Mr. Rockwood,

Since mathematics has become increasingly important in this day of advanced science, we want to thank you for your help in this department.

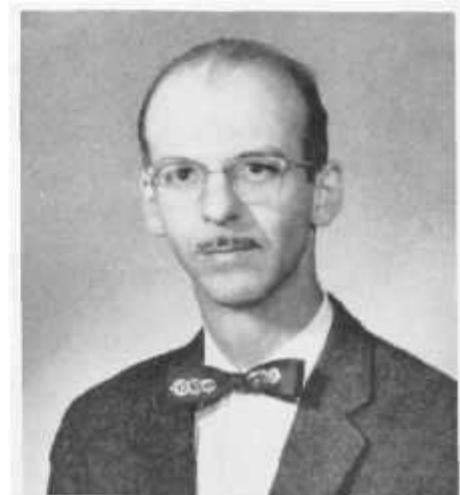

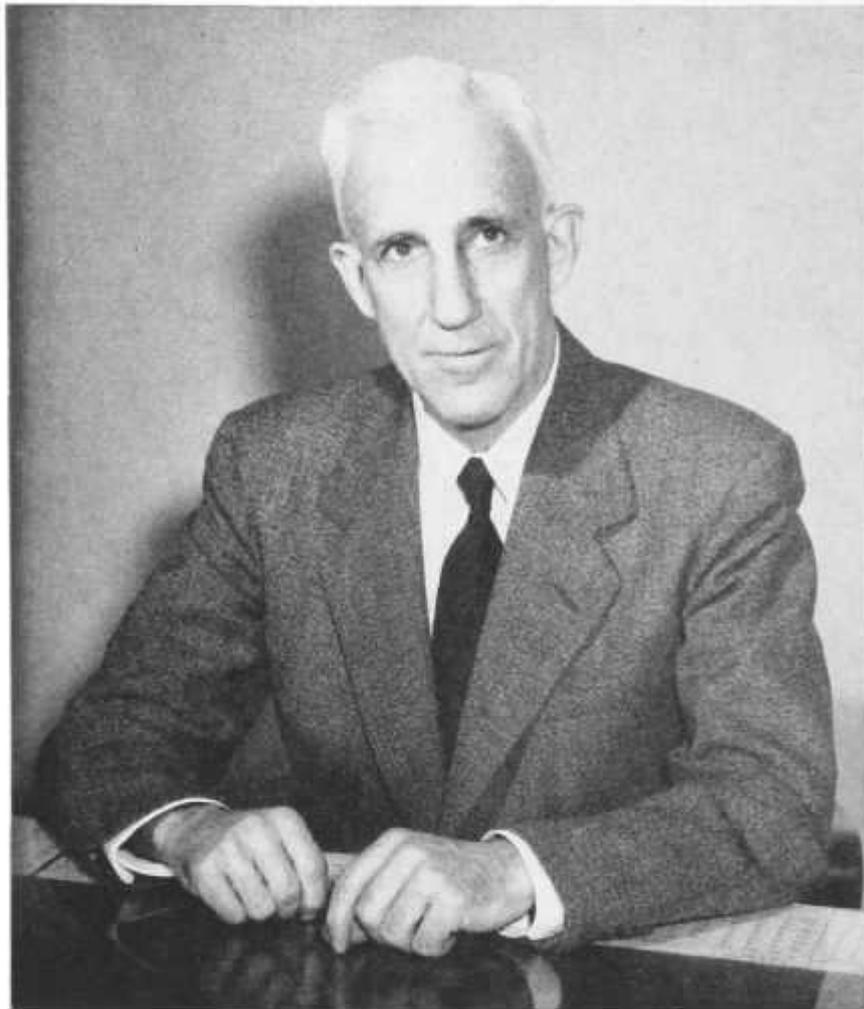

Mr. Schmidt,

For all the time, the personal help you have given us, and the pleasure and satisfaction we have had through the many performances of the Instrumental Music Department, we say, "Many thanks."

Mr. Van Nortwick,

Since vocal music plays a tremendous part in our cultural education, we wish to express our sincere appreciation for all your efforts, and for all the many hours of your time so generously given to us.

To Members of the Class of June, 1958:

The unsolved problems facing our country at this time should help convince us that America is still the land of opportunity. Too often the immigrant or refugee realizes this fact more than does the native-born. It is our hope that you will be concerned in the years after graduation not only with doing something for yourselves and your families, but also with doing something to help enrich your school, your church, your community, and your America. In doing so you will be helping to guarantee that our "sweet land of liberty" continues to be known throughout most of the world as the land of opportunity.

Best wishes to each of you.

Sincerely,

NEIL D. MATHEWS

MAGIC MOMENTS AT RHODES HIGH

In September, 1954, we arrived - - bewitched, bothered, and bewildered. We bought elevator passes, lost program cards, and caused general confusion. "Where's the cafeteria?" "Is this the way to the auditorium?" "Isn't this homeroom period?"

There were all sorts of laws to learn: the Code of Hammurabi, the laws of Julius Caesar, the Napoleonic Code - - even homeroom and school laws.

In our freshman year, we were much mystified. Whereas, we had always thought that an "X" represented a kiss, we were now taught that "X" stood for an unknown quantity in algebra ;while in English "X" stood for the known quantity, the subject of the sentence. Now we were confused! Was an "X" known or unknown? Was a kiss worth anything?

But now we knew everything. We were sophomores! We were wise to the mores. In elementary school we had worked long and short division. Now, we talked gaily of cell division, of amoebae, of protozoa, and of frogs' nervous systems.

Magic moments! We were juniors at last. That year we became aware that a dash wasn't just a mark of punctuation, but that "Dash" meant "president." That fact was again pleasantly impressed on us in our senior year.

Suddenly, as if by magic, some evil spirit had come up from behind and had pushed us into our last year at Rhodes. The mystery of CO_2 , H_2SO_4 and H_2O was now revealed. (My, how chemistry has gone up in value these last few months!)

And here we are at the last precious moments. It's hello to the future and farewell to the past.

Oh, moments of magic, you're fleeing all too soon, and now they all say we must go to the moon. So, good-bye, Alma Mater. We love you - - and yet, there's a lure and a call in the zoom of a jet. We'll enter, we'll win the contest for space. Just give us our helmets; we're off to the race.

Miss McGinness

If I had only one suggestion to help guide your future, it might well be Polonius' advice to his son "This above all: to thine own self be true . . . thou canst not then be false to any man." Pattern your life in such a way that you can face yourself in the mirror each morning with pride and satisfaction.

Harry E. Blum

To the June class of 1958 we hope the future will bring life's richest blessings among which we count good health, for without physical and mental vigor, industry and ambition cannot flower; an absorbing vocation, for without work life is dull and meaningless; love of family and friends, for without them prosperity loses its delight and adversity is hard to bear; and a satisfying philosophy of life, for without spiritual convictions, peace of mind and contentment with one's lot cannot result.

May all these be yours - - and one more gift, humility, so that though you may achieve renown, you will still be of service to your fellowman. Our very best wishes to each one of you.

Helen E. Palmer

May the experience and training acquired during your high school years make it easier to arrive at right decisions in the many and difficult problems you will encounter in the future. Best wishes for your success!

Carl B. Ferguson

OUR CLASS HISTORY — 1954-1958

GREENHORNS

With the opening of the September '54 school year there came to Rhodes the freshmen who were to be the graduating class of 1958. There were 267 of us then (138 girls and 129 boys), confused, bewildered, and perhaps bumptious as 9B's will be. Despite deviating influences, we all at length stumbled upon the auditorium that first day and were, for the first time, a united class. We were introduced to those fortunate (?) people who were to play the role of parents to this group of fourteen-year-olds who thought they'd already seen the world. The unsuspecting pedagogs were Misses Ballash and McGinness, Mesdames Karnatz, Mock, and Messrs. Bereit, Levine, Rockwood, and Seginac.

Several weeks of orientation classes and general instruction and we began to feel a little more at home here so that we could finally settle down to general science and algebra. The new band members really got a workout (and we bet Mr. Schmidt did too) getting acquainted with the side streets in the Rhodes vicinity during marching practice.

High school offered new experiences to us ninth graders. Football rallies gave us occasional breathers between classes, we attended musical concerts and the first National Honor Society induction gave us inspiration and encouragement.

After spending a year in these hallowed halls, we were well acquainted with Rhodes and high school life. We had passed the first milestone in the completion of high school and left the torn programs and gullibility of the freshman year to the incoming 9B's.

SOPHOMORES

We plunged into the second year of high school, joined by Mr. Templin who was to be our senior adviser. We went on to great things—dissecting cow's eyes in biology, tedious finger exercises in typing, and speech classes.

Now we began to join in the extracurricular activities and really got into the swing of things. Especially was this true of the Hi-Y pledgies. Remember the entertainment they provided in the cafeteria? Other activities such as majorettes, Gym Leaders, junior varsity athletics, Foreign Affairs Club, Student Council, the Glee Clubs and Junior Choir, posture contests, and Y-Teens showed us that a high school career is not only books and study alone. It is, in addition, a feeling of belonging to and taking part in the life of our home away from home.

UPPERCLASSMEN!

Having passed the half-way point of our life at Rhodes we began to realize that we were casting the die for our futures and that we needed to get down to business. In the eleventh grade, American history, physics, shorthand and autobiographies in English class took a lot of our time which seemed to dwindle as the assignments piled up.

Besides all this concentration on education, many of us found time to procure girls' gym awards and Varsity "R's". Others participated in dramatic and musical productions.

United for the second time while at Rhodes, we had our first class meeting in the auditorium. Class officers were elected as a result of this meeting: president, Dick Dash; vice-president, Nick Chapler; secretary, Ojars Mantenieks; treasurer, Sue Hricik; and social chairman, Tom Gerdel.

"Roman Holiday", our first informal, got our class activities off to good start. Snow Road Metropolitan Park was the scene of our 11A picnic. The girls' soft ball team, under the splendid management of Mr. Hoffman, put up a good fight and a winning battle (or was it a losing battle?) against the merciful onslaught of the tactful masculine forces. This contest was followed by the attack of these hungry athletes on the pavilion, which held for us what we were disappointedly to discover were raw hot-dogs and sour Kool-Aid.

Eleven of the scholarly members of our class were inducted into the National Honor Society which was a sign that our scholastic endeavors were beginning to pay off. To climax our junior year Tom Gerdel and Rita Erne were elected to the offices of president and vice-president of the Student Council for the following year.

WE MADE IT!

Beginning our last year of high school, reaching the top, and becoming seniors, we embarked upon completing the twelfth and final stepping stone of our public schooling. We left the old homerooms to become united in the girls' 219 and the boys' 209 homerooms. New class officers were: secretary, Alice Gompf, and social chairman, Mary Jane Egna, while others retained their previous posts. Despite unfavorable weather, our picnic, thwarted by a continuous deluge of rain, was a tremendous success. One success followed another and our 12B informal, "Drifting and Dreaming," continued in the same pattern.

Our fellows were the star athletes of the football squad, and our class was well represented in the election of the football queen for that season. Other contributions from our class were a Community Fund speech, great artistic achievements, honors in music, and more National Honor Society inductees. The basketball team also was led by members of our class. With the 12A semester we took over the "senior" tables in the cafeteria and went on in our second semester of chemistry and more Senior Choir. We did our share in promoting honor study halls and providing hall guards.

Class officers for the 12A semester were: president: Dick Dash; vice-president, Ron Annes; secretary, Alice Gompf; treasurer, Ojars Mantenieks; social chairman, Pat Hunsicker; and yearbook editor, Larry Wozny.

Major activities in this semester were our 12A informal, "Mardi Gras," the picnic, and our prom, "In a Persian Garden," with our musical Commencement on June 10th terminating twelve years of scholarly effort.

Reminiscing, remember when we all had plenty of study halls and nine-period days, and we could get to classes on time; when the boys could wear blue-jeans and the girls wore slacks to school for the class picnics; when fire and security drills brought about haphazard confusion; when everybody was able to hear homeroom announcements; and finally when there were enough chairs in the cafeteria for exhausted seniors?

These treasured recollections of our dear old Alma Mater, James Ford Rhodes, we recall with nostalgia, remembering the fun, frivolity, friendships, and fundamentals established here.

Gentlemen, the freshmen: you are little frogs in a comparatively large pond. It is lovely, this pond, its waters lily-strewn, its banks shaded and cool. Why try to fill the pond? Why burst your heart with useless striving? Look to the lilies and the flowers growing on the banks. The waters of the pond are crystal-clear for those who would look deep in them, the perfume of the flowers sweet for those who would bow and breathe their fragrance, the sky beyond the whispering trees blue and pure for those who would look. You have only four years. Look far and see wisdom, breathe deep and drink into your soul all beauty, lift your eyes to the boundless dome of aspiration. Four years—beyond them life, life with its labor, its mysteries, its joys, its sorrows. Gather flowers with your left hand; with your right, forge a sword of finest steel. You have a battle yet to fight, with happiness its goal. If you would be armed well, no time must be lost—and the armor must be an alloy of your own soul and wisdom; it must be welded with your brain, your strength, your dreams.

TO THE EDITOR:

Greetings to the June Class of 1958. You the students of Rhodes have a goodly heritage indeed.

From the high vantage point of twenty-five and a half years at Rhodes, it is a great pleasure to reflect on the past and its contributions to your heritage. Vividly I remember that February of 1932 when we were younger; we squashed through mud, rocks, and other multifarious debris for the opportunity to enter these brand new and magnificent halls of learning. Ahead was a chance to establish precedents, to attain great goals, to learn all the enduring values which an education might give one.

Throughout all these years many fine students have proved that Rhodes did give them opportunity for betterment of themselves as individuals, as scholars, as citizens. Not only did they recognize the opportunity but they used it to the full. As I look back over the years, I can recall many students who did grasp these opportunities and who made or are still making successful lives for themselves. They took advantage of everything that school offered them, realizing full well that the responsibility for a successful life depends to a large extent upon their own efforts and desire to succeed.

Many of you are among those who have taken advantage of the opportunities offered by your school. To all of you I send my very best wishes. You have a goodly heritage indeed.

Edith Cherrington

TO THE EDITOR:

When Rhodes High opened in February, 1932, there came into existence a new school. The building and equipment were new--yes, even to the point of rawness, for it was not entirely completed; the faculty was new--having been collected from other schools; the students were new--to the school, to the grades (8B--12A) and to each other. No auditorium, no girls' gym, no landscaping, no athletic field, no playground, no familiar teachers' faces, no old school friends--all was new. Moreover, another new something was entirely absent--that real but intangible something; that of tradition, custom, spirit, pride, and all else which is necessary to a feeling and knowledge of a school.

Five grades, a faculty of fifty, approximately fifteen hundred students, new furnishings, malfunctioning heating, unpainted walls, plankboards for a walk laid in a mud stretch, a school treasury with zero funds, athletic teams without equipment, a band without uniforms, and the depression of the thirties were all part of the background of beginning. Yet, seemingly at the very start, just about everyone felt and realized there was a job to do--a big one. As each part of the job appeared, there were many who appeared to do it. The carnivals to raise money just to buy and do some of the things needed in a school, the circus in the gym, the band uniform campaign, the various club and class groupings, study and scholastic attainment--all came along and all were accomplished, some beyond expectation. Each Rhodian had a part to do which he did - and a little more. There came out of the sum total of these contributions a model which came to be recognized as Rhodian; the source of the growth that led to the excellent reputation held by Rhodes High School by all who knew it or had heard of it.

That to me is the most impressive event in the history of Rhodes High: the molding of a good name, a heritage of sincere pride.

Oliver Hoffman

TO THE EDITOR

Although I entered Rhodes with apprehension, I realized that this was the beginning of a great challenge. These next four years would, basically speaking, set the pattern for the future.

In my freshman year I found myself confronted with those things I now accept as routine.

During my sophomore year I gained confidence in myself and began to take interest in social activities of Rhodes, such as various clubs and sports.

My junior year furthered the companionship of our class by having its traditional picnic and informal.

My senior year is the year I would cherish most of all. To me it means the last basketball game I have played in for Rhodes, the last choir concert I have taken part in, and missing a lot of friends that I have learned to know these last four years.

Completing my final year at Rhodes, I feel that I have overcome the challenge that had been put before me these last four years of high school.

THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

We, the June class of James Ford Rhodes in the year of our Lord 1958, being of nearly sound and disposing mind and memory, and not acting under duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence of any teacher whomsoever, do make, publish, and declare this our last will and testament.

SECTION I

I, Sarah Meyer, leave my little boy hair cut to a little boy.

I, Marcia Stosak, leave my taste for clothes to those with an appetite.

I, Sondra Wilmoth, leave my giggles to a most happy fella.

I, Ruth Hallett, leave my freckles and charm to a charm and freckle collector.

I, Gale Pritko, leave my dancing ability to the King of Siam.

I, Martha Strong, leave my blush to all the frustrated underclassmen.

I, Marilyn Anter, leave my ability as a soloist to all gondoliers.

I, Barbara Bacik, leave my piano accompanying ability to all lonesome pianos.

I, Allan McGreevy, leave my Brooklyn accent to Mrs. Murdock.

I, Nick Chapler, leave Mr. Arvanitis my Greek recipe book.

I, Ron Telischak, bequeath my two letter-sweaters to someone with four arms.

I, Paul Csank but will rise again.

SECTION II

I, Ron Annes, leave my nickname "Floyd" to anyone who wants it.

I, Ken Kroneker, leave California and its weather to Cleveland.

I, Jerry Croft, leave my nickname "Cuddles" to Elvis's teddie bears.

I, Jeanne Swasey, leave the bowl I use to cut my hair with to all those with pony tails.

I, Ron Geil, leave an acetylene torch to the chemistry classes.

I, Alfred E. Neuman, leave its cracker to slip a rozer the dropsy in snide.

I, Ken Morrow, leave my nickname "Schnooksy" to somebody who looks like one.

I, Tony Mirinda, leave two hundred pounds of pizza to my favorite teacher.

I, Pat Syroski, leave my elevator shoes to anyone who needs a lift.

I, George Yaworsky, leave 365 quarts of burned midnight oil to all future ambitious students.

I, Marlene Zelek, leave my raised eyebrows to anyone who is surprised.

I, Anne Achberger, leave my bulletin boards but not Allan.

I, Tom Gerdel, leave mine and a season's pass for a box seat in the plush underground track.

I, Michael Palumbo, leave my sax and my laugh for a real Panek.

I, Tom Mroccka, leave my trumpet and my long wind to the other real Panek.

I, Joyce Quinn, am leaving to get a Butch.

I, Richard Almy, am leaving town.

I, Dorothy Watt, leave in my Volts-Wagon to get a charge out of life.

I, Bill Cieslak, leave my ropes in gym to swing for the higher things in life.

I, Brenda Fink, leave my quotation, "Always Fink ahead."

I, John Rohde, leave to raise a bunch of little Rhodeans.

I, Terry (A. E.) Huetter, leave my saying, "What, me worry?"

I, Virginia Burry, leave my collection of $15 bills to the F. B. I.

I, Joe Rusnak, leave my longjohns to Mr. Hoffman's cool classes.

I, Betty Weaver, leave my loom to whom?

I, Alan Miller, leave my tattoo you.

I, Marilyn Swanda, leave my nickname "Swabbie" to all sailors.

I, Barbara Scott, leave 500 flaming batons to Darlene Schwark.

I, Joe Herron, leave my parking space to anyone who can get it.

I, Gloria Davis, leave my fraternity pin to all those who intend to get stuck.

I, Danny O'Meara, leave my jitterbug to the Canteen Committee.

I, Sue Ryan, leave sixty packs of Double-Bubble gum to Mr. Henderson.

I, Steve Korylak, leave my entire stock of insult cards to the school library.

I, Tom Mills, leave a box of tinker toys to Mr. Henderson.

SECTION III

We leave to Miss Cherrington desks with built-in dictionaries.

We leave to Mr. Ralls the holey board of education.

We leave to Mr. Templin an ever-ready baby-sitter.

We leave to Mr. Moran seven feet of basketball player (twins 3 1/2 feet each) for his All-Star Basketball Team.

We leave to Mr. VanNortwick a key to wind up his Little Wonder.

We leave to Mr. Bonza a year's supply of forged hall passes.

We leave to Miss Kenyon a ticket for an African safari.

We leave to Mr. Henry, Bill Svozil.

We leave to Mr. Damko a year's supply of gasoline.

We leave to Miss McGinness a solid gold whistle.

We leave to Mr. Holden 500 free tickets to Student Council dances.

We leave our sincerest wishes that there will be enough chairs in the cafeteria.

SECTION IV

Our class leaves to posterity these immortal words:

Dan Burton after mispronouncing homogeneous, "I like to do a few things wrong!"

John Birkimer: "If this is the happiest time of my life, I don't think I want to go on with it."

An excerpt from Gordon DeMars's poem: "Who's that Russian wise and fat? . . ."

Mr. Hoffman: "If you don't get it this semester, you'll get it next semester."

Miss Cherrington during a Word Wealth lesson: "Shano, you're so handsome; but why can't you spell?"

Will Naumann: "I want to get one thing out of school—me!"

Jerry Carraway in English class: "I don't think it was so worse."

Mr. Jacobs during the discussion on Antarctica: "Cold is caused by the absence of heat."

Mr. Hicks to the advanced math classes: "Quiet, girls!"

Sue Turnbull's daily contribution to class: "Boy, I'm glad I'm normal!"

SECTION V

Some of the famous literary works written during our four years, we leave to the library.

Confessions of an Extortionist by Sue Barniak, Student Council treasurer.

my life thus far. Thrills like that of a certain NHS induction, singing with the choir and Triple Trio, or editing the Rhodes Review can be understood only by those who have experienced the same privileges. These events constituted the highlights of my high school years; but among the enjoyable experiences that can't be omitted are flaming chem labs, the American History classes in which Mr. Hoffman was forced into drastic disciplinary measures with the talkative "Grandma Quinn," or the squiggles we accepted on faith in shorthand.

As a reminder of the many school activities; I've kept a collection of posters, programs, report cards, and even a personalized get-well card sent to me by Miss Cherrington's English class. These sentimental objects can never replace the events they represent. At best, they can only renew the happy memories of my days at Rhodes High.

TO THE EDITOR:

I wish to thank you for this opportunity to express my feelings about Rhodes. It is a wonderful school with a lot of wonderful people.

I will never forget our 11A informal, and the many friends I made there. Of course, there were other dances and there will be many more, but this is the one I will always remember.

To the faculty I would like to express my sincere thanks for helping me get the good education I now have. Without their help I would certainly have missed many of the fine things in life.

I am proud to graduate from Rhodes.

JUST THINK

"GREAT EXPECTATIONS"

By James Hamilton

During the past four years, we have experienced world-shattering and record-breaking events which have affected our personalities and philosophies. We have matured in a singular era, an era which was characterized by man's upward climb to better living.

Let us again walk down the halls of James Ford Rhodes and, amidst the undying footfalls and bubbling laughter; let us be referred to previous events and the effects they made upon our lives.

The labor, anti-trust, and various other investigating committees have played such an important part in our lives; the position once held by McCarthy is coveted by SHARON BLUNK. Similarly, TED KLEIN has adopted the Estes handshake, while TONY TYRPAK has assumed the coon look. These conferences have not only augmented our vocabulary and indigestion but have afforded MARIE LABYK opportunity to practice shorthand and TOM MILLS to develop his cleaning industry. Other national and international news has affected our dispositions.

Budapest, the city washed red by the blood of its freedom fighters, has inspired JANE BOLEK to perfect the blood-proof shoe. Budapest, the scene of a horrible defeat and a winning victory, has induced JIM McRAE to hit the moon while HELEN CHARVAT and VICKY KROKOS have applied for positions in the United Nations Security Force. This event has also caused the team of PROKUPPEK and POLY to develop a freedom bomb - - one sniff and you're free. Second to Budapest is Little Rock, the sore spot of the nation. It is said that Governor Faubus will be defeated in the next election by KEN DANCİK. Ken predicts that with the aid of National Guard officers, KEN and BILL GRAINGER, there will be no further riots. Governor Faubus is not the only personality that has influenced our class.

Heroic Babe Didricson has been the inspiration of the women's first four minute mile which is being perfected by DOLORES STEFAN. So also, Van Doren, quiz champ, has induced DORIS AKINS to become all-time book worm in order to equal her idol. DORIS BOLSTERLING, inspired by Marlon Brando, sees an "Oscar" in her future. She has only to find a part that is suited for her. In like manner, SALLY GRIEBELER hopes to imitate the success of Grace Kelly, while ALLEN EICHLER hopes to match Humphrey Bogart. In addition, BOB CRAIGIE is slated to replace Jimmy Hoffa, Teamster boss. He promises free reins. Likewise the personality of the American Observer has caused SANDRA BEATON to develop the Kruschev smile, while JOHN BROWN has been animated by his idol, Billy Graham. Space has also influenced us, and since there is some, we will say a few words about it.

Animal lovers jumped to their feet in indignation at the thought of a poor, unprotected puppy, secluded in the lonely, empty vastness of outer space. News has been received that pilots SARA BROWN and AL PELOSO have volunteered to act as substitutes in proposed space experiments in order to prevent further cruelty to dogdom; space congestion is said to be a problem of tomorrow. MARIE FOECKING has been designated as "Czar" of the space police, while PAT DECKER has been assigned to M. W. B. (MIELKE Way Beat).

GERDEL IN THE STRETCH

In the fall when the dead leaves are falling
And wild birds have ceased their shrill calling,
Helmets and pads are donned by stout lads
Who partake in the rasslin' and maulin'.
Oh! For the days of the gridiron brawls
Geared under the leadership of Mac and Ralls.
The husky Ram team of blue and of white
Did give its opponents a hell of a fight.
And leading his men was RON TELISCHAK

With strength and courage to back the attack.
Ends, GLOVER and MANTENIEKS, showed their skill
When they blocked and ran and took many a spill.
To one was often said, "That'll learn ya!"
But he came back for more, did CALI-FORNIA.
There was never a player quite as rare
As vociferous RUSNAK, nicknamed "The

BARGIEL and CROFT made tackles by the score
Practically always they traveled home

There was always DENNIS with the first aid
To patch up the wounded and bury the

In the spring when the lilacs are blooming
And lovers have started their cooing,
The time is near when the trackmen appear
To thrill us with jumping and zooming.
First call, second call, third call, the gun,
Twisting and panting, the cindermen run.
Down the stairways, around the curves,
Race the Holdenmen completely unnerved.
Groaning and moaning, BURTON runs
the mile,
Captures a trophy, trots off with a smile.
The second place winner is—oh, my stars!
It's another Rhodes runner—GORDON
DEMARS.
In the fifty yard dash there is no sorrow,
For first place was won by speedy KEN
MORROW.
KAMINSKI gives Ken a close run in the

It's a guess to see who can run more

Watch those hurdles and see how they

Under the strides of MROCZKA and ANNES.
Pole vaulter BRANDENBURG wins with

Goes over the bar as high as you please.

Come with us while we trace back the map of time to a period when knights were dazed and, - - well, see for yourself.

King HEIDELOFF and his knights, Sir
SNOWBRICK, Sir HABERKORN, and Sir JOHN JANKE are concerned over the presence in the kingdom of Grendel, the fiery dragon. Princesses DOLORES IHNAT and LYNN HIRSCH are playing a game of blackjack in the royal garden when Grendel sticks his head over the garden wall, saying, "I wuv you, I wuv you to bits!"

Princess Dolly runs to the castle and procures an axe to break the glass of a wall case which reads, "In case of dragon, break glass". Sir Janke steps through the broken glass. Under PAT CHAPMAN'S influence, the dragon promises not to blow smoke at the castle and says, "I dont wuv you anymore."

In another part of the kingdom, Clyde,
the alchemist, and his assistants, ROSE
CESARATTO and BARBARA FUER-HOFF, are studying their editions of
BARBARA BICKLEMEYER'S book, "500 Magic Terms and Potions." "Oh ho," the master wizard calls, "it's time for classes!" As NANCY GEHL and JOAN GEN-IEC, two would-be magicians, approach the tower, the assistant mixes the chemicals so that none of their experiments will work.

Along one of the forest paths ride two rich nuns, BEVERLY NICKLAS and PAT NIELSON. Suddenly, from behind a large bush, jumps JIM MORDAUNT and two of his merry men. "We'll take your money, my rich friends," calls NICK CHAPLER. "Oh well, it's for a good cause," declares RONALD SLOVICK. As the three bold robbers walked away, they decide, "After all, we're the poorest in the kingdom."

Conversation overheard between two young WACS: "Golly, BARBARA MEIER, isn't this a terrible life? This morning I was awakened by our sergeant,

FRANCIS McLAUGHLIN. She told me it was 4:30. I told her she'd better get to bed, since we had a tough day ahead of us tomorrow."

"Yes, JOYCE NAHUIS, I know what you mean. I asked the supply sergeant, OWENA O'KELLEY, for a few more rounds of lip-stick, and she said, "Remember our camp motto, 'Less and less of more and more makes us fit for lots of war!'"

"Do you know, Barbara, I think those Army fellas, DICK DASH and PAUL STIBORA, are trying to tease us. Yesterday Paul and I were riding in my jeep, and I had a flat tire. These fellas came along. I told them I knew where the air filter was, but I didn't know how to hook it to the tire. They just laughed and laughed."

"I think you're right Joyce. About a week ago CECILIA PACIOREK, GAYLE PAGEL, PAT PRESLAN and I were over at the men's firing range. The target master, JOE SLOMKA had us firing from 300 yards. We didn't do so well, so he moved us up to 200 yards. We still weren't hitting the targets, so he moved us up to 100 yards. Nobody got a hit, and he shouted, 'Fix bayonets, charge!' I think he was fooling, 'cause when we cut up his targets, he got pretty mad."

"I guess that fellow was right."

"What fellow?"

"The guy who said, 'War is tough.'"

CpHiOzCzOaLpAiTeE

The sun cast soft shades over the market place, centering upon the statue of DENNIS FECHTER, the founder of this small Italian village. Near the center of the square, MARLENE VRABEL was selling onion rings. To her left, BOB SULL was selling violets while his friend PAT PETERS complained that few people were buying fish tails this morning. Then, JANET PIRRO, daughter of the Pizza King, tripped up the fountain singing, "I'm Going to Sit Right Down and Eat Myself a Pizza." In answer, the baker, JOHN HURA, set loose his cry of "Day-O-Bread." Not to be outdone, the seamstress, ELAINE GRIFFIN, warbled, "I'll Be Sewing You in All the Old Familiar Places." Here one of Janet's admirers, HARRY LILLY, piloted his wagon into the square expostulating the glories of, "The Surrey with the Sauerkraut on Top." As he paused near Janet, the owner of the hardware store, HALLIE HAENI, chanted "I've Got a Lovely Bunch of Bolts and Nuts." The beautician, MADELINE GREGG, decided this a fitting time to inform everyone that she planned to "Wash That Man Right Out of My Hair." From the opposite corner came the call of Janet's other admirer, BRIAN GRIFFIN, "Standing On the Corner Selling All My Chocolate Bars." As Janet and her two admirers leave the scene, the butcher begs his sweetheart to "Butcher Arms Around Me, Honey."

At the Pizza Palace, Janet's mother, SHERRILL WIDLICKA, was kneading dough. Her father, DAVID VAUGHAN, informs the admirers that neither was good enough for his daughter; he would have a pizza-eating contest, to determine which one should marry her.

That evening at the contest grounds the chief tomato sauce stirrer, JUDITH CONKLIN, was stirring tomato sauce. Off to the side of the fire, oblivious to its sparkle, a drama being enacted before them; two gypsies were performing. As GAIL PRITKO played her concertina, MARY BETH DANKO was dancing the "Russian Rumble." Then came the most important event ever to occur in the town. Each of the participants, under the direction of the biggest cheese, JOYCE MIKA, stumbled warily to his appointed place. "Get ready" shouted the official starter, DONNA DEMCHO. "Eat," she screamed, and the 9,000 members of the town screamed with delight. Each side called encouragement to its favorite; "urp", each admirer agreed.

A small girl, BARBARA MEYER, was walking down-wind from the battle-grounds. Suddenly, she keeled over, victim of the odor of the stale pizzas, cold pepperonies, and two contestants who had had a little too much pizza.

Downing the pizza, piece after piece, the rivals demolished the stack of pies in short order. In came CAROLYN DRAKE, MARY JANE EGNA, and CAROLYN DOMBROSKI from the kitchen - - bringing more pizza. The half-plump twosome started in again. Halfway through the second batch, our friend, the sauerkraut salesman showed signs of weakening. A nurse named CYNTHIA MILLER, watching the duel suddenly stepped out of the crowd and gave Brian a checkup. Finding that the pizza was coming out of Brian's ears, he stopped the contest, declaring the winner by P. K. O., or Pizza Knock-Out. Brian and Janet walked blissfully to the nearest Justice of the Peace while Mildred Clow shoveled up pizza scraps and shoved them back in the mix to give the spectators a treat.

At DIANE GUTGLUECK's house, a quiet service was taking place. The Right Reverend JIM LATSKO stepped forward and began the services. As he sang "Death of a Dream", the two young lovers held hands and walked up before him. He began the services. "Friends, we all know what a fine man this was Woops! Wrong service! Dearly beloved, we are gathered here today" At the end of the service, as the flower girls, BARBARA BARTKIEWICZ and RUTH BERGSTRESSER showered the pair with rice, Brian and his new wife started to leave. When his friend PHIL WEICEK asked him if he were going on his honeymoon, he shook his head. VAUGHAN explained an idea he had to develop. He planned to make "Glunchies", luscious milk-chocolate-covered pieces of pizza, filled with big, juicy chunks of pepperoni.

"The hamburger is dead; long live the pizza pie!"

HAVE CAR, WILL TRAVEL

By John Birkimer

"Here's my card, Sheriff," said A. E. Paladin. "Come on, gang, those pesky Pontiacs have jumped reservation again. One of their braves, BRIAN PARKER, told us they wanted Maypo for extra enger-ny," he shouted. Paladin, whose "Have car, will travel" was known throughout the West, knew that it was his duty to try to prevent harm to defenseless women and children. With cries of "Hi-Ho Chevy," from the rough-riding RICHARD GOLAN and "Come On Ply," from Sidewinder SPINELLO, Paladin's boys hit the road. Off in a cloud of dust rode Mad-man MYRIONIAK, Go Get-um GEIL, LOUIS the Red and Hard-hitting HEZEL, and the rest of Paladin's trusty lads.

Meanwhile, back at the reservation, Big Chief PALUMBO and his braves were doing their well-known war dance. Any resemblance to a traffic jam is purely obvious. Ma n-With-Short-Red-Hair NAEGELE threw back his head and gave his terror striking war cry, "Get that heap off the road." Not to be outdone, Sub-chief Jack - in - the - Trunk McCREERY answered with his equally well known "If you can't drive it, park it." Then, reaching a horn-blowing, throttle pumping frenzy, the Pontiacs were off in a cloud of blue smoke.

As the "pesky carmint's" stormed across Pearl Run, they discovered a wagon train, (jeep convoy) led by the "King of Ye Olde Open Road," JOHN ROHDE. Deciding to hold a pow-wow with the settlers, the Pontiacs sent their chief interpreter, IVAN WEICH, to make signs of peace. (An inverted mush-room cloud.) In the discussion which followed, an exchange of hostages was arranged. GEORGE METRICK, one of the wagon-eers, agreed to act as the hood-ornament for a '53 Dodge, while TOM PASTERNAK, an Indian, consented to work in a cigar store. Content to leave the white-eyes and continue their escape, the Palumbo-men rode off.

At the fork of the Little Ridge Road and the Big Memphis Creek, the show-down was beginning to take shape. A. E. Paladin and his boys had stopped at Fort JOHN BOSKO, where they had helped Colonel OKTAVEC and several of his soldiers straighten up Wild BOB KNORR and the HANSEN Gang, who were shooting up the "O. K. White Castle Saloon." Then, after being equipped with the new repeating chrome Air Horn 73's, famous as the "Horn that Won the West," they continued toward the ensuing battle.

With a screeching of brakes and a gnashing of gears, the Pontiacs charged down on Paladin and his boys. But then, just as the two groups were about to clash, Sheriff McDONOUGH and his chief deputy, Catch-um CUTLIP, arrived with their posse. Each of the deputies was armed with one of the sheriff's shiny white tow-trucks. It seemed that both Paladin and the Indians had ridden down a one-way cattle train.

Minutes later, it was all over. As the tow-trucks pulled the valiant chargers into the sunset, A. E. and his boys stood with Big Chief Palumbo sadly watching. "Here's my card," volunteered A. E. The chief looked slowly at his hand, and then realized the full effect his actions were to have on the West. There, where once had been the words that struck fear into the hearts of the lawless, were these words. "Have thumb, will travel."

* * * *

When our class sings "Wedding Bells Are Breaking Up That Old Gang of Mine," they really mean "Graduation Bells Are Breaking Up That Old Gang of Mine." As this last day ends, it is fitting to record for all posterity the actions of each group as it eats its final meal in the cafeteria of James Ford Rhodes. In one corner, after nine months of practice, LOIS GRAY, SUE HRICIK, JUSTINE ROSEBROUGH, and JANET WALTZER have finally succeeded in harmonizing "We Are Table Number Two." From across the way, BARBARA HINCKLEY, MARLYN KERSTEN, and BARBARA RONYETZE, not to be outdone, answer back with "Here's to KRASUNA and the way she does the Hula." At the table of SUE STAHLEY, BARBARA YANNIE, and Company, the girls are so busy eating that no one has time to sing. In fact, if ROSEMARY LAVELLE has something to say to IRENE REINEKS, a note is passed via PEGGY SCHROEDER, CHRISTINE VACHUSKA, and NANCY WILLIAMS. Not only does this procedure contribute to a quiet cafeteria, but it gives each girl more time to have something in her mouth.

However, don't get the idea that the only things done are singing and eating. On the contrary, if you asked LEAH LUDLOW and ROSE MADACHIK what their gang does at lunch, they would be sure to mention the many walks taken with their friends MARIANNE MATHEIS, DOLORES SCHMIDT, IRMA JANKE, and DIANE KNIPPER. Still, don't get the idea that these girls don't like to eat less than any other group of girls. Just observe ANN TESAR, TAMARA THOMPSON, ROSALIE TROLYKA, or DOLORES VESELENAK in the Bright Spot sometime and you'll see what I mean.

Finally on this last perfect day, we'll go to the noon movie with GEORGIANNA KETOLA, JEAN KAVULA, and CARYL LUIS. Since it is such a special occasion, PAT HUNSICKER has designed special tickets, each having a picture of JOY SOPKO'S flute. These tickets, which cost one Ruble, are being sold by professional ticket sellers PAUL RUSINKO and BOB TEKESKY. If you are wondering why tickets are at such a premium, Promoter MARIE CORRAO will quickly tell you that the feature attraction is Androcles and the Lion, featuring CARL STAS as the lion.

Well anyway, that's how the lunch period was spent. If you're trying to decide how I could see so much, the explanation is simple. I had to stand up; there weren't any chairs to sit on.
