Making Thinking Visible and AI in the Classroom

According to Inside Higher Ed, “Nineteen percent of teens who know about ChatGPT have used it for schoolwork.” The information comes from Pew Research report here, and, according to the report, many teens believe it is acceptable to use AI for research and to solve math problems. And even though most students believe that it is “unacceptable” to use it to write essays, twenty percent think it is “acceptable.”

Do you have ideas, reviews, or action research you'd like to share? We'd like to hear from you.
