

APRIL

2021

ABOUT THE HOWL

This simple one sheet hopes to keep interested parties in the Montgomery area abreast of upcoming arts and music events. It also hopes to spotlight some of the people, businesses, organizations, and artists that are working to help build a better Montgomery. Put out each month by the Hilltop Howlers, it is free to print and share, or should you find a copy in the wild, take it with you to show others.

The mission of the Hilltop Howlers is the promotion of art, music, and small business in Montgomery Alabama, primarily the Five Points area of the Cottage Hill District. It aspires to bringing a punk style DIY aesthetic to promotion and support of area bands, artists, and entrepreneurs. It embraces diversity, and recognizes that we are only as strong as the least of us. To that end it's secondary mission is to work to help the homeless in Montgomery.

UPCOMING EVENTS

4-3: Cactus and Flower Pot Needle Felting Workshop. 9:30am and 2:00pm sessions. Southern Art & Makers Collective

4-10: Brantwood Children's Home Annual 5k Run/Walk. 7:30 Registration, 8:30 Start. Patterson Field.

5-23: Electric Blue Yonder RETURNS to C.I.A. Spring Concert. 4pm-7:30. Cloverdale Bottom Park.

SPOTLIGHTS

Business: Seville at Hilltop

Longtime Gump staple of the beauty scene, Seville has at last found their forever home. Taking up residence on Goldthwaite Street, in the heart of the Five Points area, it looks to keep bringing the excellence that they have become known for. Jen, Jessica, and Malerie are sure to be able to whip that unruly mop of yours into shape, be it a mountain man beard, or a quarantine home trim 'attempt' gone horribly wrong.

Art: Remembering Anarcha

Remembering Anarcha, is a documentary film exploring the legacy of Dr. James Marion Sims and "the mothers of gynecology." Directed by local filmmaker Josh Carples, it recently won the Best Long Documentary award at the International Black Film Festival. Congrats to Josh, as well as his fellow producers, Royce Williams and C. DeWayne Cunningham. To learn more about the film, and to watch the trailer, visit:

<https://rememberinganarcha.com/>

Music: Towering Above - Repeating the Moment

Covid pretty well put an end to live music for a time, but that doesn't mean that our local bands haven't been busy. Montgomery rockers Towering Above (formerly Barrens) released a six track Acoustic EP entitled Repeating the Moment back in August. You can get it on their bandcamp for a paltry 5 dollars, or hear it from your streaming service of choice.