The New York Times Interview

“ Marie-Claire is a very versatile and magnetic singer of a genuine lirico spinto soprano voice whose repertoire moves from opera to concert music and beyond. I have been privileged to compose music for her and hope the collaboration continues ”
- John Harbison- Pulitzer Prize winning composer”

Marie-Claire Giraud is a lirico spinto soprano, a jazz singer, musical theater singer, songwriter, composer, playwright, actor and activist. Born on the island of Dominica, raised in The Bronx, NYC she started her operatic training in Rome, Italy. The pandemic afforded Marie-Claire the luxury of time to reflect and she overcame obstacles that were blocking her creative path. With her creativity freed Marie-Claire wrote her first musical, discovered her true fach of being a lirico spinto soprano. With the musical finished, Marie-Claire has many more projects in the works, screenplays, novels, EP's, musicals and more. With her many talents, she is focused and excited on her operatic debut.
