About Me

I am from Amarillo, TX. Where my mother had a successful tax practice, “Kathryn Wisdom, EA.” She is retired now, but thankfully she still lets me pick her brain, which has four decades of experience. Notably, being around her practice instilled in me an ethical compass that says not to overbill clients.

I currently live in Lubbock, TX. The same city that gave me a law school education and introduced me to my wonderful bride, Skylar Strait Wisdom. You may know of her from her mental health counseling practice here in Lubbock.

I still spend a lot of time in Amarillo as my family, and many of my friends still call it home. Therefore, I am interested in clients from both cities. I love West Texas and everything it has done for me, and I could not be happier to serve its community.

Education

Bachelor of Business Administration in Accounting from West Texas A&M University

Master of Business Administration from West Texas A&M University

Juris Doctorate from Texas Tech University School of Law

My love of business shaped my education path. And all its elements. I paid extra attention to accounting because I knew it was the backbone of every business. In law school, I took every tax law course that was available. What sets me apart is that I learned a significant amount of tax and business law that will benefit any client of mine. Although, I never sat for the Bar, and I am not a licensed attorney. I do not practice the law.

Experience

As mentioned previously, I grew up around a tax practice, which established my solid foundation for tax preparation.

After completing law school, I took a job with a CPA firm, D. Williams & Co., as a staff associate. While with D. Williams & Co., I spent three tax seasons, sharpened my abilities as an accountant, and completed various obscure research projects. I resigned only to chase my dream of starting my own business.

Conclusion

I tried to keep this short and hit the main points. I am excited to start a working relationship with you, whether individual tax preparation, business tax preparation, or small business general consulting! Please, give me a call with any other questions you may have!
