

jcannonbooks

Because everybody needs an editor . . .

and a newsletter

One for the road

You have to click to read this month's offering.

Clicking brings you to my story and photos recounting a ten-day meander through the American Southwest, a piece that was published today in Wine Dine & Travel Magazine's fall 2023 edition.

Come on, don't let me down, click on this sentence that cleverly doubles as a link.

It's free. Your computer, iPad, or phone won't seize up, and magazine publishers Ron and Mary James do a terrific job producing the magazine and reporting on their own travels around the globe (this time, Turkey). I suggest that you look at the magazine on a laptop, desktop, or tablet. That way, the piece will be easier to read and the photos will keep some of their size.

Newsletter subscriber Mike Burge also has a story in the magazine, a splendid piece about the wonders of Yellowstone National Park in winter. He tramped through head-high snow (it was packed down ... mostly) to report on encounters with bison, geysers (faithful and otherwise), and did we say snow? Now click already. Here's the link again.

And you think I'm done? I'm not done. I put together a video from the Southwestern trip. You will have to click on the link below. You won't be disappointed unless you don't like Monument Valley or Navajo flute music. It looks best if you click on the full-screen icon.

Click here for video.

No one will object if you share this email with friends or family.

The Mittens in Monument Valley Navajo Tribal Park.

Kind regards
jcannonbooks

September 2023

©2023 jcannonbooks | 9245 Twin Trails Drive #721492 San Diego CA 92172

Web Version

Preferences

Forward

Unsubscribe

Powered by GoDaddy Email Marketing®