

How we help you move from considering a move to deciding whether to move or not

If you have lived in your current home for many years the idea of moving may be overwhelming. Moves in later life are, by their very nature, unique - financially, emotionally and practically.

Perhaps you're making a big decision without a life partner for the first time; maybe family aren't close by or available; perhaps the idea of looking for a new home or preparing your current home for sale is daunting. Whatever your considerations, our tailored service is designed to provide advice, information and support - without pressure - to help you make a proactive decision about your future. Here's how:

1 Consideration stage - your current stage

- Thinking about moving
- Looking for information
- Want to know the options
- Don't want to be pressured
- Want to make an informed decision in your own time
- Perhaps you are making a big decision alone for the first time
- Want to remain in control whilst being supported
- Feeling a bit 'stuck'

2 Consultation stage culminating in a tailored report
