NC Couple Uses Quarantine to Drop a C-Note on Christian Hip-Hop World "Spiritual Lyricists" create virtual conference to help other artists thrive.

(Fayetteville, NC) – May 18, 2020 – While the global lockdowns as countries battle the coronavirus have seen normal life grind to a halt for many, things have never been busier for the Eley family.

When Marcus Eley found himself with some unexpected time off work after his shop closed due to the pandemic, he and his wife Myreah devoted that extra time to taking their hip hop careers to new heights. Known as the group "Spiritual Lyricists," The Eleys got to work, building the foundation for an online interactive hip-hop conference - C-Note. At C-Note, aspiring Christian Hip-Hop artists can showcase their work, meet other artists and potentially receive hundreds of dollars in funding for their music. Registration for the conference (which will take place in October of this year) is currently open and accepting applicants.

"We're living proof of the saying, 'When God closes a door, He opens a window,'" says Marcus Eley, who also performs under the name "caDASHtrophe". "Music has always been my escape, but now, it's become a way for Myreah and I to connect with God, each other and the world."

In addition to creating the conference, the Eleys have also spent the quarantine putting the finishing touches on a full-length album, Pandemic. They've made several music videos of their favorite songs to promote the album (some shot in their home with a cell phone and a home green screen). They also created "The 16 Project," a movement where artists, dancers, actors, singers and other creatives can use their creativity to speak their truth and raise up important issues that matter to them.

In addition to juggling these projects, Marcus and Myreah are parents to eight children, many of whom are also taking an interest in the family business.

"We love God, we love Hip-Hop, we love our kids and we love each other," says Myreah. "That's a lot of love, and we believe the power from that love is going to change the world. Soon, you will not be able to mention Hip Hop without recognizing Christian Hip Hop, and you will not be able to reference Christian Hip Hop without speaking about Eley Enforcement Entertainment, LLC."

Spiritual Lyricists' new album Pandemic drops July 31. Registration for the C-Note Conference continues through September 21, or until the conference registration is filled.

Marcus and Myreah Eley are available for interviews regarding their album, the C-Note conference and the future of Christian Hip-Hop. To schedule an interview, contact press@eleyenforcementent.life.
