This Father's Day, we honor the fathers who serve
To the Canadian soldiers who are also dads - your service carries a double weight. While you stand guard for our nation's freedom, you carry photos of little faces in your chest pockets and count the days until you can tuck them in again.

Wars are not fought by childless soldiers. They're fought by fathers who miss bedtime stories, dads who carry the ache of absence alongside their duty to serve.

You've missed hockey games where your child scored their first goal, dance recitals where they finally nailed that routine they'd been practicing, birthday parties where they blew out candles wishing you were there. You've watched Christmas morning unfold through a pixelated screen, celebrated first steps through a delayed video message, and offered comfort for scraped knees from thousands of miles away.

Your children may not fully understand why Daddy has to go away, but they're learning about service, sacrifice, and love that transcends distance. They're growing up knowing that sometimes the people we love must do hard things to protect the things that matter.

To every military father - active service, veteran, or fallen - your sacrifice echoes through generations. Your children carry forward the values you've shown them: courage, commitment, and love of country and family.

This Father's Day, we see you. We honor you. And we're grateful for all you've given up so that other families can sleep safely in their beds.

Happy birthday to the Canadian Forces Military Police! 🎂🇨🇦

The Military Police traces its lineage back to the creation of the Canadian Provost Corps on June 15, 1940. This date has been adopted as the group's official birth date. For the past 85 years, Canadian Military Police have been active throughout the world supporting Canada's military operations, including the Second World War, Korean War, Cold War, first and second Gulf Wars, and numerous United Nations peacekeeping missions.

Today, the Canadian Forces Military Police serve on every military base and station in Canada and on most Canadian Armed Forces operations overseas. From its humble beginnings, the Military Police have evolved into a modern, professional police service that is highly respected within the Canadian law enforcement community and around the world.

Thank you for 85 years of dedication, service, and excellence! 🇨🇦
