THIRTY-THIRD SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

In the reading from Proverbs, a man finds a trustworthy and praiseworthy partner, one whose value is “beyond pearls.” In the Gospel, another man finds trustworthy and praiseworthy servants, ones worthy of handling all his possessions. We would do well to look at ourselves. Does our spouse or close family member consider us trustworthy and praiseworthy? How about our employer? How about God? As we listen to these readings, let us consider how we can become more trustworthy and praiseworthy in the eyes of those whose perspective we value.

Stewardship Reflection

"Well done, my good and faithful servant. Since you have been faithful in small matters, I will give you great responsibilities." Matthew 25:21 God calls us to nurture and develop the gifts He has given us and then generously return a portion with increase. He doesn't want us to waste or hoard the gifts He has given us. He expects us to grow our gifts, use them wisely and be generous with them. Unfortunately, many of us are not generous in proportion to all that God has given us.

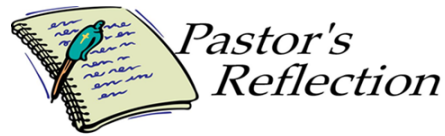

Did you know that Catholics can make an Act of Spiritual Communion?

When unable to receive Holy Communion, pray the prayer below:

A Prayer for Spiritual Communion
My Jesus, I believe that you are present in the Most Holy Sacrament.

I love you above all things and I desire to receive you in my soul.

Since I cannot at this moment receive you sacramentally, Come at least spiritually into my heart. I embrace you as if you were already there and unite myself wholly to you. Never permit me to be separated from you. Amen.

Well done, my good and faithful servant; come share your master's joy

With his end of time teaching, we hear Jesus talking about the return of the master (the Lord) at the last judgment. He asks us, his followers: “what did you do with the talents I gave to you”. These talents are the gifts God has given to us his servants. Talent, according to commentators and scholars, are not the ability to carry a tune or the instinct to hit the jackpot or make fortunes on the stock market. It is rather a measure of weight. It is typically the weight of a soldier's pack (about 75-100 pounds). When we interpret a talent in terms of valuable coins, it is an awesome amount that was entrusted to the servants. In today's monetary terms, it is in the millions of dollars. The master handed all this money to his trusted servants. He did not tell the servants what to do with the money. He simply gave the money to the servants in the amount commensurate with each one's ability. These servants were specially chosen because of their knack for the master's business. He did this because he wanted his work to continue when he left town.

Matthew records this end of time teaching two days before the passion of Jesus Christ to teach us how we should use Jesus' investments in us. The master in the parable represents Jesus. He goes on a journey “when he dies,” and he “returns “after a long time,” at the end of time. Before his departure, Jesus entrusted a huge amount of divine goods to the followers.

The servants who received two and three talents strategized how to use their talents to benefit their master. They took initiative and risks and immediately went to work and doubled the money. They emulated their master's operational method and achieved similar results like their master. They doubled the fortune by showing their attachment to the master's enterprise. Their master was ecstatic about what those servants had done and exuberantly shouted “well done good and faithful” servants. These are the words that every believer in Christ wants to hear.

The question is: “how did two servants get accolades and the third got kicked out?” All three servants know their master. They have learned and understood the way their master operates to earn his fortune. Two did what their master did. The third did not only fail to invest like the rest, he repudiated the master and his occupation. He hid the money and ignored everything he had learned in his master's service. By burying the money, he brought shame on his master. To add insult to his master's wounds, he made a scathing critique of the master's whole enterprise. Given the master's affluence, the insult was far worse than the loss of potential profit he could have made. The servant brought a logical conclusion to the process he himself has set in motion. It was, therefore, not possible for him to share the master's joy. The master ordered him to be thrown out into the darkness outside. To shake the Christians out of their complacency before it is too late, Matthew, with this story, persuades us not to behave like the lazy servant.

With this story Jesus teaches us his secrets to success and failure. The master taught the selected servants the secrets to his trade. Those who got two and three talents did what their master did and got the same result. The third servant, by not doing what the master did, failed. As Jesus tells us “no servant is greater than the master” and by repeating after the master, they become like the master.

Again, the master did not tell the servants what the talent was for, neither did he inform them how to use it. As we come to the end of the church year, we reflect on our service in the mission of Christ, how we have invested the talents (gifts) God has given to each of us; and our longing to share our story with Christ.

As the “Ideal Woman” in Proverbs 31 models for us, we do not have to invest in big ventures. We just have to fulfill our vocation and to understand our lives in terms of its ultimate purpose. Then we will hear the master's booming voice saying: “Well done, my good and faithful servant... come, share your master's joy”.
