in 1991 ONE million Americans were Infected with HIV in 2010 when studies showed between 10-25 Million Americans were infected with XMRVs

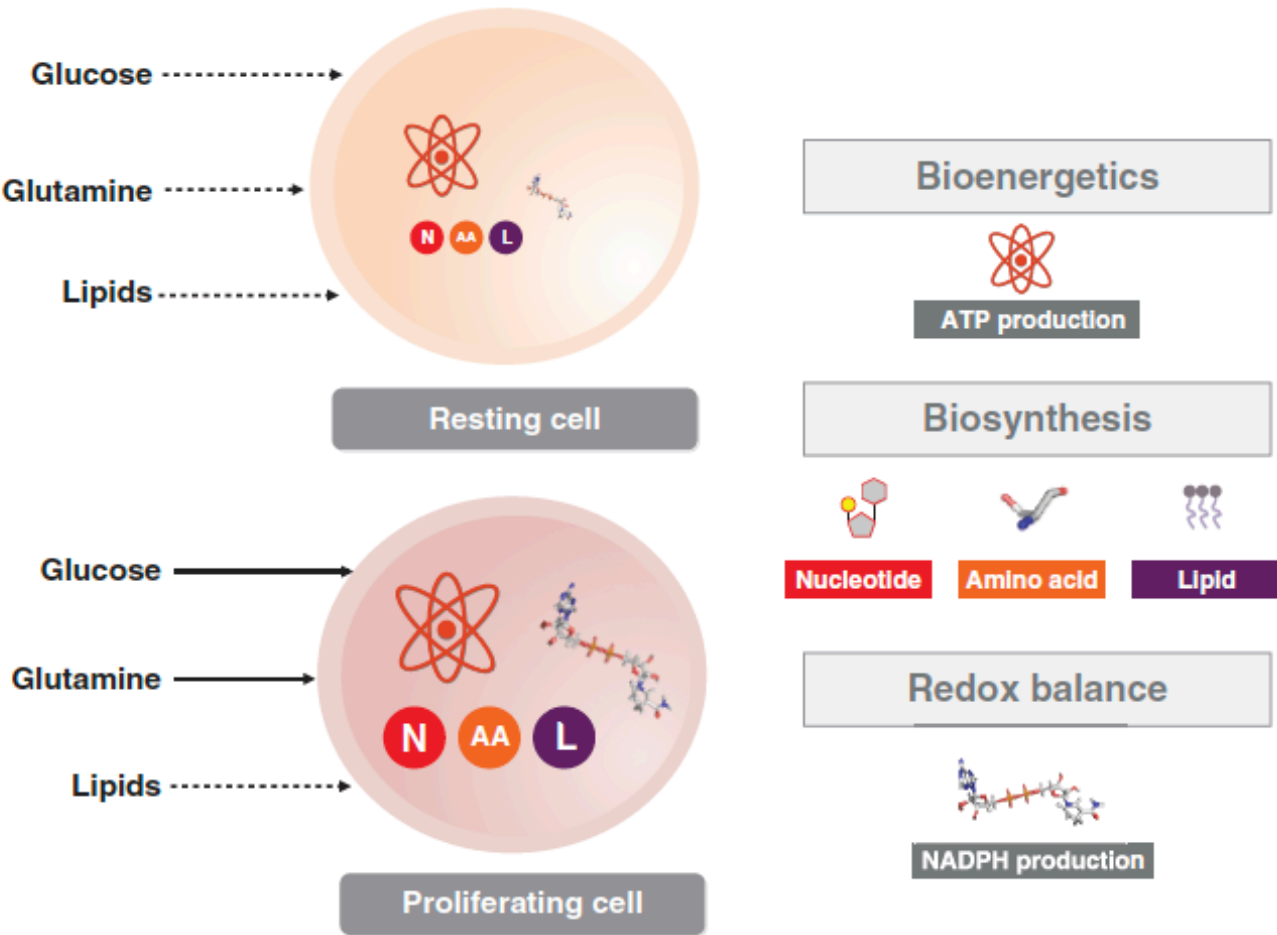

Figure 1. Metabolism: resting versus proliferating cells. Normal resting cells use a catabolic metabolism to satisfy the energetic requirements of homeostasis. This demand is met through fatty acid oxidation and the oxidative metabolism of glucose. Proliferating cells, however, must rewire their metabolic program to not only meet various energetic requirements, but to also satisfy the anabolic demands of macromolecular biosynthesis (nucleotides, lipids, and proteins), as well as the maintenance of redox homeostasis. Upon growth factor-mediated stimulation, proliferating cells increase their uptake of glucose and glutamine, which are the 2 primary substrates that fuel cell growth. Solid lines are indicative of increased cellular uptake.

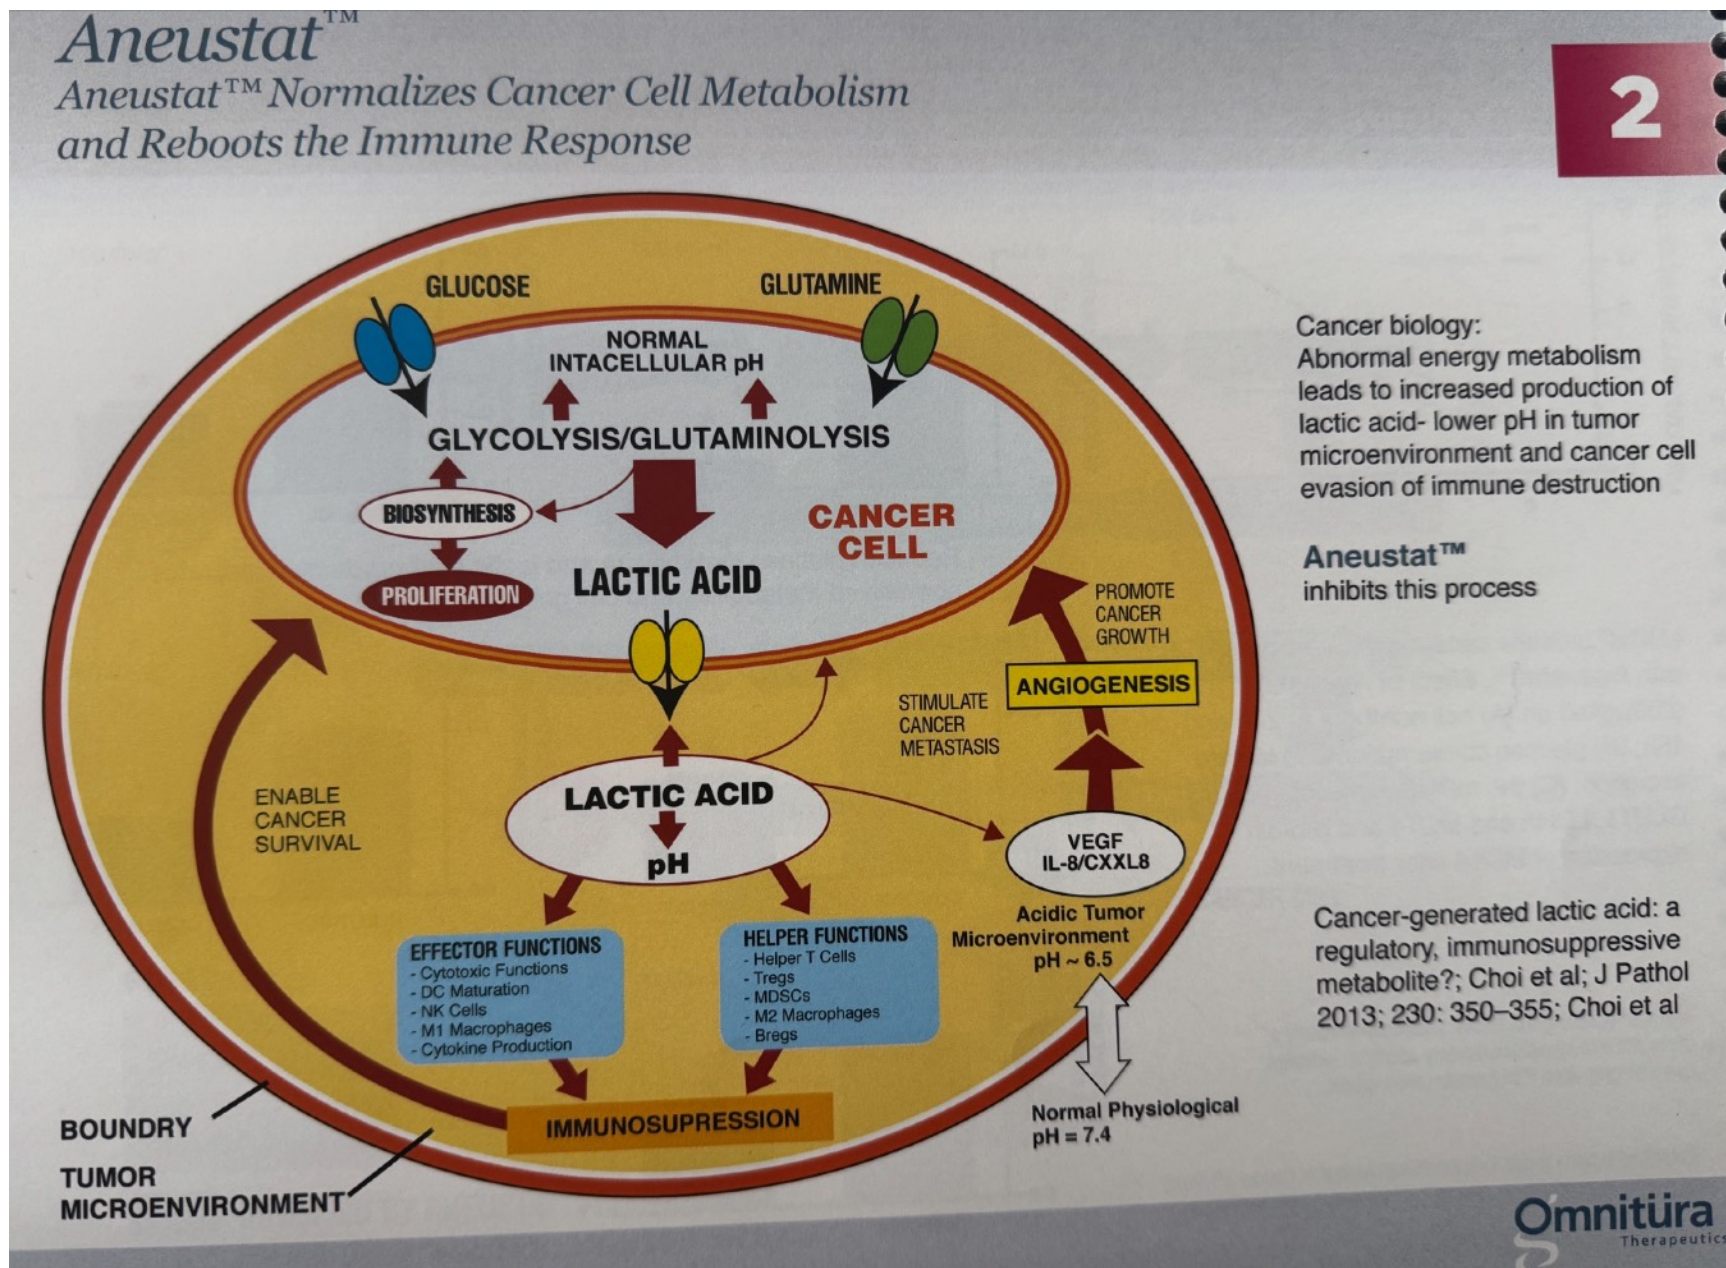

Figure 2. Hypoxic rewiring of metabolism. While aerobic proliferating cells use glucose and glutamine for biomass production through the TCA cycle, hypoxic cells shunt glucose to lactate and rewire glutamine metabolism. Glutamine can be used to drive the TCA cycle independently of glucose or contribute to lipid synthesis via IDH-mediated reductive carboxylation of ketoglutarate generated from glutamine.
