 12pm to 4pm. On Saturday December 14, 2019 the 7th Brigade will be having a Christmas Party at 7pm that evening. If interested in any of these upcoming events, please contact your camp officers for more information and details.

This month we will be having Chris Webb as our guest speaker, so yes Kyle Sims has lined up another great speaker for us. I hope to see everyone at Bone Daddys on the 15th.

Confederately yours, Commander Craig (Hoss) Stone Lt Commander Texas Division

2nd Lt Commanders Report

Dear Members and Friends:

I would like to thank Frank Bussey and his wife Becky for travelling to our camp and doing a great program. Frank is certainly an asset to the SCV and we are lucky we have people like him and Becky who devote so much of their time for the Cause.

This month we are going to have Chris Webb of the R. E. Lee camp #239 come to our camp and do a program on the "Rebel Yell." This will be a good program and I hope you can make it.

We are in the planning stages of the Veterans Day parade and the Christmas Party. After the holidays we will be in full swing for the Division reunion.

So we have plenty of events to keep us busy.

Jim Anderson once again did his Blacksmith at the Confederate Reunion Grounds in Mexia.

I believe we are going to have some new members joining our camp. We look forward to having these new members join our ranks and enjoy the organization like the rest of us.

Respectfully,

Kyle Sims

Lt Commander

Chaplains Corner Critics Abound

I remember reading this humorous story of a Hindu, a Rabbi, and a man who was a perpetual critic who were traveling separately through the countryside late one afternoon when they were caught in a terrific thunderstorm. All of them sought shelter from the storm at a nearby farmhouse. "The storm will be raging for hours," the farmer told them. "You are welcome to stay here for the night; however, there is a problem. I only have room enough for two of you in or home and one of you will have to sleep in the barn." "I'll be the one to do that," said the Hindu. "A little hardship is nothing to me." So, he went out to the barn. A few moments later there was a knock on the door. It was the Hindu. "I'm sorry," he said, "but there is a cow in the barn. "According to my religion, cows are sacred, and no one must intrude into their space." "Don't worry said the Rabbi. "Make yourself comfortable here. I will go sleep in the barn." He went out to the barn. A few minutes later there was a knocking on the door. It was the Rabbi. "I hate to be a bother," he said, "but there is a pig in the barn. In my religion, pigs are considered unclean. I just do not feel comfortable sharing my sleeping quarters with a pig." "Oh, all right said the perpetual critic, "I will go sleep in the barn." He went out to the barn. A few minutes later, there was a knock at the door. It was the cow and the pig. This interesting and humorous story is one that illustrates just how unpleasant and difficult it is to be around a critic. This is because critics are generally against more things than they are for. Critics are found everywhere where people are involved in constructive projects. If you've never run into a critic, it is because you have never tried to do anything of a constructive nature. A critic never has to have a search warrant to find faults. Why is this true? Those who can-do; those who can'tcriticize. Someone has said that criticism is the disapproval of people, not for having faults, but for having faults different than their own. Since critics have absolutely no ability to see their own faults, they spend their time feasting on the faults of others. If you are committed to getting things done, and to make SCV and our Camp, of which you are a part, a better happier, and more productive place, expect criticism. Don't let it throw you off stride. The person who never receives any criticism isn't breathing, If the criticism you receive is untrue, disregard it. If it is unfair, don't let it irritate you. If it is ignorant, smile. If it is justified, learn from it and keep on trucking down the road.

Camp 2292 News

Our camp has another chance to set a Confederate veterans stone in Mansfield. I was contacted by a SCV member by the name of Jim Fisher in Topeka KS who is quite elderly. His camp had a stone made for a Sgt. Justice. A living descendant of Mr. Justice lives in North Carolina. He is the one who signed the original application. Mr. Justice enlisted at age 21 on Sept. 11, 1861. He was in Company B, 35th NC Infantry regiment. He was promoted to Sgt before June 11, 1964. He was taken POW at the Battle of Globe Tavern, Virginia on August 21, 1864. Paroled and exchanged at an unknown date and was in the hospital at Richmond, VA on March 2, 1865. Festus Allcock said he would help me but would be nice to have one more since this is a large VA stone. The stone has already been shipped to Mansfield near the Mansfield City Cemetery where it needs to be installed in a 18" hole or picked up for storage. If you have any questions or would like to help then contact me.

A Update From The Virginia Flaggers

SECOND ROADSIDE BATTLE FLAG RAISED IN PITSBORO, NC

This afternoon, a SECOND Roadside Memorial Battle Flag was raised in Pittsboro, NC, in response to the August 19 vote by The Chatham County Board of Commissioners to force the removal of the Confederate monument there.

This project, like the first was a joint effort by the Virginia Flaggers, ACTBAC NC, and Fight for the Monument Pittsboro/Election 2020, and is located in downtown Pittsboro.

We are thrilled at the reaction and support from local citizens, who are fed up with the attempts by als to eradicate local history and disrespect their veterans.

We have only just begun to fight. Land is cleared for flag site #3... (NEXT PAGE)

Another Update From The Virginia Flaggers

THIRD ROADSIDE BATTLE FLAG RAISED IN PITTSBORO, NC

This afternoon, a THIRD Roadside Memorial Battle Flag was raised on a 50' pole on Highway 421 in Chatham County, NC, in response to the August 19 vote by The Chatham County Board of Commissioners to force the removal of the Confederate monument there.

This project, like the first two, was a joint effort by the Virginia Flaggers, ACTBAC NC, Old North State Flaggers, and a group of determined Chatham County residents.

We are thrilled at the reaction and support from local citizens, who are fed up with the attempts by activist liberals to eradicate local history and disrespect their veterans.

We did not ask for this fight, but we are in it for the long haul. We have only just begun. Weekly protests by citizens on the courthouse grounds are growing, and land is already being cleared for flag site #4...

General William Barksdale's Dog A Ghost Story

What would October be without a good "ghost story"? There are so many sightings from the War for Southern Independence battle sites especially Gettysburg that I thought I would include this particular story.

Confederate Gen. William Barksdale commanded the 13th Mississippi Regiment at the battle of Gettysburg and lost his life on the second day's battle. This unusual tale follows the battle. The general was buried in a shallow grave in Jacob Hummelbaugh's yard, but was not claimed until later by his wife, Narcissa Barksdale. Mrs. Barksdale traveled north and was accompanied by the General's favorite hunting dog. In the subsequent unearthing of Barksdale's burial site, the dog began to whimper and act strangely. The whimpering increased into a long mournful wail.

Once the general's body had been recovered, the dog refused to leave the gravesite and no amount of coaching would work. Finally, the animal had to be left behind, in hopes that someone would take care of the General's dog. Residents recalled seeing the dog as he remained steadfast by the site.

Some say the dog guarded the grave and became vicious when anyone approached. The dog would accept neither food nor water. Each night, the poor animal could be heard in a sound that started as a whimper and rose to a lonely wail. Finally, there was silence. The dog had either starved to death or died of a broken heart.

It is said on still nights, near the Hummmelbaugh house, you can still hear the dog howling for his lost master. Is it possible that Mrs. Barksdale took the wrong body back to Mississippi for burial and that General Barksdale still rests behind the Hummelbaugh house?

Into Battle with a Frying Pan from Jack Bowen

The frying pan was an essential item for cooking rations (if not a canteen half instead) that could be found in the average camp or bivouac; however, in a few instances' officers found themselves waving their men into battle with them instead! One incident at Spotsylvania involving an officer in Hood's 4th Texas Infantry, was recalled by several members of the Richmond Howitzers. On May 10, 1864, as continuous Federal assaults were made on Lee's left at Laurel Hill, one last attack by Ward's Brigade managed to breach the Confederate lines momentarily. The Texas Brigade and Richmond Howitzers were right in the middle of it.

"Captain James T. Hunter, of the Texans, was frying some pieces of bacon in a frying pan, over a little fire by one of the guns of the Richmond Howitzers. In a flash, the enemy was over the works, and we were in the thick of battle and confusion. The Captain glanced from his frying bacon, to see his company falling back from the works, and the enemy pouring over. The sudden sight instantly drove him wild with excitement! He utterly forgot what he was doing. With a loud yell, he swung that frying pan round and round his head-the hot grease flying in all directions-and rushed to his men and tried to rally them. (With a frying pan full of meat, he could have rallied the regiment!) When the rallied Brigade came whooping back upon the enemy, ten minutes after, who should be in front tearing up the hill, leading the charge, but the gallant Captain, yelling like everything, and still waving that frying pan, to the cheer of his men. More gallant charge was never led, with gleaming sward, than was this, led with that Texas frying pan." William Meade Dame, From the Rapidan to Richmond and the Spotsylvania Campaign, pgs. 171-172

An Appeal to Conscience from Jack Bowen

The following story involves a rather haughty South Carolina chaplain, a stolen buffalo robe, and a naughty member of the 16th Mississippi Infantry with above-average writing ability. Our tale begins with an article in the Richmond Enquirer (Richmond, Virginia), on June 10, 1863: An Appeal to Conscience We received a curious document, on yesterday, from the Rev. T.D. Gwin, Chaplain of the 1st South Carolina Volunteers, dated Greenville, S. C., July 8, 1863. It makes an appeal to rather a doubtful sinner. We give the following extract:

To the Man who Stole my Buffalo Robe! Sir: The Holy God, our Judge, amid the thundering of S inai, gave this command: "Thou shalt not steal!" On or about the first of April last, you stole my buffalo robe, with four or five blankets, a plush shawl, a pillow, and a pair of gray pants, from one of the hotels at Weldon, N. C. On my arrival in camp n ear Franklin, Va, I found the ground covered with snow. For the want of my robe, I slept uncomfortably on the cold ground, caught a severe cold, and was, in consequence, sick and unable to do any work for more than a week. From that time to the present m y health has been feeble, and I have not been able to endure the hardships and privations of the camp life, as I did before, when I slept comfortably. I have been in the S.C. Hospital, at Petersburg, Va., suffering from a settled cold and bronchitis. I am now, through the kindness of the surgeon and commanders of Jenkins' Brigade, at home on sick furlough, endeavoring to regain my former health. You, by this act of theft, are the cause of my disability to discharge the sacred duties of my office. Return the robe and contents to the hotel whence you stole them and leave them in the care of the proprietor. The robe is marked on the flesh side thus: Capt. T.D. Gwin, 1 st S.C.V. Do this and steal no more, and you will have a better conscience, and oblige. T. D. Gwin Chaplain 1 st S.C.V. Greenville, S.C. July 8, 1863

Eight days later came the following reply: Sixteenth Mississippi Regiment, Posey's Brigade, Camp near Bunker Hill, Va, July 16,1863 My Dear Gwin: I was inexpressibly sho cked to learn from your let ter in the Enquirer of the 4 th inst., that the temporary loss of your 'buffalo robe' blankets, pillow and shawl should have given you such inconvenience, and even suspend your arduous duties in the field for a week.. But supposing, from the mark, 'Captain" that it belonged to some poor officer of the line, and knowing that it was more baggage than he was entitled to carry, I relieved him of it from motives that will be appreciated by any officer of the line in the field. On my arrival in camp I divided the blankets, among my mess, and in a sudden fit of generosity I retained the buffalo robe, shawl and pillow for my own use. The other members now join me in returning thanks and feel that to your warm and gushing heart these thanks will be the richest recompense.

Reply: We are all of us exceedingly anxious for you to change your field of labor to this army, where the duties of chaplains are much higher than they could possibly be any where else. Here they devote themselves to trading horses and collecting table delicacies with a zeal the eminently entitles them to the appellation of birds of prey. I am now waiting patiently for your coat and boots, which I presume you will send me in accordance with the following instructions: "If any man takeaway thy coat, let him have thy cloak also." - Matt. Chapter 5, verse 40. For the regulation of the amount of baggage which a chaplain in the army should carry we refer you to the following: 'Provide neither gold, nor silver, no r brass in your purse. Nor scrip for your journey, neither shoes, nor yet staves; for the workman is worthy of his meat.' Matt. Chap. 10, verses 9 and 10. Anything you may have in excess of the above allowance will be most respectfully received by me.

I remain, my dear Gwinney, with sentiments of gratitude,

Why the Rebels Wore Ragged Clothes from Jack Bowen

The legislators of Indiana and Governor Morton, with their wives and daughters, went on a visit of inspection to the prisoners in Camp Morton in 1864. The Confederates were called out for dress parade and were made to look as well as possible. The distinguished body rode in fine carriages. One lady had her carriage stopped about ten feet from the line. Opening the side door of the carriage and pushing her head out, she asked: "Why do you Rebel soldiers dress so poorly?" Crockett Hudson, of Eaglesville, Tenn., replied: "Gentlemen of the South have two suits - one that they wear among nice people and one that they wear when killing hogs, and that is the one in which we are dressed today." She ordered the carriage of move on.

Trivia Question

What cavalry commander compared sabers to cornstalks and had his men armed with two six-shooters and their charges combined the effect of fire and shock?

Some Famous War Orders from Jack Bowen

General Lee said (Quote from General Order No. 73): It must be remembered that we make war only on armed men and that we cannot take vengeance for the wrongs our people have suffered without lowering ourselves in the eyes of all those abhorrence has be excited by the atrocities of our enemy and offending against Him to whom vengeance belongeth..." In sharp contrast the humane spirit of General Lee as exhibited in his issuing an order for the protection of private property when he took his troops into Pennsylvania is the spirit of the Federal commanders in issuing their orders for the devastation of the South. Was General Grant a real friend of the South after the war? What could justify the following?

City Point, July 14, 1864 "Major General Halleck, Washington D.C. If the enemy has left Maryland, as I suppose he has, he should have upon his heels veterans, militiamen, men on horseback, and everything that can be got to follow to eat out Virginia clear and clean as far as they go, so that crows flying over it will have to carry their provender with them. U. S. Grant, Lieutenant General

Headquarters in the Field, Monocacy Ridge, Md. Major Gen. D. Hunter, Commanding Department of West Virginia: In pushing up the Shenandoah Valley, as it is expected you will have to go first or last, it is desirable that nothing should be left to invite the enemy to return. Take all provisions, forage, and stock wanted for your command-such as cannot be consumed destroy. U.S. Grant, Lieutenant General

City Point, August 16, 1864, 2:30 P.M. Major General Sheridan, Commanding District of Winchester, Va.: When any of Mosby's men are caught, hang them without trial. U. S. Grant, Lieutenant General

City Point, August 26, 1864 Major General Sheridan, Halltown, Va.: Do all the damage to railroads and crops you can. Carry off stock of all descriptions and negroes, so as to prevent further planting. We want the Shenandoah Valley to remain a barren waste. U. S. Grant, Lieutenant General

Headquarters Middle Military Division. Harrisonburg, Sept. 28, 1864, 10:30 P.M. Brig. Gen. W. Merritt, Commanding 1st Cavalry Division—General: The major general commanding directed that you leave a small force to watch Swift Run and Brown's Gap and with the balance of your command and Custer's Division to swing around through or near Piedmont, extending toward and as near Staunton as possible. Destroy all mills, all grain, and all forage you can and drive off or kill all stock and otherwise carry out the instructions of Lieutenant General Grant, an extract of which is sent you and which means "leave a barren waste". James W. Forsyth, Lieutenant Colonel and Chief of Staff to General Sheridan.

Harrisburg, September 20, 1864, 7:30 P.M. Lieutenant General Grant, City Point: Torbett retired to Staunton, destroying according to your original instructions to me. This morning I sent around Merritt's and Custer's Divisions via Piedmont to burn grain, etc., pursuant to your instructions. P. H. Sheridan, Major General

To one who acted on the principle that "war is hell," whether he ever so expressed himself or not, the following order was evidently a message of joy:

Headquarters of the Army, Washington, D. C., December 18, 1864 Major General Sherman, Savannah: Should you capture Charleston, I hope that by some accident the place may be destroyed; and if a little salt should be sown upon the site, it may prevent the growth of future crops of nullification and secession. W. H. Halleck, Chief of Staff

So General Sherman responded in this kindly spirit on the eve of the day of "peace and good will to all men":

Field Headquarters of the Military Division of the Mississippi, Savannah, December 24, 1864. Maj. Gen. W. H. Halleck, Chief of Staff, Washington, D. C. I will bear in mind your hint as to Charleston, as I do not think "salt" will be necessary. When I move, the 15th Corps will be on the right of the right wing, and their position will bring them into Charleston first; and if you have watched the history of this corps, you will have remarked that it generally does its work pretty well. The truth is, the whole army is burning with an insatiable desire to wreak vengeance upon South Carolina. I almost tremble at her fate but feel that she deserves all that seems in store for her. We must make old and young, rich and poor, feel the hard hand of war as well as their organized armies. W. T. Sherman, Major General

John Singleton Mosby. "I believe I was the first cavalry commander who discarded the sabre as useless and consigned it to museums for the preservation of antiquities. My men we as little impressed by a body of cavalry charging them with sabers as though they had been armed with cornstalks. I think that my command reached the highest point of efficiency as cavalry because they were well armed with two six-shooters and their charges combined the effect of fire and shock."

Another Fryín' Pan Story

I just couldn't resist adding another story about going into battle with a frying pan, especially if the story involves Texans. The story involves Major John C. Upton of the 5th Texas Infantry.

In the Texas Brigade famous charge over the Federal works at Boatswain's Swamp in the battle of Gaines' Mill, Major Upton boldly led his men from the front. He looked every part of the rough Texas frontiersman-dressed in a woolen undershirt, black slouch hat atop his head, a brace of revolvers around his waist, and carrying a long-handled frying pan in his right hand!

As the 5th Texas crested Turkey Hill they overran most of the 4th New Jersey and 11th Pennsylvania. Colonel J.B. Robertson of the 5th Texas had been wounded, so the officers of the two Union regiments requested for another officer to properly surrender to. When Major Upton came running up, frying pan in hand, the refined and polished Federal officers could not believe who they had to surrender their swords to. Upton looked no different than the average private! He had to drop his skillet for a moment to accept an armful of swords.

Minutes later some of the Federal captives tried to make a run for it. Some Texans tried to pursue them, but Major Upton called out, "let them go, we'd a * sight rather fight 'em than feed 'em."

Humor on the March

If you are "of tender years" you might want to skip this story, but I found it too humorous not to print the following episode. The source is from Arthur Fremantle's book Three Months in the Southern States April-June 1863. This was a quote during the march to Gettysburg.

"One female had seen fit to adorn her ample bosom with a huge Yankee flag and stood at the door of her house, her countenance expressing the greatest contempt for the barefooted Rebels. Several companies passed her without taking any notice; but at length a Texan gravely remarked, "Take care madam, for Hood's boys are great at storming breastworks when the Yankee colors is on them." After this speech the patriotic lady beat a precipitate retreat."

Recipe from the Confederate White House

Mrs. Davis' Gingersnap Recipe 2 ½ cups shortening 3 cups sugar 3 eggs ¾ cup molasses 6 cups flour 4 ½ teaspoons soda 1 ½ teaspoon ginger

Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and molasses. Add flour which has been sifted with soda and ginger. Form in ¼ inch balls and roll balls in sugar. Place 2 inches apart on a greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees 10 to 20 minutes.

Store in airtight containers. The recipe makes about 16 dozen cookies.

CHARGE TO THE SONS

OF CONFEDERATE VETERANS

"To you, Sons of Confederate Veterans, we will commit the vindication of the cause for which we fought. To your strength will be given the defense of the Confederate soldier's good name, the guardianship of his history, the emulation of his virtues, the perpetuation of those principles which he loved and which you love also, and those ideals which made him glorious and which you also cherish."

Lt. General Stephen Dill Lee Commander-General United Confederate Veterans New Orleans, Louisiana 1906

Remember, it is our duty to see that the true history of the South is preserved and presented to future generations.

Until we meet again, let us remember our obligations to our forefathers, who gave us the undeniable birthright of our Southern Heritage and the vision, desire and courage to see it perpetuated.
