AMAZING ANINI 6D

- Day 1 : Dibrugarh to Tengapani - Parashuram Kund- Tezu- Roing (320 km / approx. 9 hours)

We will receive you at Airport/Railway Station and transfer you to Roing. You would be driven to Parasuram Kund via the beautiful orange producing town of Wakro (In season time you can stop over to enjoy the small town full of Orange Cultivation). It will take about 5 hrs and is 200 km away. At Parasurm Kund you could go down to Kund and absorb the sheer power and beauty of the crystal clear flowing waters. The whole day you can enjoy the lofty mountains and spent quality time on the river bank.

This place is also a photographers delight. After tea, we would proceed to Roing via Tezu Town and stop by at Bhismanagar (It is the oldest archaeological site of Arunachal Pradesh. It can be called a 'Hill Fort' made of burnt bricks. The fort is situated at 29kms to the south-east of Roing. The ruins of the Hillfort dates back to Circa 12th century A.D. Bhismanagar Fort was excavated during 1969-1973, which yielded terracotta plaques, decorative tiles, potteries, terracotta figurines etc. The artefacts throw light on the rich history of the area.) . Check-in at Hotel in Roing and overnight stay at Roing.

- Day 2 : Roing to Anini Via Hunli and back (225 Km /6 Hrs)

Early morning you would proceed to Anini via Mayodia Pass and Hunli. Mayudia, a unique hill resort, is 56km from the district headquarters of Roing.

Mayodia - It is situated at an altitude of about 7000ft. amidst the lofty hills, lush green forests and breathtaking landscapes. The area witnesses snowfall between December and March. A thick cover of snow adds exquisite serenity to the place.

Hunli - There is an interesting cave temple at Kupunli near Hubli. The Motor drive from Roing to Hunli through the well-maintained black-topped road provides thrill and eyecatching scenic beauty. After reaching Anini you would check-in at the homestay and rest for the night.

- Day 3 : Anini to Mathun Valley

After Breakfast, you would proceed for Mathun Valley, 30 kilometres away from Anini town, through which the Mathun River flows. The Mathun River meets the MIPI River and creates a beautiful sight that can be witnessed from the MIPI village. The village is 40 kilometres from Anini and during your trip, you will pass through numerous green grass hills flanked by snowcapped mountains.

After lunch you would venture out for having a grasp to the place called Anini. It isn't the sort of place where you make a list of all the spots you'd like to cover. It's the sort of place where you let your hair down and immerse yourself in the place. You take a walk around the small town, wandering through the streets talking to the locals. The best way to enjoy Anini is to walk along the meandering Dri River, admiring the mighty Himalayas tower over the landscape.

- Day 4 : Anini to Dri Valley

Today you would venture out for the Dri Valley. Dri does look like the ubiquitous destination with green hills and a river through it but it's so much more than that. Sights of snow-clad mountains and the Dri River carrying the reflections of those mountains is something out of a fairy tale setting! Dri is an amazing destination for those looking forward to trek into unexplored jungles. The village has an ITBP post beyond which travellers will need to traverse on foot.
