

Law Enforcement Performance Pistol Training

Ongoing operational engagement-oriented training, based upon typical OIS (officer involved shooting) distances which vary from extremely close contact out to +/- 20 yards, and the ultra-high speed four to five shots per second split times typically associated with such confrontations.

Process Oriented training based upon the Three Pillars of pistol shooting:

THE THEORY

"With the exception of safety, there are no absolutes". Leaving dogma at the door, students are consistently presented with a multitude of options in order to find the absolute best technique suited for the individual.

THE MOTTO

"If we cannot teach you a technique in ten rounds or less, then we are either failures as instructors, or it is not the right method for you".

In the event of the latter, alternative techniques are offered until a suitable match has been realized.

THE FOUNDATION

Our work begins with the development of rock-solid pistol handling skills alongside a durable, reliable and repeatable grip; the critical elements required to begin the journey toward the culmination of speed and accuracy.

THE TRAJECTORY

With an open mind and the will to put in the requisite hard work, our LEO's are typically breaking their first shot with extreme accuracy from a level three duty holster in well under 1.75 seconds and sending very tight subsequent shots (fist sized groups) in 0.25 second split times (or faster) at seven yards, in very short order.

THE OBJECTIVE

Heavy emphasis is placed upon multiple target engagement work at random distances with varying target heights, sizes and levels of difficulty – with an A Zone accuracy accountability.

A tier one level of marksmanship, on demand, at speed is the standard.

Our LE Performance Pistol training mirrors the ever-evolving curriculum and instructional methodologies specifically designed for the tip of the spear units who routinely train with us on the automated Mission Critical Rogers Range.
