*Thank you, for answering these questions. I am very protective of where I place my puppies and your honest answers will help me decide which pup is best for you. For instance, if you are not at all active, but are a home body and your biggest exercise for the day is gardening in the yard, please say so! It will make a difference which pup is best for you. You do not want a high energy, high drive dog if you do not foresee training or providing the dog with a lot of physical exercise because it will drive you crazy and frustrate the dog. My dogs make great family pets but also they can have a high competitive nature which is best cultivated when worked/trained. I recommend making a personal trip to see the pups if that is possible. For those coming from a longer distance and need over night accommodations, there is a very nice hotel five minutes from my house.
I do ship puppies. There is an additonal charge for shipping expenses, which includes the air fee, the crate and the health certificate. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact me.*
