MEMBER SPOTLIGHT

Lisa Grenis is a retired educator who taught for 26 years, most of those years in Calvert County. In addition to teaching, she's been a Learning Specialist, where she worked with teachers and students to provide targeted instruction in order to increase academic achievement. She was also a parent volunteer and had two children graduate from Calvert County Public Schools.

During her tenure, Lisa Grenis has served as grade-level team leader; she organized academic after-school programs for students and parents; Lisa served as President of the Southern Maryland Reading Counsel; she presented at local and state teacher conferences; she was nominated for Teacher of The Year by Huntingtown Elementary staff; and Lisa co-authored an article for the Literacy Issues and Practices journal.

Lisa was elected to serve on the Calvert County Board of Education in 2022. Her goals are to make sure every student is excelling in the basics and on a path to pursue their interest in either college, technical training, or military service. She supports full transparency across our school system. Lisa's goals also include fiscal responsibility and to represent a common-sense approach to education. She has been fighting to improve the safety of students and staff, and also implement behavioral accountability with meaningful consequences.
