FLEXI WATER HOSES –

Its just a matter of time...

Flexi water hoses are a ticking time bomb and will eventually fail – with potentially catastrophic results. Braided stainless steel has been found not to provide the required protection it first promised and could cost thousands of dollars in damage if it not checked regularly.

Commonly known as a flexi hose, flexible braided hoses accounted for more than one in five water damage claims lodged by Australian households in 2016, according to new research released by general insurer IAG. These hoses commonly only last about 10 years, and as they are typically out of sight and out of mind, it is easy to forget to have them checked.

** It is recommended to have them checked by a qualified plumber, to look out for any wear and tear on the hoses, such as corrosion or fraying of the metal.
