MAYOR LESLIE WATERS RE-APPOINTED TO WOMEN'S DEMOCRACY NETWORK COUNCIL

Leslie Waters, Mayor of the City of Seminole, former Florida State Legislator, President/ Founder of the Leslie Waters Government consulting firm, and former Adjunct Political Science Professor at USFSP and Eckerd College, has been re-appointed to serve, along with 25 other American women, on the Women's Democracy Network (WDN) Council, headquartered out of Washington D.C. and chaired by Cindy McCain, the wife of deceased Senator John McCain.

"Over the years I have consulted with women leaders in many countries, including in Sarajevo, Bosnia-Herzegovina, working with Bosnian women Members of Parliament; Libyan and Sri Lankan women on how to effectively advocate their governments, and with Jordanian elected women city officials. In North Africa I spoke from the floor of the Southern Sudan Parliament to women state and national legislators, and facilitated "Campaign Workshops" for Egyptian women running for Parliament," explains Mayor Waters.

The Women's Democracy Network is an Initiative of the International Republican Institute. The Council is instrumental in supporting WDN's mission of empowering women around the world to greater activism and leadership in public life. The Network of women is currently active in 86 countries in every region of the world.

Mayor Waters exclaims, "It is an honor to be asked to continue to bring my own business, campaign, political, legislative, and civic experience to the WDN Council in an effort to educate and connect aspiring women leaders across the world on ways to enhance their democracies."
